Four Groups Join Forces To Support Home Rule

'One Package' Plan Calls for Home Rule, Reorganization of Local Government

By Thomas Winship and Edward Ryan
Post Reporters

The four major groups in the forefront of the drive for Washington self government last night agreed to close ranks behind the home rule measure, released yesterday by the Senate Home Rule Subcommittee.

Accord was reached at a two-hour closed session called by the District Democratic Central Committee, official sponsor of the "grassroots" home-rule bill now in printed form before the Senate Committee.

To Testify Thusrady

The meeting, described as the "final strategy session," was attended by members of the District Central Democratic Committee, the Washington Home Rule Committee, coauthors of the new suffrage measure, the Central Suffrage Conference and the D. C. League of Women Voters.

Spokesmen of these groups will testify Thursday morning before Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), chairman of the three-member Senate Home Rule Subcommittee at an all day hearing starting at 9:30 a. m.

Sponsors of the bill believe it would give Washington the largest degree of home rule of any measure yet proposed short of Constitutional amendment. Like other plans, it calls for an elected council and elected school board, with a city manager appointed by the council.

Could Enact Laws

Unlike some other plans, it would let the council enact District laws, without routing the local legislation through Congress or the President for final approval. Any council legislation, however, could be overridden by a bill passed by Congress and signed by the President.

As yesterday's conference of downtown suffrage leaders broke up, participants emphasized that they were in "substantial agreement" on:

1. The home-rule features of the bill, and
2. The pressing need for reorganizing and regrouping the administrative setup of the District government.

In reaching this significant agreement on the over-all aims of the District self-rule legislation,

U. S. Tax Agent Took $5,000 Bribe, Bureau Asserts

Chicago, Feb. 15 (U.P.).—Special Government agents announced that they caught a United States tax collector taking a $5000 bribe today.

They said Oscar Shirman, 28, an agent for the Internal Revenue Department since 1945, walked into a trap and was seized with $5000 in crisp $100 bills in his briefcase.

A. P. Madden, head of the Revenue Department's special intelligence unit here, said Shirman was seized at the office of the Dick Johnson Motor Co.

Madden said Shirman had been dickering since last September to arrange a substantial cut in the $44,000 Johnson, head of the motor firm, owed for 1945 through 1947.

Madden said Shirman originally solicited a $10,000 bribe. Johnson's accountant notified the Internal Revenue Department, which arranged with Johnson to pay $5000 of the bribe at his office this morning.

After a few minutes Shirman walked out into the arms of Walter Sommers, investigator, and other agents, who took the money from Shirman's briefcase. "I don't know how it got there," Shirman said. "It isn't mine."

D. C. Man Shot In Fight Over Dice Winnings

A 53-year-old veteran policeman captured two armed Baltimore men in downtown Washington during a chase last night within minutes after a District man was shot and wounded and another beaten in a fight over gambling winnings.

Injured were Edward R. Ryan, 24, of 1013 8th st. nw., and Lonnie "Curly" Polson, 34, 1706 67th ave., Cheverly, Md. Ryan was taken to Emergency Hospital with a bullet wound in the right thigh. Polson was treated at Emergency for scalp lacerations, received when he was struck with a pistol.

As a result of the affray, First Precinct police lodged charges as follows late last night:

James T. Skeens, 28, of Baltimore, assault with a deadly weapon and carrying a deadly weapon.

John J. Bruno, 38, of Baltimore, carrying a deadly weapon and assault with a dangerous weapon.

Polson, simple assault.

Pvt. Theodore E. Marquis of 4709 Sheridan st., Riverdale, Md., was the hero of the fast-moving episode.

Dice Winnings Involved

He and other policemen of the First Precinct told this story after questioning the participants:

Each armed with a pistol, the pair came here from Baltimore for a meeting to arrange for their share of $670 they claim they won in a dice game last Thursday and Friday.

The game allegedly started Thursday night in the Mayflower Hotel and wound up Friday morning at the Ambassador Hotel. Four men, including Polson and one of the two men in custody, were winners.

About 6:45 p. m. last night the Baltimore pair accosted Polson in a poolroom at 1013 9th st. nw. Ryan was with Polson.

Argument Follows

An argument followed, and the men moved out into the street. Ryan then supposedly struck one of the Baltimore men and was going for the other when he was shot. Polson struck Bruno and then was slugged on the head by Bruno's gun. The two out-of-towners fled. A third man, supposedly from Arlington, was in an automobile, waiting.

As the shot was fired, Private Marquis was turning the corner of 9th and I sts. nw., walking his beat. He said he heard the shot, saw Ryan on the ground and dashed up.

Witnesses pointed out the fleeing car. Marquis commandeered the cab of Henry Schulze, 51, 1190 Morse st. ne., and gave chase. He turned his cap backwards to hide his police shield. West on I st. they went, to 10th, then south to G st. At 10th and G sts. the pursued car slowed up and the unidentified man got out and fled in the crowds.

The chase continued south on 10th st. to F, then west on F to 11th. Here, the car slowed for a red light, and Schulze swerved in front of the car, cutting it off.

Marquis hopped out, his service revolver drawn and took Skeens and Bruno into custody. He forced them to stand facing the car, their

Income Eligibility Rise Asked on Housing

A petition urging a 50 per cent increase in the income eligibility for public housing has been sent to the Senate Banking and Currency Committee by the Langston Resident Council, a group of public housing tenants.

The petition, signed by 234 persons and addressed to Senator Maybank (D., S. C.), chairman of the committee, said that "inadequate housing facilities" and the high cost of living put private housing beyond the reach of the signers.

Former Boxer Held On Homicide Charge

Philadelphia, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Gus Dorazio, former heavyweight boxer, was held without bail for the grand jury on homicide charges today in the death of a fellow employe at a brewery.

The victim, Albert Blomeyer, 33, died of injuries allegedly suffered in a fight with the 31-year-old Dorazio. Deputy Coroner Matthew Roth held the former heavyweight title contender after an assistant brewmaster testified he believed union trouble led to Dorazio's fight with Blomeyer last January 7.

Eyewitness Declares Two Policemen Saw Cab Driver Beaten, Then Walked Away

Man Arrested by Pair Chief Accused Charges Framing for Cover-Up

By Ben Bradlee
Post Reporter

The case of Gerald Richard Barnes, who is charged with selling whisky illegally, was continued a second time in Municipal Court yesterday, this time for 40 days, at the request of the Corporation Counsel.

Barnes, a 33-year-old cab driver who lives at 1244 Girard st. nw., was booked at No. 13 precinct, on charges of keeping and selling whisky without a license, at 5:15 a. m. on January 14, approximately 45 minutes after Cab Driver James Rowell was brutally beaten on the south side of Thomas Circle.

Few Blocks Away

Barnes was arrested by Officers James Roche and Angelo S. Bonaccorsy at 10th and V sts. nw., only a few blocks from the scene of the Rowell beating.

Barnes and his attorney, Wesley Williams, charge that they are being framed as a cover-up for the Rowell beating. Williams freely predicted—to a Washington Post reporter—the case will never come to trial. He points to major discrepancies in Roche and Bonaccorsy's report of the arrest, and Barnes' own story.

Barnes states in his own defense that he was not selling whisky, but was merely walking toward a restaurant to get a bite to eat when two plainsclothes police officers approached him and asked to buy whisky. He said the men followed him and he started to flee, stopping only after shots were fired.

Alleges They Beat Him

Barnes also alleges that the two officers beat him and forced him to enter a building after breaking a door panel. Witnesses tell of hearing shots and seeing two men kick in a door panel at 1003 V st. nw., forcing Barnes to enter.

The report filed by the two officers after the incident, said that they purchased whisky from Barnes with three marked dollar bills. No mention was made of shots or the door incident, but the report did state that it was necessary to use force to maintain the arrest. Policeman Roche reported that he was injured on one finger, making it necessary for him to go to Emergency Hospital for treatment.

Roche and Bonaccorsy, the arresting officers, are the two policemen who, according to Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett, are "guilty as hell" of the

New Disclosures May Shed Light On Jan. 14 Rowell Beating Case

In the early dawn on January 14, two separate police incidents occurred within less than a mile of each other.

One was the brutal beating of Cab Driver James Rowell at Thomas Circle by two men whom Chief of Police Robert J. Barrett says he suspects were police undercover men. The other was the arrest, by the suspected undercover men, of another cab driver, Gerald Barnes, for illegal whisky peddling.

New facts brought to light in both cases may have important bearing on the question of whether the police chief's suspicions in the Rowell case are correct. The new facts are in the stories in adjacent columns.

Meanwhile, police say they are still investigating the Rowell case. The investigation started on January 29, after The Washington Post called attention to the incident.

Drug Store Clerk Identifies One as Pvt. McClanahan

By John London
Post Reporter

Two uniformed policemen saw two men brutally beating Cab Driver James Rowell at Thomas Circle January 14—then walked away—after, apparently, learning the assailants' identity, an eyewitness told The Washington Post last night.

The eyewitness was Lee R. Thompson, 35-year-old clerk in People's Drug Store at Thomas Circle. He said he gave police about a week ago a full, signed statement of what he had seen of the beating incident.

Thompson identified one of the two uniformed police witnesses as Pvt. M. W. McClanahan.

Admit Passing Scene

McClanahan and Pvt. D. F. Reid both of the Second Precinct, have previously admitted passing the beating scene January 14. However, they have claimed they arrived after the incident was over and the cabbie and the two assailants had left.

The two assailants were dressed in plainclothes.

Police Chief Robert J. Barrett on February 3, told reporters that he thought Detective Sergt. James Roche and Pvt. Angelo Bonaccorsy, then on vice squad plainclothes duty, were responsible for the beating which cost Rowell three teeth, bruised ribs and a broken left hand.

"I think they are guilty as hell," said Barrett. Then he added, "But I've got to get the evidence to prove it."

Still Trying, Presumably

Police yesterday were still, presumably, trying to get "the evidence." The incident, now more than four weeks old, was still under a special police investigation not yet completed.

Since reporters for The Washington Post first uncovered the hushed-up beating some two weeks ago, Rowell, the victim, has claimed he could not give a detailed description of the assailants or their car. He failed to identify the two policemen named by Barrett in a special lineup.

However, Rowell's version of how he happened to be beaten about 4:45 a. m., January 14, jibed with the statement made yesterday by the drug clerk, Thompson.

Rowell said he paused on his way into the drugstore to watch two men in civilian clothes roughing up a little man whose identity

Taft Says AFL Bids for Vast Special Favor

By The Associated Press

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) yesterday accused the American Federation of Labor of seeking "the most extraordinary special privilege any organization ever claimed in the United States."

Taft made the statement after William Green, the AFL's 75-year-old president, told the Senate Labor Committee there is no good reason why unions should be subject to several Taft-Hartley law provisions. Those included the ban on closed shops, the section making unions liable for damages, and the provision requiring unions to bargain collectively.

After Green had denounced those T-H law provisions one by one, Taft, coauthor of the Taft-Hartley law, said:

"Mr. Green, I don't want to make a speech. But it seems to me you are claiming the most extraordinary special privilege any organization ever claimed in the United States."

Green quietly replied: "All right, Senator. We know when a measure is striking at our heart and when it is not."

The exchange between Taft and Green came after the AFL chief told the committee that the Taft-Hartley law is hampering efforts to drive Communists out of unions.

In sharply assailing the Taft-Hartley measure and demanding its repeal, Green said the law created "widespread bitterness, resentment and even rebellion

U. S. Nears End Of Testimony On Axis Sally

Post Reporter

The Government yesterday virtually completed its treason case against Miss Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars, 48, with testimony by two former Yank paratroopers that she had interviewed them for a propaganda broadcast when they were prisoners of the Nazis.

Their testimony wound up presentation of evidence in 8 of the 10 allegedly overt acts of treason charged to Miss Gillars. Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., announced to the court that he would not call witnesses to the remaining acts since, he said, the testimony was "cumulative."

The remaining acts also concerned interviews with United States soldiers.

Today Kelley will endeavor to demonstrate treasonous intent on the part of the defendant by calling four more former GIs to the stand to describe how they refused to participate in interviews, and how this led to disorder.

First of the former paratroopers to testify yesterday was William R. Chestnut, 25, of Phenix City, Ala.

"She was very cheerful, passing out cigarettes and laughing and talking," Chestnut said, in describing a visit made by Miss Gillars to the PW camp at Chartres, France, July 15, 1944.

He said one of two civilian men accompanying Miss Gillars told

As Financial Solution

McMillan Sees D. C. Sales Tax, Higher U. S. Payment to City

Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), chairman of the House District Committee, yesterday predicted that the District's financial troubles would be solved by congressional approval this year of a local sales tax and a substantial increase in the Federal payment to the city.

The legislator offered the note of hope to the harassed, deficit-ridden Commissioners at a luncheon meeting of the Central Businessmen's Association at the Burlington Hotel.

"I am confident the pending sales tax bill will be favorably reported by the House District Committee within two weeks, and that it will become law inside of a few months," said McMillan.

Placing himself on record for boosting the Federal Government's present 12-million-dollar payment to the city, McMillian commented:

"I feel that this Congress will increase the Federal ante; how much, I do not know. After talking to many House members recently I am sure they will be willing to add a few million more dollars."

He also conceded some chance this year of a congressional sanction to streamline District government agencies and departments.

Part of Economic Program

Federal Authority to Expand Key Industries Asked in House

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Administration presented the second installment of its three-measure domestic economic program to Congress yesterday. The third is expected to be ready within a week.

The measure was sent to House leaders by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, Cabinet coordinator of economic proposals, several days ago, and leaked out prematurely yesterday. Arrangements then were made with Chairman Brent Spence (D., Ky.) of the House Banking Committee, to introduce it at once.

The measure includes:

1. Authority for Government loans for expansion in key industries, or, where needed as a last resort, authority for the Government actually to construct additional facilities.

2. Restoration of priority and allocation powers over scarce materials. These privileges would be used to channel such commodities from nonessential to essential uses, or to relieve shortages or correct maldistribution of such goods where they affect the cost of living, the national security or the Nation's foreign policies.

3. Standby power to impose price controls on commodities in short supply where any price increase would affect the cost of living, industrial production, or the national defense. No farm product could have a price ceiling

Department Of Welfare Bill Reported Out

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A bill to constitute the Federal Security Agency a new Department of Welfare with cabinet status was reported out last night by the House Committee on Executive Expenditures after three days of hearings.

The measure, introduced by Chairman William L. Dawson (D., Ill.) creates the new posts of Secretary of Welfare, an under secretary and two assistant secretaries. All powers, functions and duties of the Federal Security Agency and its constituent units are vested in the new department.

Section 4 Amended

Before reporting out the measure, the committee amended Section 4 which as originally written would have automatically made the Federal Security Administrator Acting Secretary of Welfare pending a presidential appointment.

The new Section 4 reads as follows:

"The provisions of the Act authorizing the appointment, and relating to the salaries of the Secretary of Welfare, the Undersecretary of Welfare and the Assistant Secretary of Welfare shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act and the remaining provisions of this Act shall take effect on the day after the day upon which the Secretary of Welfare first appointed takes office."

The new Section 4 thus avoids automatically making the Federal Security Administrator, Oscar Ewing, an acting Cabinet head and leaves it up to the President to name his Cabinet chief.

Another minor amendment charged the Secretary with the duty of disseminating "useful and proper" information with respect to health, education, social welfare and social security.

The words "useful and proper" were designed to prevent the dissemination of what some committee members feared might be propaganda.

Representative Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.) said he opposed reporting the measure at this time before the recommendations of the Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization could be studied. Hoffman served notice that he intended to file a minority report.

One of the last committee witnesses was John J. Corson, circulation manager of the Washington Post, formerly Director of the Bureau of Old Age and Survivors Insurance.

Corson urged the committee to report out the Dawson bill.

Are Policysetters

Replying to the arguments of some previous witnesses that the law should require the assistant secretaries in the department ot be professional men, Corson pointed out that persons who hold such offices do not perform technical and professional services. Their function, he said, is to set policy and maintain a liaison with Congress. Actually they are and should be, he maintained, political officials representing the Administration in power.

The new Cabinet secretary, he

Moffett Awarded $1.15 Million In Arabian Oil Suit

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—James A. Moffett, retired oil company executive, today was awarded $1,150,000 by a Federal Court jury in his suit against the Arabian American Oil Co.

He sued for what he termed compensation for services performed in safeguarding the company against possible loss of its oil concession in Saudi-Arabia.

Judge Edward A. Conger reserved decision on a defense motion to set aside the verdict.

Moffett, former Federal Housing Administrator, contended in his suit that he talked to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and other Government officials on behalf of the Arabian American Oil Co.

He said that as a result of these talks, funds were advanced to Ibn Saud, King of Saudi Arabia, early in the war, saving the oil company's concessions in that country.

Moffett asked for six million dollars, claiming he had saved the oil company 30 million dollars and its oil concessions.

'Dictatorial' Tactics Charged

Uproar Reigns as House Group Reports Veteran Pension Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A politically inflammatory veterans' pension bill not recommended by the Administration was reported out of the House Veterans Committee yesterday in an angry uproar that quickly spread to the House floor.

Seven members of the committee walked out of the meeting before the vote. Some of them later took the floor to charge Veterans Chairman John Rankin (D., Miss.), with "dictatorial" tactics in handling the bill.

Rankin shouted that they had "walked out on the veterans."

The bill, providing $90-a-month pensions for veterans of World Wars I and II at age 65 is a political hot potato that the Administration thus far has been able to keep under wraps.

It would cost less than 100 million dollars the first year, but costs would quickly pyramid into billions.

The immediate effect of Rankin's move was to place the Administration's House leadership on the spot.

In past years the Rules Committee has succeeded in holding the lid on this and other costly vet-

Pact Stand Is Clarified By Connally In Formula

Stresses Congress' Right to Declare War, Blueprints U. S. Action Idea

By Ferdinand Kuhn jr.
Post Reporter

Senator Tom Connally of Texas, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, last night proposed a formula under which the new North Atlantic security treaty would:

1. ENABLE the United States to act against aggression, and yet
2. NOT impair the right of Congress to declare war.

The Senator made his suggestion in a brief but carefully considered statement intended to clarify his impromptu speech in the Senate on Monday. Reports of the speech caused dismay in Europe yesterday, and embarrassment in American Government offices at home and abroad.

Follows Basic Principle

The speech had seemed to emphasize the avoidance of American action in time of war. The statement, on the other hand, was in line with the basic principle of the proposed treaty—namely, that an attack on one signer would be regarded as an attack on all.

Connally began his statement by repeating that Congress has the "exclusive" right to declare war—a thesis which nobody in authority here had challenged.

"We could not legally sign a treaty providing for automatic entrance into war," he declared. "Measures short of war, such as consultation and advice, are not within the ban.

"The United States must retain the power to make its own decisions as to declaring war, in view of the circumstances and the international aspects at the time."

Formula Disclosed

At this point the Senator unveiled his formula, which was not very different from what had been reported contained in the still-secret draft of the treaty:

"I would," he said, "favor the insertion of language substantially as follows:

"'In the event of armed attack upon another nation signatory to the treaty, a party to the treaty, in the exercise of the right of collective self-defense recognized by Article 51 of the Charter of the United Nations, will individually or in concert with other parties take such measures as it may deem necessary to maintain the security of the North Atlantic area.'"

Behind this somewhat involved

Stand of U.S. on War Hits European Hopes

London, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—America's rejection of any "automatic war" clause in the Atlantic pact hit the public of western Europe like a dash of ice water today.

"Senate Bans War Pledge" and "No Automatic War Tie, Say Senators," morning paper headlines announced.

The Communist press wasted not a minute turning the United States Senators' stand into propaganda against the proposed defensive alliance.

European Propaganda

In Berlin the Soviet army's Taegliche Rundschau proclaimed with satisfaction "A Crisis in the Atlantic Bloc." The Russian-licensed National Zeitung headlined the story "Europe Alone Should Bleed—America Won't Accept Military Obligations."

The Senate's position was made plain yesterday by Senator Connally of Texas, Democratic chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, the committee's ranking Republican.

The news was greeted more calmly on the diplomatic level, where it had been recognized in advance that the Senate was unlikely to approve any treaty which infringed on its constitutional right to declare war.

But British diplomats are said to fear now that the alliance may be so watered down in the end that it will fail of its purpose—to make a showing of united strength which would deter any potential aggressor.

The diplomats are afraid that any apparent weakening of commitments under the treaty may

Rayburn Scotches No-Tax-Bill Stories

Speaker Sam Rayburn, teaming with President Truman, yesterday moved to scotch reports that there won't be a tax bill this session.

In a statement he said will be followed up by the President at his press conference Thursday, Rayburn told newsmen:

"In all probability . . . to keep us out of the red we will have some tax legislation. We have to have enough money to run the Government and certainly we should have enough to reduce the debt."

Rayburn's statement followed a White House conference with House leaders and all Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee on forthcoming social security legislation.

The Speaker said he spoke out on taxes to "clear away the fog and confusion" resulting from reports that the Ways and Means Committee shelved taxes when they recently moved to consider social security legislation.

"I don't know how anyone could be wise enough to say we should have no new tax legislation," said Rayburn.

"If there's a probability of us running into the red, it would be a reflection on all of us to do deficit financing when the national income is at such a high level.

"There will be plenty of time as the picture develops to see what kind and how much of an increase we need to keep us out of the red and to avoid deficit financing."

Rayburn said taxes weren't discussed during the White House social security huddle with the Ways and Means Committee but he later told Truman what he planned to say on the subject. The President told Rayburn he would have something to say also, but would save it for his news conference Thursday.

Asked if he agreed with the Speaker's tax statement, Ways and Means Chairman Robert L. Doughton told reporters:

"If it is necessary to avoid a deficit we will have to make an effort to raise some more money of course."

Doughton added:

"Tell the people that if they don't want any more taxes they will have to tell Congress to stop spending."

Rayburn said no decisions were reached as to coverage or amounts for old-age assistance and other benefits during the social security talks. He said Mr. Truman discussed social security very frankly, asked the views of the conferees, and stood on his previous messages to Congress on the subject.

In other quarters it was said that Mr. Truman said he recognized that controversies are bound to arise over some details of the program, and all of it may not be obtainable, but he was desirous of enacting as much of the program as he could.

Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee, which will open social security hearings February 28, held two separate closed meetings following their White House conference, to determine procedure on the bill.

After first deciding to ask legislative counsel to draft a preliminary bill as a "working base," majority members discussed using the Administration's own bill for this purpose.

Guided Missiles

3000-Mile Range Bill Is Advanced

A House Armed Services subcommittee yesterday speedily approved a bill to let the armed forces start work on a 3000-mile-long test range for guided missiles of the future.

Armed service officials had testified that they needed vastly improved testing facilities if they were to keep pace with the guided missile development of other nations.

The subcommittee approved the bill after only two days of hearings. But it authorized an appropriation of only 75 million dollars, compared to the 200 million dollars requested by defense officials.

Subcommittee Chairman Overton Brooks (D., La.), said 75 million dollars was all that was needed to get the project started.

"Perhaps in a few years, as these things developed, military officials will know exactly how much they will need," he said.

The proposed test range would consist of a huge launching site in this country, plus observation and landing areas along a 3000-mile air course. The end of the range might or might not be within the United States.

The bill authorizing the new range may be considered by the full House Armed Services Committee next Tuesday.

4. Give the President authority to purchase essential raw materials abroad, for (1) Government use, or (2) for resale in the United States.

5. Grant the Government limited control powers over the wages of workers employed in plants manufacturing articles under price controls. Under this provision, an employer could raise wages, but for six months thereafter could not use that wage increase as an argument for a higher price ceiling. A temporary wage board, to be set up under the proposal, could, however, raise wages in such plants if necessary to meet higher living costs, to correct inequities or to maintain production.

The proposed measure would authorize the President to employ an assistant to help coordinate the economic program, at a salary of $20,000.

The proposed legislation, according to a statement from Brannan, is necessary because of the following situation:

"Critical shortages of some essential materials and inadequacies of production capacities, together with pronounced and continued increases in some price levels, resulting in part from World War II, jeopardize employment opportunities and threaten national security and the carrying out of our foreign policy, and the general welfare, and the maintenance of economic stability."

Congress is already considering in committee hearings the first part of the program—export controls and a two-year extension of rent controls.

The third measure still to come will cover (1) amendments to the Commodity Exchange Act, to give Government more control over speculation in commodities, and (2) stiffer controls over bank reserves and consumer credits.

The new bill, giving legislative outline to Administration plans, came just after John D. Clark, one of President Truman's economic advisers warned that powerful inflationary influences are still endangering the Nation, and that unless checked could lead to an "ultimate crash."

Four factors that may send living costs spiralling upwards again, Clark said, are:

1. Mounting outlays for defense and foreign aid.

2. Prospects for Government deficit spending in April, as the Treasury comes to the end of its surplus accumulation period in March.

3. Easing of bank reserves, the source of bank credits.

4. Increase in farm employment.

Recent jumps in unemployment, Clark said, do not indicate more than a seasonal trend. He predicted the four factors he mentioned "will again tighten the labor market" and also that labor may seek more wage increases.

He declared that it would be foolhardy to believe that recent drops in food prices signal a healthy readjustment. "If this inflationary boom levels off by itself, it will be a new experience," he declared.

"The typical ending has been a sudden collapse followed by a rapid deflation, and the collapse has occurred unexpectedly when the business indexes are most favorable."

Clark noted that the price trend of 700 commodities, other than farm and food products, gained 5 per cent last year. The trend of those items, he said, is more important than that of food in fixing the course of the economy.

Girls Doff Hose as Gas Shreds Nylon

One of Several Hundred Victims

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 15 (U.P.).—Working girls went barelegged to lunch today, carrying their stockings in their purses, and hoped a "mystery gas" would spare their nylon underthings.

The magical process that produced nylon was being reversed on their tingling legs. Their stockings simply were coming apart and vanishing into the air from whence they were first herded into the test tube.

Some sort of gas diffused by a manufacturing plant apparently was responsible. The health department believed incompletely burned particles of fuel oil soot carry the gas. Worst-affected area was a two-block stretch on the edge of the financial and shopping district.

Dr. Herman F. Kurtz of the University of Georgia said sulphuric acid or vapor from chlorine water in the air was probably responsible. He said these vapors commonly attack and breakdown the polypeptide linkage, the organic chemical structure of nylon.

Because of the precautions, today's toll of nylons was not so heavy as yesterday's, when hundreds of girls watched horrified as the glamor fell away from their legs.

Pension Action Brings Uproar

erans measures, but the House leadership's recent rules reform makes it possible to skirt the Rules group.

If the Rules Committee refuses Rankin a rule, Rankin can take the bill directly to the floor of the House after 21 days, on designated "discharge" days, and Speaker Rayburn would have to recognize him.

Rankin told newsmen he will try to pass the bill before it goes to the Rules Committee, by moving Monday to suspend the rules and consider the bill.

Two thirds majority approval is required under this so-called "suspension" procedure, and the speaker has complete discretion to ignore Rankin's request.

The "walkout" on the Veterans Committee was led by Representative Walter B. Huber (D., Ohio), who charged Rankin produced a completely new version of the pension bill and asked the committee to approve it after only seven minutes' consideration.

The row developed after the committee struck from the bill, by a 14-to-5 vote, a provision paying $43.20 monthly to veterans at age 62.

Rankin asked for another vote and Huber claimed he had no authority under House rules to do so.

"You can take this vote without a quorum," he said, and stalked out.

Other members who left the room were Representatives Peter W. Rodino (N. J.), Earl Chudoff (Pa.), Harold A. Patten (Ariz.), Peter F. Mack, jr. (Ill.), and Harold D. Donohoe (Mass.), all Democrats, and Glen R. Davis (R., Wis.).

A quorum was still present after they left and Rankin again put the question. The committee again voted to strike out pensions for 62-year-old veterans, but left intact the $90 payments to 65-year-olds.

The committee then reported the bill, but there were sharply conflicting versions of what the vote was.

Huber took the floor to charge Rankin with "unfair tactics" in putting the bill to a vote "without proper consideration." Chudoff backed up Huber, charging Rankin acted "in a dictatorial manner." Rodino said he, too, was opposed to "undemocratic procedures."

Rankin retorted that if Huber had stayed "and done his duty, he wouldn't have any gripe." He added: "The committee voted twice to sustain the chairman."

Huber told newsmen that Rankin plans to bring before the committee next a multibillion-dollar veterans' bonus bill.

Administration Democrats charged privately that Rankin pushed the bill out of the committee to embarrass the Democratic leadership, which ousted him from the House Un-American Activities Committee at the outset of the session.

Rankin's original bill would have started pensions to veterans at $60 at age 60. It would also have provided nonservice-connected disability pensions to veterans. These two provisions were eliminated from the committee version.

Any veteran would be eligible for the $90-a-month pension at 65, regardless of need, if he had served 90 days in the armed forces and had not been dishonorably discharged.

Bill Proposes Rent Controls For 15 Months

A bill to extend rent control for 15 months is expected to be reported tto the House early next week, The Washington Post learned yesterday.

Several members of the House Banking and Currency Committee indicated their belief that the Administration, which has asked 24 months extension, will have to accept instead the 15 months term.

They believe the shorter period will give Congress a better chance to view extension of rent control next year in the light of the economic situation at that time and also in the light of what has been accomplished to remedy the housing shortage.

Landlords Protest

The committee yesterday heard from protesting landlords who assailed rent control as the real cause of the housing shortage and an "un-American" measure leading to "confiscation of property."

John E. Owen, president of the National Apartment Owners Association, told the House group that rent control "has served to drive hundreds of thousands of housing units out of the rental market."

Tenants, he said, place other considerations higher than the money amount of the rentals.

"We have learned from many years in the renting business," he said, "that the tenant's first requirement is not necessarily low rent, but that his desires fall more or less in this order: First, the right of occupancy and the right to regard his dwelling unit as his own home as long as he fulfills the responsibilities of a tenant, Second, serenity of occupancy, with pleasant relationships with the owner, other tenants and neighbors alike. Third, comforts and services and the physical appearances and atmosphere of the unit and the building in which he lives. And last, the amount of rent he has to pay in order to get the first three.

Has Unfortunate Result

"One of the most unfortunate results of rent control is that the item of fourth importance has arbitrarily been placed first for him, and it has in many cases jeopardized the first three. Artificial low rentals have made his right of occupancy less secure; have disturbed his serenity of occupancy—and have greatly lessened his services and comforts. Under our economic system, it is only out of the property owner's rental returns that he can restore services and accommodations and provide buildings and equipment that tenants desire."

Owen told the committee that the "original justification" for rent control has now ceased to exist—"that the wartime emergency which created these conditions has long been over."

Meanwhile, on the Senate side the United States Chamber of Commerce yesterday urged Congress to junk the housing bills it is now considering.

Shortage Held Ended

George W. West of Atlanta, Ga., chairman of the chamber's construction and civic development committee, argued that "the critical shortage in housing now has been overcome."

West told a Senate housing subcommittee:

"The Chamber of Commerce of the United States is of the firm conviction that any proposal to launch the Federal Government into a long-term program of housing and urban-redevelopment subsidies is ill-advised at any time, but particularly so under present shortening economic conditions and the need for curbing Government expenditures."

Chairman John Sparkman (D., Ala.), however, has said the subcommittee expects to have a bill ready for Senate consideration next week.

Lucas Asserts

Rules Fight Won't Delay 'Must' Bills

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas said yesterday he wouldn't let an antifilibuster fight tie up Administration bills.

The fight is due to come in the Senate on a proposal to close a loophole in present antifilibuster rules. Southern Democrats are committed to filibuster the rules change as their first line of defense against civil rights legislation.

Lucas announced his position after a meeting of the Democratic Policy Committee, of which he is chairman.

Republicans Displeased

He told reporters that any time a important Administration bill is ready for floor debate he will move to lay aside the rules fight and take up the other business.

Republicans who have been pressing for the rules change were displeased. Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.), said the rule never will be changed under Lucas' system. And unless it is changed, Knowland added, the civil rights legislation never will be adopted.

When reporters suggested to Lucas that his procedure would play into the hands of Southern Senators, he told newsmen to "draw your own conclusionse."

Resolution Due Thursday

Lucas said the Senate Rules Committee will formally submit the antifilibuster resolution to the Senate Thursday. He would not set a date for beginning debate, the signal for a Dixie talkathon.

Lucas said the Policy Committee decided to take up Thursday a House-approved bill to extend the life of War Assets Administration until June 30. That will be followed by a bill to extend Maritime Commission authority to operate, charter and sell merchant vessels.

Lucas said other bills scheduled for early action are an extension of rent control and Federal Housing Administration functions, both of which are now under committee consideration.

Airlift Plane Crashes, Crew of 3 Escapes

Berlin, Feb. 15 (AP).—An American airlift plane crashed and burned tonight 10 miles north of Celle in the British occupation zone, but the three-man crew escaped alive.

Members of the crew were Capt. W. F. Thompson, pilot; Staff Sergt. S. E. Stickland, engineer, and Lieut. C. L. Weaver, copilot. Thompson suffered a leg injury, Stickland a cut on one leg and Weaver minor cuts and bruises.

The plane, a four-engine Skymaster, was returning from Berlin.

MacArthur's Plea for More Troops Denied

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's request for more American troops in Japan has been rejected, Secretary of the Army Royall said yesterday.

"He was told it would be impractical to put more troops over there," Royall said after returning from an 18-day inspection trip through the Pacific area. He spent six days in Japan.

Whether to build up America's military strength there has been a behind-the-scenes issue for months. MacArthur, supreme Allied commander in Japan, is understood to have reported to the War Department that Communist advances in China have upset Japan's strategic situation.

No Changes Contemplated

Royall confirmed that MacArthur previously had expressed the hope he could be allowed more troops, and brought up the matter again during the Secretary's visit.

No change is contemplated either in troop strength or command in Japan, Royall said.

Back of this development is a long argument which dates back to the early years of the war. One school of thought contends that the Far East is vastly important, and should receive more attention from military planners in Washington.

Washington officials, on the other hand, reply that even the United States is not strong enough to keep a global defense line uniformly powerful, and that it must concentrate its strength where it will do the most good. In the view of these officials, Europe must have priority over the Far East.

No Discussion of Return

Royall said there was no discussion of MacArthur coming back to the United States.

"He didn't say anything, and I didn't," Royall said.

Latest available figures on comparative U. S. troop strength in Europe and the Pacific area are several months old. At that time there were reported to be about 96,000 in Europe, and about 125,000 in MacArthur's command which takes in Japan, Okinawa and other islands.

However, the European force supposedly included a heavier proportion of air power than that in the Orient, tending to offset the difference in the size of the ground forces.

Republicans Ask China Policy Study

NYHT News Service

Fifty-one Republican Congressmen asked President Truman yesterday to appoint a top-level military, economic and political commission to reexamine immediately our policy toward China in the light of recent Communist victories.

"In our opinion, victory of the Communists in China would be a monumental and historic defeat for us, and a grave threat to our national security," the Congressmen declared.

This move coincided with a statement by Chinese Ambassador Wellington Koo that the Nationalist Government is unwilling to make peace with the Communists "without freedom."

The Congressional move was sponsored by Representative Robert Hale of Maine. Among the signers was Representative James W. Wadsworth (N. Y.). Hale said it was not intended as a partisan move, but that many Democrats who were of the same opinion withheld their signatures. The appeal called attention to the contradiction between our apparent toleration of Communist expansion in China and our determined opposition to it in Europe.

Communist victory, the joint declaration said, "could not fail to impress and influence those peoples who have no natural affiliations with communism, but whose continued resistance is threatened by Communist aggression and intrigue. Such a victory would enormously multiply the hazards of war."

Truman Sees Plane Gains at Air Show

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Air Force put on a dazzling demonstration of the Nation's latest warplanes for their Commander in Chief yesterday and Mr. Truman pronounced it "excellent."

Several hundred Cabinet members, Senators, Representatives, newsmen and top-ranking service brass also witnessed the "Progress in Air Power" show at Andrews Air Force Base.

They came away visibly impressed with the vast strides made in fighting aircraft since war days—shown in the sharp contrast between the wartime Mustangs and Flying Fortresses and races staged between a 600-plus miles per hour jet bomber and two jet fighters.

There was no immediate evidence, however, as to what influence the aerial acrobatics and speed runs may have on the coming Capitol Hill battle over air power. The impending tug-of-war between the Administration and congressional big air force partisans was at the back of most everyone's minds during the show.

Staged for Committees

Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington set up the demonstration at the request of Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee. Originally, it was intended only for members of the Senate and House legislative and appropriations committees dealing with military matters. Then Mr. Truman decided to attend.

Congress is expected to vote before many weeks on a proposal by Vinson to divert 800 million dollars which the President asked for universal military training to expanding the Air Force beyond what Mr. Truman has proposed for next year. The latter almost evenly divided his military budget between the Army, Navy and Air Force. Vinson and other Congressmen want to put the emphasis on air power.

Regardless of these top level policy matters, there was every indication that the President and legislators thoroughly enjoyed yesterday's show.

Asked for his impressions as he left Andrews, Mr. Truman told reporters:

"It was a good show, an excellent show."

The Northrop YB-49 "Flying Wing" and Boeing XB-47 jet bomber impressed him the most, he added.

"Wing" Order Cancelled

Earlier, he'd remarked jokingly "I'll buy that" after climbing into the cockpit of the "Wing." The chevron-shaped B-49 can carry a bombload of over 15 tons, yet has a speed in excess of 500 mph.

Air Force chiefs, however, recently cancelled their production order of the "Wing" in order to make funds available for more of the giant Convair B-36 bombers. The model shown here yesterday is the only one in existence or planned now. Two others have crashed.

Before the aerial show started, Symington led Mr. Truman through a hangar full of exhibits, including such signs as "The Meaning of Air Power" and "The Key to Air Power—Time, Money and Facilities."

Looking at a cutaway model of a jet engine, the President jibed, "It looks just like a threshing machine." But most of the time he seriously questioned crews of planes as to their speed and fuel consumption.

F-80 Too Slow for Truman

Symington offered to give the President a ride in the two-seater training version of the F-80 Shooting Star jet fighter. Mr. Truman declared that the 600-mile an hour F-80 was too slow for him, that he'd rather take a flight in the B-47. This is the jet bomber which recently set an unofficial transcontinental speed record, crossing the country in 3 hours and 46 minutes.

A little later, his remarks were borne out. The B-47 pulled away from an F-80 in a low level 600-plus mph speed run before the reviewing stand. In the next event, however, a North American F-86 fighter left the B-47 behind in a similar speed run. The F-86 holds the world speed record for fully equipped fighters, with a mark of 670.9 mph.

Jato Takeoff Impressive

Perhaps the most impressive event of the show, however, was the Jato takeoff of the B-47. With a roar of rockets which left a dense white smoke screen, the plane arose like a fighter at an angle of 45 degrees.

Rivaling this show was an acrobatic exhibition put on by five F-80 Shooting Stars from Brig. Gen. Yantis H. Taylor's Fourth Fighter Wing at Andrews. Doing "slow rolls"—just off the ground and then "Cuban eights" high above the stands, they kept the crowd gaping.

Mr. Truman also showed interest in the huge B-36 bombers. Sixteen of the—the greatest number flown in formation before—thundered by the grandstand to end the show. While looking over the B-36 on the ground, a reporter asked the President if he thought the craft "would ever replace the Field Artillery."

'Auxiliary for Artillery'

"No," replied the former commanding officer of Battery D, with a grin. "But it might make a good auxiliary for the artillery."

Seventy Congressmen and 32 Senators attended the show. Other officials included Defense Secretary James Forrestal, Attorney General Tom C. Clark, Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson, Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder, Army Secretary Kenneth Royall, Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan, the new chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, and the three military chiefs of the armed services, Gen. Omar Bradley, Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg and Adm. Louis Denfeld.

Termed a Spy

Soviet Tells U. S. Writer To Get Out

ANNA LOUISE STRONG
Arrested in Moscow

Moscow, Feb. 15 (AP).—Anna Louise Strong, American author and journalist ordered deported from the Soviet Union as a spy, is a prolific writer who has consistently expressed pronounced pro-Soviet views. The reportation order was announced early today.

The Moscow press, announcing her arrest and the order for her deportation, described her as "the well-known intelligence operator." It reported she had entered Russia as a consequence of the carelessness of certain foreign relations officials."

Miss Strong is listed here as a correspondent for the Allied Labor News. She is one of seven American correspondents in Moscow.

Miss Strong married Joel Shubin, a Russian government press relations official, in 1932. He died 10 years later.—Editor's note.)

She is the second American within a year to be accused of spying and ordered expelled. Robert Magidoff, correspondent for NBC, the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co., and the British Exchange Telegraph news agency, and his wife were asked to leave the country April 15, 1948.

Miss Strong once gave English lessons to Leon Trotzky, revolutionary leader whom Soviet Russia expelled in 1928.

Washington turned a puzzled eye upon the Russian order for expulsion of Miss Strong. The accusation that she is a spy, working against the USSR, is in strange contrast with her writings, which have a pronounced pro-Soviet flavor.

(Dispatches from Moscow, which are subject to censorship, have not explained what the Russians accuse Miss Strong of doing, saying or writing.)

On a trip to the United States last summer Miss Strong supported the presidential candidacy of Henry A. Wallace. There is no record that she made any statements contrary to her writings that she "loved" Russia and the Russians.

At various times since she first went to Moscow in 1921 she has written in defense and praise of the scheme of things in the Soviet Union—the spirit of the people, the way the government operates, the economic planning, some of its purges, and Russian international aims, among other things. She even singled out Moscow's garbage disposal system for praise.

Washington records give Miss Strong's age as 64. They disclose she has been in and out of Moscow repeatedly since 1921. She was in China in 1946-47.

Soviet Says U. S. Probe Demand Is Spy Trick

By John G. Rogers

Lake Success, N. Y., Feb. 15 (NYHT).—The Soviet Union told the United Nations today that the United States demands an investigation of slave labor charges against Russia because the American Government wants its intelligence agents to have a chance to poke around in little-known areas of Russia.

"This trick will not work," Russian Delegate Semen K. Tsarapkin told the U. N. Economic and Social Council. "The Soviet Union is not Turkey or Greece, and it does not want American gauleiters. Traveling in the Soviet Union is forbidden to haters of the Soviet Union."

The main developments in the Council's propaganda battle over Russian slave labor, as the debate entered its second day, were these:

1. The American Federation of Labor, which originally raised the demand for a U. N. investigation, submitted 13 affidavits from former inmates of Russian labor camps, one of whom estimated that the Soviet Union holds perhaps 10 million persons in cruel conditions of forced work.

2. The United States, while supporting the AFL demand for an inquiry by the International Labor Organization, submitted a resolution asking the ILO merely to give further study to the problem of forced labor.

3. Britain, Chile, Turkey and Belgium supported the American resolution, which is somewhat of an academic resolution, because the Soviet Union would never submit to an investigation of its labor camps by foreigners.

In the speech for Britain, Christopher P. Mayhew, Undersecretary of State, asserted that there is overwhelming evidence that the Soviet Union operates big slave labor camps, in which perhaps two million Germans are among the prisoners.

"If the Soviet Union is proud of its camps," he asked, "and not ashamed of them, why does it hide them from view to an extent which even Hitler never found necessary, even in respect of his concentration camps? Forced labor camps are spreading westward, following the hammer and sickle."

Tsarapkin defended his country largely by attacking the United States. The United States, he said, was adopting Nazi tactics by trying to astound the world with gigantic falsehoods. He said that the AFL document was "a filthy libel," designed to distract American labor from its own predicament of exploitation by capitalism.

He assailed the Taft-Hartley Act as forbidding workers to associate together. He charged that the AFL is a tool of the State Department, and that its member unions discriminate against Negroes.

The AFL representative, Miss Toni Sender, spoke for a second time after Tsarapkin finished. She asked how, if American labor was so cruelly exploited, it had been able to give Russia so much lend-lease material during the war?

U. N. Plane Carrying 3 Missing in Holy Land

Tel Aviv, Israel, Feb. 15 (U.P.).—A twin-engined United Nations plane, missing with three British crew members aboard, was believed today to have crashed in the snow-covered hills of Galilee.

An Israeli communique tonight said Israeli troops saw Syrian forces firing on a plane along the south shore of Lake Hula near the Syrian-Palestine frontier.

Britain Plans Defense Fund Of 3 Billion

London, Feb. 15 (AP).—Britain tonight proposed increasing her defense budget by almost 10 per cent to $3,039,440,000 in the next fiscal year.

This compares with estimates of $2,770,400,000 for the Army, Navy and Air Force for the fiscal year ending March 31.

Some of the increase will go for higher pay to the armed forces, but most of it, the Government announced in a white paper, will be used for new equipment and modernization of present war machines.

The white paper said Royal Air Force squadrons will be reequipped with the latest type of jet aircraft.

Modernization of the Army's tanks, radar and radio also is planned.

"The services must be ready, if need be, to fight with the weapons of today," the Government said.

It is planned to call 174,000 draftees under the Compulsory Service Act during the next fiscal year.

Mexican Peso Off In Gold Scramble

Mexico City, Feb. 15 (AP).—Mexico's peso dropped today as a result of a scramble for gold. The peso closed at 7.10 to the dollar after opening at 6.9025.

Since the International Monetary Fund approved sale of South Africa's newly mined gold at $38.20 a troy ounce, instead of the $35 in effect since 1933, there has been a steady demand for gold coins which individuals can buy here.

Dispatches on the gold situation in morning papers stimulated demand. Buyers asked for gold at all banks this forenoon but the banks promptly halted sales. Buyers then apparently felt anxious about their peso and tried to buy dollars.

Rural Telephone Measure Fought By Independents

By The Associated Press

The United States Independent Telephone Association protested yesterday that a bill to expand rural telephone service would "instantly threaten and ultimately completely destroy" its 6000 member companies.

These are the small concerns, outside the Bell System, which operate in 11,000 cities, villages and communities, and serve "almost 70 per cent of the rural area of the United States."

Speaking for the association was William C. Henry, president of the Northern Ohio Telephone Co., Bellevue, Ohio. He appeared before a House Agriculture Subcommittee which is considering a bill to provide loans for telephone service such as the Rural Electrification Administration now supplies for power lines.

Either the REA or private companies could build up rural phone service under the measure.

Henry said there is no restriction in the bill to prevent the REA from duplicating existing telephone facilities.

U. S. Stops War Goods Trade At 'Curtain,' Porter Explains

Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 15 (AP).—The United States will not permit strategic materials to go to the Soviet Union and its satellites, American Delegate Paul R. Porter told a United Nations trade conference here today.

Replying to a concerted Communist attack on the United States' system of export licenses, Porter declared:

"It is the policy of the United States to encourage trade which fosters peace and recovery. We do not wish to encourage types of trade which endanger peace."

Soviet Delegate Vladimir Gerashchenko had previously told the 25-nation trade committee of the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe that the American export restrictions were an obstruction to a revival of trade between east and west Europe.

"So long as the Soviet Union pursues a policy which hundreds of millions of people through the world regard as aggressive," Porter said, "the United States will not aggravate the risks to peace-loving countries by shipping goods of significant military value to the Soviet Union or nations controlled by it.

"There is room for a large volume of trade between east and west European countries which serves purposes of peace and is of mutual benefit to the participating countries."

Pope Will Address 400,000 on Sunday

Vatican City, Feb. 15 (AP).—Pope Pius XII will make another major pronouncement Sunday on the trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty. He will address a demonstration by Catholic Action on the square before St. Peter's Church.

Leaders of the lay organization estimate about 400,000 persons will attend the demonstration, called to protest Hungary's trial of the cardinal.

Informed sources said the Pope, who has made two major pronouncements since Cardinal Mindszenty was sentenced a week ago to life imprisonment, will appear on the balcony of St. Peter's basilica at 11 a. m. (5 a. m. EST).

Hungarian Offer Reported

Amid these preparations, the Vatican gave scant attention to a declaration by a Communist spokesman in Budapest, Josef Revai, that Hungary gave the Holy See an outline of the charges and an opportunity to remove Cardinal Mindszenty before acting against him.

"The Vatican never descends to such compromises," an informed source said, without confirming or denying such a proposition was received. He said "the Catholic clergymen live with their own people."

The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano declared Revai's statement was fantastic. The newspaper said the Hungarian government "felt the need of justifying before the masses what it dared to do to the Cardinal." It said the government had wanted the elimination of the Cardinal through life imprisonment or a transfer to Rome and the charges against him were "so much material for blackmail."

Diplomatic Reception Wednesday

Still another opportunity for the Pope to speak his mind on the Mindszenty case will be offered at a reception Wednesday of the diplomatic corps accredited to the Holy See. Diplomats representing 36 nations sought the interview to express their sympathy.

Diplomatic informants said it was understood the message of sympathy would term the trial an invasion of religious, personal and political liberty. It was not determined whether the Pope will chose to make a public reply.

The United States will be represented by Franklin C. Gowen, special assistant to Myron C. Taylor. Taylor, President Truman's personal envoy to the Vatican, is now in the United States.

Treaty Waits

Red Delays Snag Austria Peace Talks

London, Feb. 15 (U.P.).—Big Four efforts to write an Austrian peace treaty bogged down today and Western diplomats believed the Russians were playing for time.

The West offered a slight concession on Soviet demands for Austrian oil, but Russia failed to respond. Later the Soviets won postponement of a committee meeting that planned to invite the testimony of Yugoslav Foreign Minister Ales Bebler.

The Big Four deputies sparred at length over Russia's proposals to extract oil and Danube River shipping concessions, and 150 million dollars in reparations from Austria.

East and West were in virtual agreement on how many oil concessions Russia should receive. But the treaty would be based on percentages of Austria's facilities.

United States Delegate Samuel Reber said he was prepared to increase the percentages that would go to Russia if the Soviets would name the specific properties they wanted.

Soviet Delegate Gorge Zarubin refused. He said such a listing would be "premature," and should be preceded by agreement on the exact percentage figures.

The deputies also had a brief exchange over Russia's demands for 150 million dollars from Austria. The Soviet would force Austria to pay this amount within six years in United States money.

Reber reiterated the American stand that the lump payment should be about 100 million dollars and payable in goods, instead of dollars.

This was exactly where the East and West stood—deadlocked—nine months ago when the talks were recessed.

The committee on writing a letter to Bebler could not decide when he should testify and scheduled another meting for later today. The Russians unexpectedly asked postponement of that meeting. Yugoslavia wants 150 million dollars in reparations and 728 square miles of Austrian territory.

Soviet Troops On Move Again

Berlin, Feb. 15 (AP).—Extensive Russian troop movements in the Soviet zone of Germany, and aerial and submarine maneuvers in the western Baltic were reported today.

Neue Zeitung, official German newspaper of the American military government, which published the reports, also said refugee Balts told of huge new military installations being built by the Russians in the Baltic states with what seemed to be "remarkable haste." These were said to include big underground airports and gasoline depots in Estonia and Latvia and a base for sending up rocket bombs.

The newspaper said the troop movements centered at Mecklenburg, northwest of Berlin.

It described the Russians as holding most of their occupation strength in the "immediate hinterland of the Baltic Sea, graduated to the north and northwest," with strongest concentrations near the border of the British zone.

Meanwhile, the Russian-licensed newspaper Berliner Zeitung warned two non-Communist political parties in the Russian zone they must yield to the Communists or face reprisals.

"There is no future in this," said the newspaper, as it accused the rebel elements in the Christian Democratic and Liberal Democratic parties of refusing to enter "bloc politics" arrangements with the Communists.

Czech Given Life in 'Plot'

Prague, Feb. 15 (AP).—Gen. Rajmund Mrazek, 52, was convicted today of plotting with Britain and the United States against the Czechoslovak Republic. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

This is one of a series of trials in progress or planned, based on roughly similar charges. Unconfirmed reports say several hundred officers have been arrested since December, charged with plotting to overthrow the Communist regime.

One of those on trial with General Mrazek was acquitted. He is Capt. Milan Pika, son of Gen. Heliodor Pika, condemned to be hanged as a plotter. Captain Pika was acquitted of conspiracy to rescue his father from prison and spirit him into the American zone of Germany.

Mindszenty Judge Reported to Have Fled

Vienna, Feb. 15 (AP).—American authorities said today they have received a tip that one of the judges in the trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty has fled from Hungary to Austria.

Four lay judges, drawn from a workers panel, sat in the trial. The presiding judge was a professional jurist, Vilmos Olti.

Connally Sets Pact Formula

form of words was virtually everything the State Department had been seeking in its negotiations with Canada and the so-called Western Union nations of Europe.

It was true that Connally did not say what kind of measures might be taken, and especially did not use the words "military or other measures" which the European governments wanted included.

Patterned on Charter

Nevertheless the words "such measures as it may deem necessary" were patterned closely on Araticle 51 of the Charter, which says:

Nothing in the present Charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defense if an armed attack occurs against a member of the United Nations, until the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to maintain international peace and security."

Uncomfortable Day

Prior to Connally's statement, the State Department and some foreign embassies had had an uncomfortable day over reports of his Monday speech, and over the shocked reaction reported from Europe.

Secretary Acheson could think of nothing to say except to plead for restraint by the press. Reporters questioned him after he had testified on the European recovery program at a secret session of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

They asked whether the European negotiators wanted the United States to be "morally obligated" to go to war.

"I don't want to talk about those things," the Secretary answered. "All they can do is cause trouble." And he advised the press not to go around getting statements from him and from Senators, then getting reactions from Europe and "putting one against the other."

"We've all got to be restrained," he said.

Agreement in Jeopardy

One reason for his plea, it was learned last night, was the fear that the Senate debate and public controversy at this time might make it harder to reach final agreement on the draft of the treaty.

Some of the European negotiators are afraid that public clamor at home may commit them to hard-and-fast positions on points that are still in dispute, and may make compromise slower and more difficult.

The State Department insisted yesterday, however, that existing differences concerned methods rather than aims.

Press Officer Lincoln White said the Department still hoped to make enough information public before the signing of the treaty "so that there will be sufficient time for public analysis and understanding of its objectives."

Senator Connally has already insisted on secrecy until his committee has had a chance to examine the present draft and until existing disagreements are resolved.

Scandinavian Premiers Meet in Oslo Thursday

Hamburg, Germany, Feb. 15 (AP).—Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvard Lange will give a first-hand report on his Washington and London talks when he meets Scandinavian Premiers Thursday in Oslo, Danish Foreign Minister Gustav Rasmussen said tonight.

Rasmussen passed through Hamburg en route to Paris for a meeting of the Orgaization for European Economic Cooperation (OEEC).

Lange discussed with British and American leaders responsibilities Norway will face if she enters the proposed North Atlantic security alliance.

Rasmussen said the premiers will be in Oslo Thursday for a routine labor party meeting.

scare off possible signers whose sympathies are with the West, but who are under immediate pressure from the Soviet Union.

"Just when all our hopes were being built into the Atlantic pact, the United States is reported to be hedging on the terms," said the conservative London Mail.

It declared the peaceful countries of the world "helped to bring about the Second World War not by criminal intent, but by contributory negligence," and added:

"They will muddle into a third world war unless they learn the lesson of the past. War can be avoided only if the Western powers make themselves so strong as to be unassailable."

The liberal Manchester Guardian expressed hope that such prospective pact members as Norway are not disheartened "to learn that their strongest partner shares their own reluctance to delegate supreme authority to the executive."

Other Reactions

In French official quarters no such disheartenment was evident.

"The greater the guarantee the better," said one official, "but we understand the pact must be acceptable to the Senate and in conformity with the Constitution.

"The wording is not so important as the intention which the pact symbolizes."

He expressed regret, however, that earlier reports on probable commitments under the pact might have led the public to think it would be much stronger than is now likely.

At The Hague, an official Dutch source said his country considers anything less than an ironclad guarantee of mutual military support by the signers as a weakening of the pact.

It was reported at the Dutch capital that Ambassador Eelco Van Kleffens expressed this concern informally to the United States State Department.

Bethesda Man Indicted For Income Tax Evasion

By The Associated Press

Louis M. Jackson, a Bethesda (Md.) electric repairman, was indicted today by a Baltimore Federal grand jury on charges of attempting to evade $6944 in income taxes.

The Government charged that the 47-year-old father of seven children understated his income for 1943-46 by $30,000. Norman P. Ramseye, assistant United States attorney, told the jurors that Jackson claimed a loss of $2286 in 1946 when actually his taxible income was $12,791.

Premier Sun Offers to Quit In Peace Rift

Nanking, Feb. 15 (AP).—Premier Sun Fo, who split with Acting President Li Tsung-jen on the issue of peace for China, offered today to step down.

His request for permission to "take a rest"—the Chinese way of offering to resign—was brought to Nanking from Canton by President Yu Yu-jen of the Control Yuan (the impeaching branch of the government).

Yu declined to say what Li's reaction was. Other sources said the Acting President had messaged Sun urging him to remain. (This, by Chinese custom, could be just a gesture.)

These sources said if Sun quits, Li will try to prevail on Gen. Ho Ying-chin, an old friend, to take the job.

General Ho, former Defense Minister, is in Nanking now. He said he came here for a rest but his arrival touched off a series of high-level conferences.

Li was opposed to Sun's moving off to Canton with the Executive Yuan (cabinet) and most of the government offices. He also was reported irked by various Sun statements in Canton which belabored the tough Communist terms for negotiations. Li was said to feel these statements made his position that much more difficult.

There were reports that General Ho will go to Hankow shortly to talk with Gen. Pai Cung-Hsi, close friend of Li, who commands government troops at that central Chinese base.

(Li, Ho and Pai worked together in a military junta which ran China for a while in 1927 during an earlier "retirement" of Chiang Kai-shek. Now the three might be able to weld a solid front to present to the Communists during negotiations for a peace.

Greek Army's Victory Hailed

Athens, Feb. 15 (U.P.).—American observers here said today the Greek army had made its most promising effort so far in the civil war by driving back the guerilla force which attacked Florina near the Albanian border last week.

These sources believed it the worst defeat yet inflicted on the guerillas.

The government claimed 600 dead, 300 captured, and more than 1200 wounded. This would account for more than half the guerilla striking force, estimated at 4000.

Military observers said much of the credit for the army's improved performance should go to Gen. Alexander Papagos, new armed forces commander. They said when Papagos took over last month, he cleared the deadwood from the general staff in a drastic shakeup.

These sources said the dismissal of the Communist commander, Gen. Markos Vafiades, also probably contributed to the guerilla defeat. They based this on the fact that some captured guerillas said many of the troops were not pleased by the change in command.

Spaak Heads Unit To Speed Up ERP

Paris, Feb. 15 (AP).—Paul-Henri Spaak was named today to direct a new executive group aimed to speed up Europe's recovery. Spaak is Premier and Foreign Minister of Belgium and a former president of the United Nations General Assembly.

Foreign and economic ministers of nine western European nations, agreed in a secret, three-hour meeting that Spaak should head a group of cabinet-rank statesmen at the helm of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation.

The new group was hailed here as a potential economic council of Europe, the counterpart in the economic field to the European council and consultative assembly now being formed to promote continental unity on the political plane.

Nations represented on the OEEC executive committee are Britain, France, Italy, The Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey.

Scope of Authority

The proposed new board would have authority to make public recommendations on major issues and power to decide secondary ones. This step, the conferees felt, would give the OEEC greater impetus and greater prestige in working various and somewhat conflicting national recovery programs into a long-range reconstruction schedule with United States aid.

Today's decisions are still subject to approval by the OEEC's 19-member general council Thursday.

At the same time, W. Averell Harriman, special representative of the American Economic Cooperation Administration in Europe, told a news conference that measures to strengthen the OEEC are "Europe's business and should be decided by Europeans."

He was commenting on suggestions that the United States might have some ideas on how this should be done.

Harriman, just back from Washington, said he had heard "strong views" expressed within the Administration and by members of Congress on the necessity for European "joint action" for recovery.

Congressional leaders, he said, thought the OEEC should wield greater powers in the development of cooperative measures toward prosperity.

He said the feeling in Washington was that "small countries with isolated economies" could not provide the better standard of living which the European Recovery Program seeks for Europe.

Spaak Proposed Five-Man Group

Spaak proposed, it was learned, that the OEES establish a new five-man executive group with wider powers to make major decisions in coordinating the various national programs into a unified European recovery schedule.

The schedule is aimed at making the continent independent of American aid by 1952, when the United States European Recovery Program (ERP) is slated to end. The OEEC is the European organization which cooperates with ECA in carrying out the ERP.

him that the group was from the International Red Cross.

(Werner Plack, former German Foreign Office official, had testified earlier in the trial to accompanying Miss Gillars and Prof. Otto Kolschwitz, Nazi radio official, on such trips as that described.

After Chestnut identified the voice of Miss Gillars in a playback of the recorded interview as picked up by United States monitors, he was asked by Assistant Prosecutor Noel Story:

"If you had known that the interview would have had this introduction and closing (referring to the propaganda slant) would you have made the recording?"

The defendant appeared ready to answer in the negative but was cut off by an objection by Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin. Federal Judge Edward M. Curran sustained the objection.

Broadcast Comments

(The propaganda preface and conclusion referred to by Story contained such comments as: "And so now I've . . . realized their (the United States soldiers') great, great disillusionment . . . and how practically to a man they've said to me 'We would never, never fight another war.'

"When I talked to them at the beginning of this year they said, 'Ah, we'll be home for Easter.' Humph! Well, they're still over here . . .")

The second ex-GI witness, Allan Clark, Pontiac, Mich., interviewed at the same time as Chestnut, said Miss Gillars represented herself as being from the Red Cross and quoted her as telling them: "Don't worry, boys; it (the interview) goes through the Red Cross."

The morning session opened with Jan deVries, 26, former Dutch radio crooner, resuming the stand.

The witness said he had been ordered by Nazi authorities to sing on one of Miss Gillars' propaganda broadcasts, but that he refused to speak into the microphone when urged to do so by the defendant.

"She Was Furious"

"She was furious and said I'd hear more about it later," the tall, youthful singer testified.

"I asked her why she was doing this work, and she said she hated the British first and Roosevelt second," he declared.

"I asked her if she wasn't putting her neck in danger," deVries continued, "and she didn't answer."

Later, DeVries stated he was placed in a concentration camp for a while, but there was no testimony linking his arrest with the studio incident.

Laughlin has filed a motion to have the Government pay transportation and other expenses of two additional defense witnesses now in Germany.

Two defense witnesses were flown here last week at Government expense, after Kelley acquiesced. The Justice Department prosecutor indicated yesterday he was undecided as to compliance in the new request.

'Peace' Aims Told at Trial

Paris, Feb. 15 (AP).—A Russian general used the forum of a libel trial today to proclaim the Soviet Union "wants only peace."

The declaration was made by Lieut. Gen. Leomid Rudenko, who headed a Russian purchasing commission in Washington in 1943-44.

Rudenko appeared as a witness against Victor A. Kravchenko—his one-time employe. Kravchenko is suing a pro-Communist French weekly newspaper for its attacks on Kravchenko's book "I Chose Freedom."

Kravchenko is a tool of "reactionary American forces" who are seeking a new war, said Rudenko, who appeared in uniform.

"Ridiculous," replied Kravchenko.

"We want only peace," said Rudenko.

"Still, you have grabbed up half of Europe," said Kravchenko.

Rudenko said that, in quitting the purchasing commission in Washington during the war and giving anti-Soviet interviews to newspapers, Kravchenko had aided the Germans.

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—Ch. Mazelaine Zarzarax Brandy, a boxer owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Phelps Wagner of Milwaukee, was selected tonight as the best dog in the Westminster Kennel Club Show.

The 3-year-old dog defeated five other winners of variety group awards in the finals and survived an original field of 2562 canine bluebloods, all holders of American Kennel Club prizes.

As grand champion, the boxer succeeds Ch. Rock Ridge Night Rocket, a Bedlington terrier from the Greenwich, Conn., kennels of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Rockefeller, who entered the show as favorite but was eliminated in the group competition.

Ch. Twin Ponds Belle, a Welsh terrier, scored the biggest upset of the show when she gained the finals by defeating Rock Ridge Night Rocket in the terrier breed competitions.

Thorp Denies Europe Export Threat to U. S.

By The Associated Press

The revival of Europe's exports under the Marshall Plan entails no threat to the future of American foreign trade, Assistant Secretary of State Willard L. Thorp said yesterday.

If this country should fail to continue "substantial" dollar help, Thorp said, Europe will be unable to maintain a high level of imports from the United States.

"With European recovery, on the other hand, it seems reasonable to assume that with the exception of some specific items like coal our exports should continue at high levels to Europe," Thorp said.

Thorp, who is in charge of economic affairs at the State Department, appeared before the Senate-House Economic Committee. The group is considering the need for antiinflation measures.

Lively Trade Expected

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee meanwhile studied advices that despite the cold war, a lively three billion trade is expected in the next two years between western Europe and Communist-controlled countries.

The Economic Cooperation Administration made the estimate in a progress report. It said western Europe in the 1949-50 period will export $1,490,000,000 worth of goods to eastern Europe. Imports from the East are estimated at $1,680,000,000.

ECA is encouraging this trade, the report said, but only "within the limits of national security."

The East-West trade last year totaled $1,951,600,000, ECA estimated.

The report said machinery, steel and other industrial products are going into eastern Europe in return for coal, timber, grains and potash.

Studying Aid Program

The Foreing Relations Committee, simultaneously with the Senate-House group, is studying ECA's new $5,580,000,000 aid program.

Secretary of State Acheson, a witness before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, told reporters the State Department is trying to encourage "the political, economic, fiscal—any kind of unity that can grow naturally" in Europe.

Bias Denied

N. Y. Jury Selection Is Defended

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—The office of the Federal Court jury clerk here has lists of Negroes to serve as possible jurors, a Government witness testified today at the trial of 11 top United States Communists.

The witness was Joseph F. McKenzie, the jury clerk, who is the prosecution's first witness in its counterattack against a defense challenge to the way juries are picked in the New York Federal District.

He previously testified that he never discriminated for or against any prospective juror because of "race, color, creed, sex, political belief or economic or social position."

Lists Placed in Evidence

The Government has called McKenzie as part of its efforts to disprove defense counsel arguments that the jury-picking system here discriminates against the poor and members of minority groups, including Jews and Negroes, in favor of the rich.

Because of this alleged discrimination, the defense contends, the indictment against the Communists, all members of the party's national committee, should be voided.

They are charged with conspiring to advocate the overthrow of the United States Government.

In his testimony today, McKenzie said his office had received lists of potential jurors from the Federal Grand Jurors Association, a group composed of persons who had served on Federal grand juries.

At this point the defense placed in evidence exhibits identified as lists of names from the association. The lists were headed with the words "colored persons."

Thereupon, Federal Judge Harold R. Medina asked Defense Lawyer Richard F. Gladstein:

"Do you claim there is anything wrong with the Federal grand jury sending in lists of names?"

Gladstein replied: "I think it is a plain violation of the law to have the jury system virtually captured . . ."

Army Spy Trial To Set Record For Secrecy

Munich, Germany, Feb. 15 (AP).—A spy trial so secret that the identity of the defendant or defendants and the verdict will be concealed is to open here Wednesday before a United States Military Commission.

The person or persons accused will stand trial on charges punishable by the death sentence. The charge is sale of important secret information to the Communist-dominated Czechoslovak government.

Brig. Gen. John L. McKee, chairman of the trial commission, said one other of five pending spy trials will be equally secret. All the trials relate to the same basic case.

"Does this mean that if a man or woman is ordered executed, it will not be announced?" a reporter asked.

"It will not be announced by the commission," McKee replied.

He said a review board might decide to disclose the names and verdicts later.

McKee said the secrecy, which is believed to have no precedent in United States military trials, was recommended by the Army intelligence for security reasons. He said it was felt the security of the United States would be endangered if some of the testimony and names of those on trial became known.

Gale Drives Storm Into North Plains

By The Associated Press

Another Arctic storm moved in on the Northern Plains States Tuesday. It drove frigid gale winds, accompanied by snow squalls, into the Mountain States.

The subzero storm struck deep into northern Montana, the Dakotas and northwestern Minnesota. Ahead of the storm, gale winds whipped into storm-weary Wyoming, Idaho and Utah.

Again the snow and biting wind struck at helpless snowbound livestock and inhabitants of remote mountain communities. Trains, cars, trucks and buses were stalled by heavy snow.

Record Warmth in East

In sharp contrast was the East Coast's record-shattering warmth.

Overcoats were doffed in New York City's all-time high for the date of 70.1 degrees. Normal temperature for this date is 31. Baltimore had near 80, Pittsburgh a record 68, Buffalo 59, and Rochester, N. Y., 54.

Warm weather prevailed in the South and Southeast. Rain, in some sections very heavy, fell over a wide belt running through the Nation's midcontinent. Some rain and snow fell on the West Coast. Elsewhere fair weather with sunshine prevailed.

The Chicago Weather Bureau predicted the new cold front, moving in from Canada, would obliterate snow removal and relief work of the last week.

Winds Pile Up Drifts

Winds as high as 50 miles an hour swirled into Wyoming, Utah and Idaho, whipping snow on the ground into road-blocking drifts. Heavy snows accompanied the wind in some mountain sections, blocking roadways and cutting off fuel and food supplies.

Livestock in the distressed States again were cut off temporarily from fodder. Haylift operations continued in most snowed-in areas.

The streamliner City of San Francisco was stalled in snow near Wells, Nev. The Union Pacific's double line of tracks in Wyoming again were blocked. U. S. Highway 30, Wyoming's main artery, was closed for 340 miles.

Relief operations in North and South Dakota and Nebraska progressed at a rapid rate. Some blizzard-mauled counties in South Dakota were free and the Army reported the situation "secure."

Twenty new Nebraska counties were termed "secure," completing disaster relief in 36 of 88 counties. Seven South Dakota counties were dropped by the Army from the "disaster area" leaving 16 still getting snow removal aid.

Treaties Urged To Protect Human Rights

Human rights provisions of the United Nations Charter must take the form of treaty obligations if another war is to be averted, the National Citizens' Conference on Civil Liberties was told last night.

Durward V. Sandifer, acting director of the Office of United Nations Affairs of the State Department, warned some 150 delegates in convention here that "provisions of the Chater" on the subject of human rights are not enough.

They must be given the form of treaty obligations, he said, "while the impetus of the recent war is with us, to raise the level of observance and protection of human rights to such a point that their violation shall not again precipitate a war."

Porter Hits Loyalty Program

At the morning session of the two-day convention, at the YWCA, 17th and K sts., nw., which concludes after round-table discussion and reading of reports today, former OPA Administrator Paul Porter called for scrapping of the Government's loyalty program.

He charged that some procedures in the program "do complete violence to our constitutional guarantees."

Porter recommended that top security agencies have absolute power to discharge employes of the Government.

During the afternoon meeting, Mrs. Harper Sibley, a member of the President's Loyalty Review Board, told the convention that the world looks to America for leadership in protecting human liberties.

"We should clean house in this country so we can come with clean hands internationally to the defense of human rights and human freedom," she declared.

Another feature of yesterday's program was a roundtable discussion of educational phases of human rights by Dr. Francis J. Brown, executive secretary of the President's Commission on Higher Education; Dr. Richard B. Kennan, secretary of the Committee for Defense of Democracy Through Education, and Shad Polier, of the American Jewish Congress in New York.

FHA Accused In 'Ghettos'

President Truman has received from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People a letter charging the Federal Housing Administration with lending "its full support" to perpetuation of "black ghettos" in the United States.

In a 21-page memorandum accompanying its letter to the President, the NAACP says the FHA has continued to "foster and spread restrictive covenants" despite revisions made "following our protest" to its "Underwriting Manual."

Walter White, secretary of NAACP, signed the letter, asking the President's "assurance that the Federal Government will cease giving its support to racial restrictions in housing under its FHA program."

Franklin D. Richards, FHA commissioner, said his agency would study the NAACP report but would withhold comment until after the President makes a reply.

W. J. Lippincott Named To Indian Crafts Body

J. A. Krug, Secretary of the Interior, announced yesterday the appointment of William J. Lippincott, of Wide Ruins, Ariz., as a commissioner of the Indian Arts and Crafts Board.

Lippincott will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Dr. A. V. Kidder, of the Carnegie Institution, Washington.

Radio Actress Is Found Dead After Playing Realistic Role

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—Patricia Ryan, 25-year-old radio actress who last night played a radio role of a woman with blinding headaches and complained of similar pains herself, was found dead in bed today.

Miss Ryan

Her husband, George Robert Gibson, notified police and an emergency squad tried to revive her. An autopsy will be performed.

Miss Ryan, a veteran of the Aldrich Family and other programs, appeared last night on an NBC feature, "Valentine for Sophia," opposite Movie Actor Glenn Ford.

She played the role of Sophia Peabody who suffered from blinding headaches before her marriage to the novelist, Nathaniel Hawthorne.

During the program Miss Ryan complained of a pain in the back of her head, NBC officials said, and two other actresses read her lines until she recovered sufficiently to resume her role.

Miss Ryan, born in London, had participated in radio programs in a 14-year stretch, including Let's Pretend and Adventures of the Thin Man.

Printers' Union Seized By Peron to End Strike

Buenos Aires, Feb. 15 (AP).—The Argentine labor department took over the printers' union today and opened the way to end a strike that has kept Buenos Aires without newspapers for eight days.

President Juan D. Peron's action in seizing the union had the effect of ousting union officers who have been in conflict with the striking printers.

Some 60,000 workers are involved in the strike.

Cab Strike Tightens Philadelphia Tie-up

Philadelphia, Feb. 15 (AP).—Paralysis gripped Philadelphia's public transportation today with taxis, buses, trolleys and subways idled by two separate strikes.

A five-day walkout of 11,000 CIO Philadelphia Transportation Co. workers remained hopelessly deadlocked. Another wage dispute idled 3850 AFL Yellow Cab Co. drivers early today.

The taxi walkout was unauthorized and prompted scattered fist fighting. It came after cab union leaders had postponed a strike until Thursday.

Pennsylvania, meantime, took steps to outlaw transit shutdowns.

Quick Action Sought

A bill requiring compulsory arbitration of such labor disputes—including "presently existing" work stoppages—was approved by a Republican-controlled State Senate Committee. Philadelphia legislators are seeking quick floor action.

The CIO-Philadelphai Industrial Union condemned the proposed bill, saying in a statement "it would antagonize labor and force lengthy continuance of the present strike."

A handful of independent cabs cruised traffic-clogged streets. Police estimated more than 400,000 automobiles and trucks — more than double normal — jammed Quaker City thoroughfares. During peak hours, traffic moved 10-miles-an-hour, bumper-to-bumper. Walking was faster—and thousands did.

Hitch hikers lined sidewalks—few motorists ignored the "going-my-way" thumb. Police patrol cars frequently became emergency taxis to rush expectant mothers to hospitals ahead of the stork.

Sunny, springlike weather was a boon to walkers. The mercury hit 71, record high for February 15.

Fleet of trucks and buses mobilized by industry and Federal agencies transported some 100,000 to jobs. Car pools got others to work. Absenteeism, generally, was under 5 per cent.

The Pennslyvania and Reading railroads operated 816 trains, carried 245,000 people. This was double the usual load. These trains make two or three stops in outlying sections then head to downtown depots.

Normally, PTC vehicles carry 3,200,000 passengers daily, the Yellow Cab Co. 105,000. Neither firm is making any effort to operate.

Retail trade was off 50 per cent.

PTC workers are demanding a wage boost of 17 cents an hour. Originally they asked 25 cents, scaled that down to 20 cents. Management offered 3 cents — and hasn't budged since. Workers now get between $1.09 and $1.63 hourly.

Striking taxi drivers seek a guarantee of 50 per cent of gross receipts or $1.20 an hour. They now get 45 per cent of receipts. Yellow Cab management made no offer.

Cab Union President Charles Pirolli said the unauthorized walkout of his men resulted from "a combination of causes."

"There were rumors current among some of the drivers that intimidation by PTC drivers was imminent," Pirolli said.

PTC Local Union President Kaelin denounced the intimidation report.

"The taxi dispute is no concern of ours," Kaelin said.

The Gallup Poll

Wide Support Given Strike 'Cool-Offs'

By George Gallup

Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 15.—The idea of a "cooling-off" period to prevent strikes in vital industries is approved by an overwhelming majority of all voters, including labor union members, questioned in a public opinion poll by the institute.

The Truman Administration's substitute labor bill adopted the Taft-Hartley cooling-off principle, with modifications. The Administration measure provides for a 30-day waiting period in national emergency strikes. Under Taft-Hartley the period is 60 days in all disputes, although in national emergency strikes an 80-day period is provided under certain conditions.

The favorable reaction of union members to the cool-off idea is one of the significant aspects of the present controversy. The label "Taft-Hartley" is poison to most unions, and on two occasions in the past year institute surveys have found the weight of union member sentiment opposed to continuing the law without changes.

Yet the cool-off principle as embodied in the law is found approved by more than 8 out of every 10 union members interviewed in today's survey.

The vote follows:

"Would you be for or against a law to require unions in vital industries serving the public to give 60 days' notice before they can go on strike?"

LABOR UNION MEMBERS
For	81%
Against	13
No opinion	6
ALL VOTERS
For	87%
Against	6
No opinion	7

Another survey reported earlier in this series showed that another part of the present labor law is also approved by a substantial majority of union members questioned, as well as all voters. That is the provision requiring unions to file annual reports of the amount of money they take in and spend. The Truman labor bill would abolish that provision of the Taft-Hartley Act. Eight out of 10 labor union members (81 per cent) questioned by institute interviewers said they are in favor of the principle of union financial reports.

Democrat Wins First House Fight Since Election

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—Louis B. Heller, Democrat, 44-year-old lawyer, was elected by a wide margin in Brooklyn's Seventh Congressional District in a special election today.

The congressional seat left vacant by the death of Representative John J. Delaney, Democrat, was the first to be contested in the Nation since last fall's election, when Democrats won control of Congress. Heller ran also on the Liberal Party ticket.

Heller received 22,935 votes, 21,207 as Democratic candidate and 1728 as Liberal nominee. Francis E. Dorn, Republican, got 16,179 votes, and Mrs. Minneola Ingersoll, American Labor Party 2712.

Heller, on the basis of the Democratic vote, received 50.7 per cent of the total. Last fall, the late Representative John J. Delaney received 52,430 Democratic votes—48.4 of the total cast.

Mutual Seeks to Bar 'Pro' Quiz Contestants

New York, Feb. 15 (U.P.).—The Mutual Broadcasting System announced today that it would try to bar all "professional" quiz program contestants.

The network said there are more than 400 of these "regular" contestants who "are not interested in the educational and entertainment value of quiz shows but only have a desire to win valuable prizes."

Aggression Is Official U. S. Policy, Reds Say

Bucharest, Romania, Feb. 15 (AP).—The Cominform Bulletin said today that "the policy of aggression has become the official policy of the United States."

The latest issue of the international Communist information organ reached this conclusion in analyzing what it called President Truman's refusal to meet Premier Stalin to discuss "a peace pact."

Boggs Made Labor Chief Of Virginia

E. M. BOGGS

Governor's choice

Richmond, Va., Feb. 15 (AP).—Governor Tuck today appointed Edmond Mac Boggs of Richmond as acting State Commissioner of Labor and Industry, succeeding John Hopkins Hall, jr. Boggs' appointment becomes effective February 21.

Boggs was one of four men recommended for the job. He had many indorsements. In announcing his appointment, Governor Tuck indicated that he plans to ask Boggs to take an active part in labor mediation cases.

The labor commissioner serves at the pleasure of the Governor.

On January 17, Hall announced he was retiring in 30 days from the $7500 a year post. It is expected he will continue his duties until Boggs takes over Monday.

Boggs will be 40 February 23. He obtained an indefinite leave as district representative for Virginia of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders and Helpers of America (AFL).

Taft Charges AFL Bid for Vast Special Favor

among the membership of organized labor throughout the Nation."

He said that on the other hand the AFL is satisfied generally with the Administration's labor bill, though it believes the measure could be improved with some "slight" amendments.

The Administration bill, which the committee is studying, would repeal the T-H law and substitute the old Wagner Act with some changes.

'Don't Want Any of It'

Green called the Taft-Hartley law "impracticable, unworkable and destructive of the common elemental rights of labor." He added:

"We want it repealed; we don't want any of it retained."

Green was particularly critical of the present law's ban on the closed shop. Under a closed shop, employers can hire only union members.

'We won two world wars under closed shop operations," Green declared. "Now we say, after winning those wars, it's a crime for you to do it."

Green said the ban prevents the union from requiring an employer to fire Communists.

"Suppose," said Green, "the union tries a man, finds him guilty of being a Communist, and suspends him. It can't, under the Taft-Hartley law, require the employer to discharge him."

Green then said this "prevents us from clearing the Communists out of our movement." A moment later he modified that. He said the AFL has done "an excellent job" in routing out Communists, but that the T-H law "makes it more difficult."

Senator Morse (R., Ore.) agreed with Green that the closed shop ought to be permitted. But Morse said Congress should prohibit union "abuses" of the closed shop by making them unfair labor practices.

Green said he couldn't go for that because "the principle of it is wrong."

Under questioning by Senator Pepper (D., Fla.), Green told the committee that labor organizations got along fine under the old Wagner Act. But he said it has been an entirely different story under the Taft-Hartley Act. Pounding the table, Green shouted:

"The individual workers are angry and resentful. This has robbed them of what they regard as an essential part of their freedom. They have been taught for half a century that 'I have the right to sell my labor at the best terms I can get.'"

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), leader of the antirepeal forces, put in that Green was talking only about the closed shop ban, not the whole law.

"Hundreds of thousands of collective bargaining agreements have been made under the Taft-Hartley Act," Taft declared.

Green Denies AFL Plans To Pay State Legislators

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said yesterday the AFL has "no thought" of putting State legislators on its payroll.

Green made the statement in reply to questions from members of the Senate Labor Committee.

Senator Morse (R., Oreg.) called Green's attention to a news story that said the payroll suggestion had been discussed at a meeting of the administrative committee of Labor's League for Political Education at Miami earlier this month. The league is the AFL's political arm. Its meeting was held in conjunction with the midwinter meeting of the AFL executive council. The leadership of both the council and the league is the same.

Morse told Green "great injury has been done to your organization by the story."

Green said he believes "publicity representatives" of the Political Education League had referred to the proposal "in a publicity statement only." Then he added:

"I can tell you truthfully there is no thought of the American Federation of Labor engaging in such action or policy."

Union Mass Meeting Follows Layoffs

Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 15 (AP).—Thirteen hundred assembly line workers at the International Harvester Co. were laid off today. A union mass meeting followed.

The layoff was the third in three days as a controversy over a "deliberate slowdown" continued.

Members of local United Auto Workers (CIO) called the mass meeting.

A company spokesman said 200 other workers will probably be sent home later today because of "lack of work."

The controversy apparently centers around the number of spot twelds required in a radiator core.

Francis A. Lewis, chairman of the local bargaining committee, said the layoffs were made because the company is "undertaking a drive to cut wages."

Works Manager L. E. Drum declared the layoffs were caused by lack of material because of a "deliberate slowdown" in the sheet metal department.

Mail Liquor Gifts Give Headache To Customs Office

Customs Commissioner Frank Dow had a headache yesterday, caused by an unusually heavy flow of alcoholic beverages. But it's not a hangover.

It's just that so many people overseas who received CARE and other holiday packages are trying to repay their American benefactors by sending them packages of wine, brandy and other liquors.

Customs officials have been forced to confiscate hundreds of packages because it's unlawful to send alcoholic beverages through the U. S. mails.

If no State laws are violated, the liquor may be released to the consignee after he pays all duties and promises it won't go back into the mails.

But it's a complicated business to get clearance on such items after they are once seized. Dow suggests that Americans ask their overseas friends to send something else.

America's Largest Concentration of Aged and Ageing Whiskies Now in Kinsey Warehouses

LINFIELD, PA. — Nestled in the rolling hills of this quiet country community is a collection of attractive buildings which house not only the famous Kinsey distillery, but 16 warehouses which contain the largest concentration in America of aged and ageing whiskies.

To realize the full importance of these reserves, it is necessary to go back to the war years, during which the alcohol output of distillers was used in the nation's all-out war effort. There were, however, two brief "holidays" during the months of 1944 and January 1945, when distillers were permitted to use alcohol for making whiskey. Distillers had adequate stocks for making plenty of whiskey, were forced to limit production because of lack of capacity; other distillers had plenty of storage space but did not produce sufficient whiskey for future needs.

Kinsey was one of the few with two major distilling plants which had both huge storage and production facilities, and enough storage space to accommodate all the whiskey they distilled during the "holidays." That is why today, when many distillers are short of mature whiskies, Kinsey has vast reserves of excellent aged whiskey to draw upon, and why every drop in every bottle of Kinsey has years certain admittedly "secondary" differences of opinion were subordinated.

Four Major Organizations Reach Accord On Supporting District Suffrage Measure

The points where areas of difference still remain and which were the chief topics of discussion yesterday, were:

1. Should the bill be a "one package affair" calling for both home rule and administrative reorganization of the local government?

2. Should the legislation provide for a non-voting delegate to Congress as Hawaii and Alaska now have?

The group agreed on the "one package" bill, deferring to Senate suffrage leaders the decision on which approach should be followed in Congress, and ruled out the provision for a non-voting delegate.

However, a spokesman of the Washington Home Rule Committee which has consistently favored tackling home rule first and reorganization second, and a non-voting delegate said his group "probably would raise their viewpoint for consideration" at the Capital Hill hearing.

Agreement Stressed

"In any event, overall agreement will be emphasized," said this spokesman, adding that "We just want to give the Senate this little word of caution."

The Washington Home Rule member further commented that reorganization of the city council should be left to the elected city council.

The "word of caution" was echoed by Wilbur S. Finch, chairman of the Central Suffrage Conference and long-time leader of the home rule movement.

"My position hasn't changed one iota through the years," said Finch. "But we are the people who must sell the bill downtown by referendum after it clears Congress.

"Inclusion of a sweeping reorganization of the city government in a suffrage bill could easily be an obstruction. Streamlining the government might well be objected to as a smokescreen to the real basic objections to a home rule bill," Finch explained.

A. L. Wheeler, chairman of the District Democratic Central Committee, said the meeting gave all of us interested in home rule "a chance to let down our hair and a chance to reconcile minor differences."

He said his group, which will present the bill to the Senate subcommittee Thursday, was perfectly willing to drop the reorganization phases of their measure if legislators felt it politically wise.

Commenting on the Democratic committee's decision not to ask for a nonvoting delegate to Congress, Wheeler said such a request now would take the edge off of a later fight for a full fledged representative with voting rights.

He also said a delegate under home rule would have little "real work to do."

The bill for home rule and District reorganization now being sponsored by the District Democratic Central Committee adopts many major features of the home rule bill of Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), but there are several points of difference.

The Auchincloss bill would continue virtually unchanged the day-to-day legislative function of Congress in District affairs. The central committee bill would give the District a greater share, and Congress a smaller share, in routine local lawmaking. In both plans Congress would retain a legislative last word.

Both Call For Council

Both bills call for creation of an elected 12-member District council, and of an elected eight-member District school board. The council would replace the present appointed District Board of Commissioners. Both bills would give the council final authority to make the annual city budget.

Both would give an elected school board a greater measure of control over its budget than the present appointed board has. Both bills call for a city manager to be appointed by the council. Both call for reorganization of most District agencies into 13 major departments.

Power With Reservations

The central committee bill, however, would with certain reservations, give the council complete legislative power over the District in all matters on which Congress constitutionally can legislate for the District. Biggest reservation of Council power would be that Congress at any time could do its own legislating for the District on any subject.

Auchincloss' plan calls for giving the District council power to "propose" but not to "enact" major laws for the District. Council proposals would then go to the Capitol for inspection by a new Joint District Committee. It would then take a bill of approval passed by both houses and signed by the President to make the council proposal a law. The central committee bill calls for no change in the present Senate and House District committees.

Could Debate, But Not Vote

The Auchincloss bill also calls for an elected District delegate in the House. He could debate but not vote. The central committee bill does not call for a District delegate.

Pay of council members, and of the council's president, or "mayor," would be $3000 a year in the Auchincloss plan. It would be $7500 a year for members and $12,000 a year for mayor, plus a $3000 expense allowance for the mayor, in the committee bill. Auchincloss would give school board members $10 per meeting; the central committee would give $20.

In the Auchincloss plan, the city manager would be appointed for an indefinite term. In the central committee bill, the manager would be appointed for a term not to exceed two years.

Wheeler explained the central committee plan was designed to make not only the council but the manager responsive to the electorate.

He said that in practical terms, despite the nonpartisan election feature of both bills there would be a Democratic Party and a Republican Party in the District "and we didn't want to tie the hands of the council for more than 2 years." In both bills the manager would be subject to removal from office by the council.

Borrowing Allowed

Both bills would permit borrowing for District public improvements. Auchincloss calls for a borrowing limit equal to 3 per cent of the assessed value of taxable real property in the District. In the committee bill the limit would be 5 per cent of the assessed value of taxable real property.

Building bonds in both bills would be subject to voters' approval in a referendum. In the Auchincloss plan they would clear through Congress, in the committee plan they would not.

Both bills call for nonpartisan elections, and for making one year's residence in the District a basic qualification for voting. Both say that "to be qualified to vote in the District, it is not intended that a person be required to relinquish his rights in another jurisdiction.

The Auchincloss bill would fix the amount of the Federal payment at one million dollars for water plus either 15 million dollars or 14 per cent of all District revenue from non-Federal sources, whichever amount is smaller. The committee bill calls for a sum of 15 million dollars or more of which one million dollars would be for water.

The committee bill also includes a section on District civil service, dropped from the latest Auchincloss bill. While continuing many features of the present District personnel setup, it would direct the Civil Service Commission to report to Congress whenever it disapproved of District personnel practices.

Oklahoma House Votes Probe of College Reds

Oklahoma City, Feb. 15 (AP).—The Oklahoma House of Representatives today ordered an immediate investigation to determine whether there are Communists on the faculties of the State's colleges and universities.

The probe—originally aimed at the University of Oklahoma at Norman by Representative D. C. Cantrell—was voted 83 to 19, after an amendment broadened it to include all institutions of higher learning in the State, private or publicly supported.

Cantrell said he would confer with the Federal Bureau of Investigation for assistance in the inquiry.

McMillan Sees D. C. Sales Tax

"thus saving a few million dollars."

McMillian told the businessmen that he can "offhand think of a few District departments he could easily do without."

Asserting his conviction that local property owners are carrying about as heavy a tax burden as they can, the House District leader said the sales tax levy was "the most painless levy possible."

With the contemplated sales tax exemptions on food and other necessaries of life, said McMillan, "this type of levy should not hurt anyone."

He said he also hoped that Congress would repeal the sales tax "perhaps a year from now if it finds the city's income and outgo in balance."

McMillian said he has visited 25 cities in the past three months. "None of them compare to Washington for cleanliness, beauty and efficiency. No one should object now to giving a few added cents to keep the Nation's Capital that way," he commented.

Today more than 35 spokesmen of Washington business and civic groups will air their views on the sales tax and the proposed hike in liquor levies at a joint public hearing by the House and Senate District fiscal subcommittees.

The hearing will be held in the District hearing room in the Capitol, starting at 9:30 a. m.

The Commissioners are pinning their hopes for a balanced budget in fiscal 1950 on a congressional green light to this three-point revenue raising plan—2 per cent sales tax, doubling liquor taxes and license fees and an increased Federal payment.

Jersey Coke Plant Blast Rocks Area; Felt in New York

Kearney, N. J., Feb. 15 (AP).—A noon-hour explosion in the sprawling Koppers Coke plant today rocked nearby communities and was felt in New York City across the Hudson River.

The blast, which occurred in a one-story chemical experimental building, injured two workmen, one critically.

Windows were shaken in Manhattan office buildings and police and newspapers were flooded with inquiries.

Company officials said two partly filled 2000-gallon vats of liquid hydrogen cyanide exploded. Damage was estimated at $5000 to $10,000.

Ten persons were killed at the plant last May 1 in an explosion that caused $150,000 damage.

Prince Georges Zone Hearing Mar. 30

A public hearing on a proposed master zoning plan for Prince Georges County was slated yesterday for March 30 by the Board of County Commissioners.

The hearing is scheduled to start at 9 a. m. in the circuit court room at Upper Marlboro.

At its meeting two weeks ago, the board agreed to hold the hearing, but did not designate a date. The zoning plan, drawn up by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, was submitted to the commissioners last August, and has been under study since.

The plan has been termed "one of the best that can be put out" by Robert M. Watkins, county member on the planning commission. Adopted by the group last June, it provides 14 zoning classifications in place of the present five.

Another hearing was scheduled by the commissioners on March 8 for residents of 20th ave. in Brookside Manor who seek the paving of 300 feet of roadway. Cost to the citizens, who live in a special improvement area, would be about $1400, balance of the expense to be met by the county.

High Court Appeal

Murder Jury Prejudice by Film Claimed

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Are the rights of a defendant in a murder case prejudiced because the trial jury, during a court recess, attended a movie and saw a murder film?

Two Indiana men, Frank Badgley and Robert Oscar Brown, who face death in the electric chair there February 23 after conviction for murdering two Hammond, Ill., policemen, placed that issue before the Supreme Court yesterday.

Papers filed by their attorneys, Robert A. Buhler of Fort Wayne, Ind., showed the Indiana Supreme Court decided the movie attendance did not constitute prejudice to the defendants, and there were no grounds for a mistrial.

According to the Indiana Supreme Court opinion, Badgley and Brown were convicted of killing two of three policemen in a gun fight January 11, 1947, when police discovered them in a stolen car.

"It was irregular, to say the least," stated the Indiana Supreme Court, "for the baliffs . . . to take the jury to see a moving picture without the permission of the trial judge and the consent of the parties."

But, said that opinion, if that movie prejudiced anybody's rights, it was not Badgley's and Brown's rights, since "the authorities of the State (in the movie) were portrayed in a manner such as might well be calculated to prejudice the rights of the State of Indiana in obtaining a fair trial."

Buhler, however, contends that the movie viewing deprived his clients of constitutional rights

Baltimore, Feb. 15 (AP).—Police are pressing a large-scale hunt for three gunmen who held up a Baltimore bank this morning, scooped more than $30,000 into a shopping bag, and got away moments before the arrival of detectives.

Yost

The trio staged the daring 10 a. m. robbery at the Walbrook branch of the Union Trust Co. One of the bandits scaled an 8-foot partition to confront the tellers inside the cage. All wielded revolvers.

They fled shortly before detectives answered the burglar alarm. The car they used, police said, was rented from a "U-Drive It" company under the name of a previous holdup victim.

On entering the bank, one of the men hurdled the barrier outside the cashier's cage, and forced head teller Karl Yost to empty cash drawers into the shopping bag.

Another made his way into the branch manager's office, where he made the executive, S. S. Pearson, and a customer, Jacob Wright, lie on the floor.

The third bandit kept sharp lookout at the door while his masked companion gathered greenbacks into the bag. Some six women tellers were kept at bay toward the rear of the bank.

Howard Singleton was about to make a deposit when the robbers pulled their stunt. He slipped his wallet containing $400 under the shelf where he was writing a deposit slip. The wallet was gone when he returned to the desk after the holdup.

Police found that the bandits used identification papers stolen from Kenneth L. George of Dundalk in a robbery January 21.

George's description of the two men who robbed him tallied with that of two of the bank robbers, police said.

Landlord Buried Alive, Police Say

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 15 (U.P.).—Police charged today that John Robert Bridges buried his landlord alive and ran off to Georgia with the latter's pretty wife

Keston Morris Privette, 22, gasped out his life while buried under three feet of soggy soil while his wife and two infant sons rode south with his alleged killer, Coroner I. M. Cheek reported.

Bridges, handsome well-digger's helper who lived at Privette's rural home, said he fell in love with 20-year-old Mrs. Dauphine Cone Privette. He wanted her for himself, he told police.

He dug a grave in a field behind the house, police said he confessed to them, and on February 7, two days later, lured his landlord there.

Then, his alleged confession said, he clubbed Privette with a rifle butt, rolled him into the grave and buried him.

An hour later, he said, he left for Bainbridge, Ga., with Mrs. Privette and her two sons, 3 years old and 6 months old.

Privette died of suffocation, the coroner said.

Sheriff Robert Pleasants said Mrs. Privette and Bridges insisted she did not know of her husband's death until she was on the way to Georgia.

In Georgia, Mrs. Privette became frightened. When Bridges left on a bus trip three days later, she told Bainbridge officers her husband had been slain.

Milwaukee Road To Lay Off 1700 For Three Weeks

Chicago, Feb. 15 (U.P.).—The Milwaukee Railroad said tonight it will close all its car repair shops, idling some 1700 to 1800 workers, for three weeks, because of "decreased business."

The road said the major shops affected were at Terre Haute, Ind., Tacoma, Wash.; Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Dubuque, Iowa.

Revision of Zoning Practices Urged on Montgomery Council

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Proposals for a sweeping revision of zoning practices in Montgomery County were laid before the County Council yesterday.

Such changes, if effected, could be done outside of the council's May legislative period, Chairman Frederic P. Lee of the council told the group. "We are convinced," he said, "those functions we received from the county commissioners can be exercised at any time during the year."

At its regular meeting in Rockville, the seven-member County Council also appointed three men to an appeal tax court and created a civil service post of administrative assistant to the county manager and clerk to the council.

Zoning Enforcement Urged

Strict adherence to master-zoning plans and elimination of "spot zoning" practices were called for by President Howard M. Kline of the Citizens Zoning Committee.

He urged the council to consider establishment of a commission composed of officials and citizens which would study current zoning practices and laws and recommend major changes.

A majority of present evils, Kline said, stem from failure to follow an orderly development of land use.

Kline was joined by Roy Schneiter of the County Civic Federation, who said present zoning laws are in "drastic need of revision." He proposed revamping of present laws and suggested that zoning of land be extended to cover the entire county. Only about 25 per cent of the county is now zoned.

Named to the tax court which will rule on all appeals from property assessments were: J. Ernest Hawkins, of Etchison, Md.; Charles D. Herron, 7211 Fairfax rd., Bethesda; and Leo Bender, 908 Silver Spring ave., Silver Spring. Each will receive a maximum of $1200 annually.

Hawkins is the former clerk to the replaced county commissioners and chief deputy sheriff from 1939 to 1946. Herron, a West Point graduate in 1899, is a retired lieutenant general. Bender is a Silver Spring attorney and vice president of a title company.

Shearin Gets Post

Named immediately by Acting County Manager I. G. McNayr to serve as his full-time administrative assistant and clerk to the council was Plummer M. Shearin, former executive director, Montgomery Charter Committee. He will receive $4800 annually.

Pan American Offer For Overseas Revealed

By the United Press

Pan American Airways revealed today that it has offered $18,845,000 for American Overseas Airlines.

Pan American cited the figure in asking the Civil Aeronautics Board for a speedy ruling on its plan to purchase the line.

Pan American opposed an attempt by public counsel and by Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., to broaden the case by including the entire question of this Nation's role in international air travel.

Pan American also opposed a plan by American Overseas employes to buy the line.

Rep. Thomas' Plea For Delay Denied

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut yesterday reaffirmed March 7 as the District Court trial date for Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) on charges of payroll padding and criminal conspiracy.

The jurist refused a defense request to continue the case until a Supreme Court decision on the conviction of Carl A. Marzani for defrauding the Government by failing to disclose Communist affiliations in seeking employment here. Common to both cases, defense counsel argued, is the application of an extension provision for the statute of limitations.

Spring Fever

If Washington has any more mid-February days like yesterday, there will be little inducement either for work or for the advent of spring. In the beleaguered West, climatic balm such as Washington has been enjoying would heighten the danger of floods. Here, fortunately, it brings only lassitude and an intense yearning to be doing something other than one's allotted task.

This urge to break out with waterwings or golf bag may or may not stem from a February 2 misreading of the groundhog's intentions. The synthetic manner in which the groundhog was consulted might have had something to do with it. Inasmuch as he was photographed in his cage in deference to his reticence, it could only be assumed what he would have done had he emerged. Assuming that the interpretation was correct, however, the groundhog's virtues as a weather prophet are proving as notoriously unreliable as the first robin, who seems to crop up any old time.

Probably it is only a few people who feel cheated when there has not been a genuine blizzard or two, and since Washington has not developed the ski-mania of New England, there probably will be little complaint over February's unseasonable gyrations. The only thing we ask is that if the weather-makers are thinking of changing seasons on us, they do a thorough job and reserve some of the cool weather for July. But if the present temperatures mean that the summer readings will also be jacked up 10 degrees or so, the groundhog probably stayed in his cage in self-defense.

AMA Alternative

Under pressure recently from some of its own members, as well as from the generally increasing public interest in wider provision of medical services, the American Medical Association has now developed its own alternative to Federal health insurance. The AMA program is welcome on two counts. It shows that the leaders of the organization, long content with mere negative opposition to governmental health activity, have seen the need for an affirmative approach to the problem. And the content of the AMA's 12-point plan shows how far the profession has come since the days when even voluntary health insurance seemed to it a dangerous and alien idea.

Actually, the doctors seem ready to travel much the same road, in many respects, as that marked out by the Murray and Dingell bills for Federal compulsory health insurance. The parallels show up in such provisions as encouragement to medical research and education, development of rural health services, administrative machinery at the State and local levels, expansion of public health and preventive-medicine facilities, public information programs as to what facilities are available, and the like. These, in general, are what might be called the subsidiary issues.

However, the AMA is as adamantly opposed as ever to compulsory insurance—through payroll and similar contributions—for medical services. Its emphasis is heavily on voluntary and cooperative efforts of various kinds. And this is good, both in itself and as evidence of advancing thought in the councils of the AMA. The presumption is always—or should be—that compulsion is to be avoided where possible. Not as a plague, because it is a necessary aspect of government, but as a last resort to be used only if voluntary methods have proved themselves grossly unable to perform a needed service.

Not as much can be said for the second chief difference in the AMA plan. This would create a Cabinet-rank Department of Health headed by a doctor of medicine. If the Federal Government were going into the medical business whole hog—which the AMA opposes—there might be some sense in this. But that is not the AMA's idea. Good administrative practice would not multiply Cabinet departments, especially for programs of secondary importance. And an M. D. degree is no guarantee of either administrative ability or of nonpolitical motivation.

This proposal is as naive, it seems to us, as the idea implicit in the AMA plan that Congress and the State Legislatures will turn over funds to professionally selected bodies without strings attached. For the AMA is not opposed to State and even Federal health subsidies so long as control over expenditure rests in the hands of doctors. If this proposal should be accepted, every other professional group would and could demand Government funds to spend as it, and not as the representatives of the taxpayers, saw fit.

Misunderstood Pact

The disturbing fact about the debate in the Senate on the forthcoming Atlantic Pact and the unfortunate reactions in Europe is that the nature of the proposed treaty has been grossly misunderstood. That, if we are correctly informed, is chiefly the fault of Senator Connally, who has insisted that the proposed treaty be kept under cover. Now he has clarified his position, but the result of his plea for secrecy and his impromptu remarks of Monday, has been to give European peoples distorted ideas as to what the United States has proposed and to lead some on this side of the Atlantic to assume that the old fight over Article X of the League of Nations Covenant should be fought over again. Some of the debate in the Senate, in point of fact, almost duplicated that of 1919, and a few old-timers must have wondered if 30 years of history had suddenly been forgotten.

Europeans appear to have been deluded into thinking that the Atlantic Pact would turn out to be an old-fashioned military alliance. Such a treaty would not only be contrary to basic American policy; it would fly in the face of the United Nations Charter. Under such an alliance all the signatories would be pledged to aid any one of the allies that might become involved in war, even if that ally were the aggressor. That kind of an arrangement was emphatically repudiated in the debate that led to the Senate's approval last year of the Vandenberg Resolution from which the proposed Atlantic Pact stems.

In explaining his resolution to the Senate last June 11, Mr. Vandenberg said:

> It declines automatically military alliances . . . It declares our willingness to consider by due constitutional process our own cooperation, in one way or another, with such regional arrangements, if and when we conclude that our own national interests are involved . . . It is a paraphrase of the Rio Treaty which the Senate overwhelmingly approved . . . It never steps outside the United Nations Charter.

Anyone who followed this debate was certainly on notice that the Senate favored a regional defense arrangement under Article 51 of the U. N. Charter and frowned upon an old-fashioned military alliance. It is inconceivable that, in the face of the virtual unanimity of the Senate on this point, the State Department would have proceeded to the negotiation of an alliance of the repudiated type. The current outburst of criticism about the United States "welching" on its proposals apparently stems, therefore, from ignorance of what this Government originally proposed and from a loose assumption that the United Nations has ceased to exist. The critics also leave out of account the fact that this country as a European power in Germany is in the same boat with them.

Senator Vandenberg again made it unmistakably clear in Monday's debate that the Atlantic Pact will not supplant the U. N. On the contrary, it should give new vitality to the Charter now that it has been left virtually inoperative by the Russian veto. The pact is an attempt on the part of the democratic nations to implement the U. N. Charter in the interim period while the world is divided into two hostile camps. If the Charter were operating as contemplated, an act of aggression would bring the Security Council into play with consultation, conciliation and the use of force if necessary to restore peace. Since it is hamstrung, the Atlantic Pact would bring democratic powers of the Western world into consultation and presumably joint action against an aggressor attacking any one of them.

The Senate has done well to emphasize the integral relation between the proposed pact and the U. N. Charter. The widespread misunderstanding of the pact was no excuse, however, for the backward leanings toward isolationism that crept into some of the debate. Even Senator Connally seemed to be quarreling with the basic idea of the new treaty that an attack upon one of the signatories would be regarded as an attack upon all of them. If he only meant to say that the United States would consult with the Brussels allies before deciding what should be done, all well and good. No treaties are self-executing. Their implementation always requires decisions by the governments concerned. But if he meant that the United States might conclude that aggression against an ally was no concern of ours, then we think he is further off base than the critics who are calling for an old-fashioned military alliance.

If the pact is to be of any value, it must bind us to resistance of aggression in the Atlantic community as firmly as the Charter binds us against aggression on a global scale. It is the methods of resistance that would remain flexible. These, of course, would have to be agreed upon in each case that might arise. There is no other feasible or desirable method so long as sovereignty remains in separate nations. In this connection what we have been urging is that the Brussels allies should themselves prepare the groundwork by continentalizing their defense in fact as well as in terminology. It would be a pity if misunderstanding of these fundamentals should prejudice the Atlantic Pact before the peoples for whose protection it is designed even have a chance to read it.

Dangerous Plan

The American Federation of Labor is said to be considering a plan to put members of State Legislatures who are friendly to labor on its payroll. On its face the proposal seems reasonable, since the pay of legislators in most States is low, with the result that many working men whom the AFL would like to put in office to support labor legislation are unable or unwilling to serve. Nevertheless, the suggestion that members of a lawmaking body elected as representatives of all the people should be subsidized by a private organization, whether a labor group or any other group, is truly shocking. For legislators in the pay of an outside organization are not free agents. They are pledged to support the programs and policies of those who hire them. Representative government, as we know it today, would cease to exist under any such system.

Moreover, if legislators drawing pay from labor organizations were to be tolerated, it would not be long before other groups would be subsidizing men and women who could be relied on to do their bidding. The National Association of Manufacturers and every special trade and industrial organization in the country could make out an equally good case for supplementing salaries of friendly lawmakers and possibly save some of the money now spent on hiring lobbyists.

Eisenhower On Duty

It would be too much to expect that General Eisenhower will be able to bring unity of outlook on strategy and organization to the military establishment. The gap between opposing views of equally sincere men will not be easy to bridge. Undoubtedly General Eisenhower, in his new role as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and principal military assistant to Secretary Forrestal, recognizes full well the limitations on his position as a mediator. He will have to rely on the force of his personality, plus the great respect in which he is held, to resolve some of the knottier problems that have been tying up the Joint Chiefs.

One of the issues on which there is a rift in the Joint Chiefs is that of atomic strategy—whether it is wise to place all, or even principal, reliance on the atomic bomb. General Eisenhower will be faced with the extremist views of some Air Force planners who would virtually do away with everything except strategic bombers, as well as the equally intransigent stand of some Navy proponents who see nothing effective in long-range bombing. It is to be hoped that "Ike" will introduce some horse sense on strategy. That includes, in our opinion, recognition of the atomic bomb as a fearful but not absolute weapon. This in turn means recognition of the neo-isolationism implicit in the concept of war fought principally by long-range atomic bombers, and a corollary recognition of the danger involved in putting all the eggs in one basket—or on one target.

The selection of a chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff fills a long-felt need, as we have several times suggested, the last time when General Eisenhower's tour of duty here was first rumored. The need for direction is so compelling that it demands more than a quasi-official mediator who must rely largely on persuasion. The military establishment reportedly is preparing a bill that will establish a permanent chairman of the Joint Chiefs. We hope that it will provide him with a vote as well as abolish the veto power of a single dissenting member. Before legislation can become effective, however, it is necessary to develop really unified thinking within Joint Chiefs regarding the totality of American power. General Eisenhower is a happy choice to spur such thinking, for he, perhaps more than any other military leader, is the symbol of a united effort.

Pandemic Dementia

The other day, in commenting on the story of the great Communist espionage conspiracy in Japan, we said that it should evoke no great astonishment in a world in which nothing is abnormal except whatever is rational and sane. But in view of developments, we fear that we erred on the side of caution and conservatism. Not to put too fine a point on it, the world is an even screwier place than we suspected.

For example, Dr. Anna Louise Strong, whose readers have for many years supposed her to be redder than a fire engine and to have pursued the party line with the sure-footed skill of a somnambulist on the cornice of a skyscraper, has been arrested in Moscow, where she is accused of being an anti-Communist spy, presumably in the pay of the United States. Meanwhile, rumors are floating about Washington that the supposed report of General MacArthur's intelligence officers about the Japanese spy ring is not their actual report at all, but a wholly rewritten and bowdlerized version prepared in the hope of creating a sympathetic attitude in Congress toward the new budget for the Japanese occupation forces which is soon to be submitted. If this is correct, it scarcely indicates a very high opinion of the congressional intelligence. For whatever General MacArthur's men have had in the way of documentary evidence to support the charge that Miss Agnes Smedley was a member of the Communist spy ring was carefully deleted.

Another story, and one that actually found its way into print, is that the most sensational item of the report was expunged from the version made public. The original version, according to this rumor, contained the revelation that American military and naval leaders had been given a warning of the contemplated Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor some 60 days before it occurred. The warning is said to have come from the Kremlin, which got it, of course, from Comrade Sorge in Tokyo. It was wholly disregarded in Washington, perhaps on the ground that nothing emanating from the Kremlin could possibly mean what it seemed to mean.

It is in days like these that one is grateful for the comic pages. The comic pages may not be of any great educational value, but at least they give us for a few brief moments the illusion of a sane and orderly, if somewhat humdrum, world.

"Communist Professors"

It was with some dismay that I read your statements of January 25 concerning the firing of the three University of Washington professors.

Professors Phillips and Butterworth (I am excepting the more complex case of Professor Gundlach) were fired solely on the basis of affiliations with a political party which President Allen personally believed to be subversive. In one of his recommendations President Allen stated "I had said earlier (prior to May 12, 1948) at another faculty meeting that members of the Communist Party were not welcome at the University of Washington. I put it even more baldly, saying that if we had any members of the party on the faculty, 'they would be smoked out.'" Thus the president had made up his mind prior to the hearings of the faculty committee that such men should be fired.

These two professors had been on the faculty for over 20 years. Clearly, if they have been infecting the minds of their students and if their writings have reflected an undesirable political bias the Administration would have had little trouble proving so. Yet they were convicted on no such evidence whatsoever; on the contrary, both have received the unqualified endorsement of both their students and of leading colleagues in their fields of study.

They were convicted solely because an executive personally believed that the Communist Party of the United States, as yet a legal political party, is subversive and therefore any member of that party is automatically guilty of "neglect of duty," "incompetence" and "intellectual dishonesty."

It is my belief that judging a man by his affiliations rather than by his deeds is a negation of democracy. I do not wish to defend the Communist Party as such, but I do believe in the necessity of preserving correct and logical methods of determining guilt.

"Closed Shop"

Let me congratulate you one your February 13 editorial, "Closed Shop." I agree with your editorial and William M. Leiserson's argument that nonunion members should not be allowed the benefits of collective bargaining gained by labor unions without sharing the costs, if they are allowed to work side by side with union laborers, provided that they cannot for conscientious reasons join a labor union.

A number of religious organizations hold that some of the methods employed by labor unions are unChristian and therefore the members of their faith ought not to join labor unions and become aiders and abettors in acts of violence. But the members of these religious bodies are willing to pay their dues the same as do the members of the union; they are willing to abide by all the standards and requirements of the labor unions which are not in violation of Christian or equitable principles. When a labor union orders a strike they do not want to be called upon to do picket duty or participate in acts of violence; they want to remain neutral during the strike.

Some labor unions have allowed nonunion members to work in a closed shop by having them comply with the above conditions mutually agreed to, but other labor unions have forced them out of their jobs which they have held for years, when the closed shop was voted by the majority rule.

Unless the new labor law to be enacted by Congress makes provision under the above conditions specified, many workers who have been employed in certain industries for a third of a century and more, who cannot for conscientious reasons joint a labor union, and who are now protected under some State labor union laws, will lose their lifelong jobs because of coerced membership and monopolistic legislation.

Senate Chaplain

I believe the student at Catholic University (letter printed February 5) who takes a crack at our Senate Chaplain and the Senate itself is not thinking very deeply.

Dr. Frederick Brown Harris was brought over here a babe in arms and has given his entire life to serving others (25 years in Washington), as did his father.

I wonder if the young man in question has ever read any of the chaplain's prayers or thought how much time and preparation goes into every 2 minutes of words with God. Has he ever heard any of the Senators' comments? Does he really believe that they do not pray themselves.

End Of Zionism

The state of Israel has now been accorded full recognition by the United States and de facto recognition by many states of western Europe. As an independent sovereign nation, Israel should be freed from any political arm operating within the boundaries of other nations.

American organizations should not be permitted to interfere in the affairs of the sovereign state of Israel, and likewise Israel, through affiliated political organizations in the United States, should not be permitted to interfere with nor alter the status of Americans of Jewish faith.

Humanitarian support of Israelis, and economic support of Israel can and should continue through appropriate, philanthropic, investment and official American (and other) channels.

It would appear the role of political Zionism (World Zionist Organization and Zionist Organization of America) has been played to its final curtain call and should now gracefully bow out. JOSEPT D. KAUFMAN,

Unity Vs. Communism

How like a fresh, strong and invigorating breeze were the words you published recently by the Rev. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris of the Foundry Methodist Church. He said that "this fight is not just between Roman Catholicism and communism. It is between Godless communism and any type of Christianity worthy of the name." He might have extended his remarks to declare "and all others worthy of being called decent human beings." M. M.

Cardinal Mindszenty's Trial

The majority of opinion condemns the Mindszenty trial as fraud and persecution. It must not be forgotten that this reaction is based on conjecture.

To Catholics the trial is not part of the fight between democracy and totalitarianism, or capitalism and socialism, but between the Catholic Church and communism, each seeking to annihilate the other. Mindszenty could not be loyal to both, and all the testimony and evidence yet presented point toward his working against the Hungarian Communist government. The church is not angry because the court is part of a police state, but because they believe that a cardinal, with supernatural powers given by God, should not be tried by a civil or people's court.

Many Protestants and others condemn the trial because they assume totalitarian methods have been used and would condemn all trials thought to be unfair regardless of the country or politics of the courts. This, I think, explains the reawakening of the antagonism between Catholics and those who believe in other ways of life. Both may work against the Communists but toward the establishment of conflicting aims.

The letter of Norman Thomas in The Washington Post of February 11 is to be commended highly as the sanest statement on the subject. His points should be reiterated because much of the public reaction to the trial is based only on emotionalism.

STANLY BERNARD.
Washington.

Cardinal Mindszenty is a casualty of the now open war between the Communists and the Roman Catholic Church, which has broken out in Europe. All of our prayers should be for him in this hour of his humiliation.

While I hate the communistic idea of "freedom," the Roman Catholic idea of freedom as contained in the writings of the Popes and cardinals also brings many questions to my mind. Therefore, I am merely cautioning all neutrals not to get too passionate over the Mindszenty case and thereby get caught in the middle, but to spend our energies fighting for the real idea of freedom as contained in the Constitution of the United States.

W. L. STURTEVANT,
Minister, Boykins Methodist Church.
Boykins, Va.

It is significant that in the Cardinal Mindszenty case, Catholics, save for a few leading prelates, have had a hard time getting a word in protest. Non-Catholics of all religious persuasions have siezed the opportunity to proclaim their feelings.

The public opinion of this country is still fundamentally sound and unbiased. The cause of tolerance, while it receives some staggering blows occasionally, is still a popular cause. Rt. Rev. MAURICE S. SHEEHY.
Washington.

I have always understood that the supremacy of the civil state is a fundamental plank in the structure of religious liberty. Doubtless this is morally indefensible, from a strict Christian point of view; there should be a "higher law" than the state's. But since 1688 our Anglo-American tradition has recognized no such law.

If the cardinal was wrongly convicted, "railroaded," then this is a miscarriage of justice which would be equally outrageous were the victim not a cleric. If he was rightly convicted, that is if he was guilty of conspiring against the state, there are no grounds on which we can declare this to be an assault on liberty simply because a religious personage was involved. Explaining The Filibuster

By Malvina Lindsay

Uninhibited Debate

Scene—A meeting of the Association for Advancement.

CHAIRMAN—We have met to vote on the motion, discussed in our last 10 meetings, that we urge the Senate to abolish the filibuster.

Judge Pudd—Wait! I object to our voting until we fully understand the issue. We need further debate.

Erasmus J. Dare—I protest this implication of our stupidity!

Mrs. McAddle—Why is everybody so dumb?

Mr. Vanderpuffer—Let's have the matter more fully clarified. I've asked former Senator Whiffle to come tonight to explain it.

Chairman — Senator Whiffle, please come forward.

Senator Whiffle—Ladies and gentlemen, you seem somewhat confused over this so-called filibuster. I shall try to further confuse—I mean I will expose this nefarious, socialistic scheme to undermine the rugged individualism, the militant Americanism, the unchanging standpattism of the er-er—well what I am getting at is you can't change human nature. These wolves in sheep's clothing, these enemies within our gates should—should—er—go back where they came from. What I mean is that God made everybody as He intended them to be.

MRS. MARCH—Mr. Chairman! May I inquire what the gentleman is talking about?

Judge Pudd—See! That shows our members don't yet understand the issue!

Senator Whiffle—Ladies and gentlemen, as I was saying, I come from an old family, a proud family. Which reminds me of an amusing little incident that happened to one of my wife's relatives. This so-called aunt of hers—she was really a step-aunt, for you see her widower uncle in his old days got a little teched and got married——

Mr. Dare—I rise to a point of order!

Mr. Vanderpuffer—Sit down! The Senator has the floor!

Senator Whiffle—Let me notify the so-called gentleman that I have just begun to fight—I mean talk. I speak for motherhood—that is millions of American fathers. Ladies and gentlemen, I say to you this is revolution! We must not haul Old Glory down! Think of the great Titans who have talked hours upon end on the Senate floor—old Bob La Follette 18 hours, Allen 16½ hours, Smoot 12 hours. Think of Pitchfork Ben Tilman reading Byron! Which reminds me! I have a little limerick here on old maids——

Mrs. Montclair St. Vitus—Mr. Chairman, may I be excused? They're holding up three committee meetings for me. If you decide to have a bazaar let me know.

Chairman—Wait! Don't anyone else go! Senator Whiffle's not through explaining. Besides we have to vote.

Mrs. McAddle—He didn't tell what happened to his aunt's wife—I mean his step-aunt——

SENATOR Whiffle—Well that old uncle of my wife's was a great man—a great American. And ladies and gentlemen, I want to say to you that I've always been a true friend of the American people. And I say to you we must rise up against this sinister peril. We must keep our feet on the ground. The handwriting is on the wall. We have been betrayed in the house of our fathers. These so-called reformers, these do-gooders, these radicals and malcontents, where are they leading us? Incidentally, how many of you have ever tasted fried mush—I mean the real old 100 per cent American fried mush. What this country needs is more of the good old genuine mush——

Mrs. Marsh—I demand discussion of the question.

Judge Pudd—The little lady is confused.

Senator Whiffle — Ladies and gentlemen, I want to say that my people came to this country before—er—well before anybody else. We must not lose sight of the things that made this Nation great. And I want to say to you as regards this so-called filibuster we must valiantly rise above principle—I mean party, and defend to the death our right as free Americans to unlimited, unintimidated, uninhibited, er—er uninhibited support of one er—er the good old genuine, common sense—er er fried mush! Which reminds me of that noble poem, Casey at the Bat, which I will now read——

Mr. Dare—I move we adjourn without voting!

Chorus—Second the motion!

"Partners Or Allies"

These three years since the end of the war have seemed to me to be tragic years. While in the Army I was eager to live in the future. The new smallness of our planet, the worldwide suffering, horror and waste and the stupendous results achieved by the free peoples of the world when common effort took precedence over senseless national sovereignty, all these facts, it seemed, could not fail to inspire the people and their leaders to institute a new era of world law.

I no longer envision the future. We are preparing for war instead of law and peace. Yet at times I read such articles as your editorial "Partners Or Allies" (February 8) and the spark of hope is again placed in my thoughts. Not all those who can make their views heard have passed through this period of great human suffering and yet given no thought to its prevention. J. E. A.

Washington Calling

The AMA And Health Insurance

THE HEALTH plan presented by the American Medical Association is tragically late. It is an eleventh-hour deathbed conversion, and because it is that the sincerity and the intention of the AMA will be questioned.

Childs

The plan was made public as the Truman Administration is working on a comprehensive national health insurance scheme to recommend to Congress. The health insurance bill will go up to Capitol Hill in the near future with the President's O. K.

While they have heard propaganda on both sides, and particularly from the AMA, most Americans know little about health insurance. Whether there is any real sentiment in the country for such a widespread program is doubtful.

But what most Americans do know is this: Medical care is so costly that in any adequate form it is beyond the reach of millions. The very poor in cities where there are free clinics and free hospitals can be cared for without cost. The rich can pay their doctor and hospital bills.

In between is the broad band of middle-class Americans for whom a long illness may mean ruin. For millions too proud to accept charity, medical costs are prohibitively high. These are the Americans who have looked hopefully for some decent and honorable plan that would give them medical care at a price they could pay.

ONE METHOD is the prepaid, group medical care plan. Families formed in voluntary groups each pay a fixed sum per month to cover doctor and hospital bills.

But the AMA has not encouraged such plans. The public has had the impression that the Medical Association has set itself against any change. Such a reasonable man as Gov. Earl Warren has been denounced for his proposed California Statewide health insurance plan.

In the absence of any concerted movement for a gradual betterment of health standards and a lowering of medical costs on a cooperative or group basis, a Federal measure was certain to be put forward. The tragedy is that the AMA might have pioneered in discovering a grass-roots, voluntary, truly American way to meet the problem.

Instead, until the 12-point health plan of this week, the AMA has devoted its resources to attacking Federal health insurance as socialism. Agencies such as the National Physicians Committee, which was endorsed by the AMA house of delegates at the St. Louis meeting in December, have stooped to dubious and what might even be called un-American propaganda.

ONE EXAMPLE is the letter sent to all Protestant ministers and addressed to "Dear Christian American." Apparently through a blunder it was later sent to Roman Catholic clergy and to Jewish rabbis and produced a violent reaction. One passage in this extraordinary letter says:

"To the Christian who believes in the sanctity of life, nothing could be more dangerous than the spectacle of politicians arbitrarily juggling the birth rate, through the application of propaganda or compulsion by means of an abuse of political medicine. Once power over all medical services is concentrated in the hands of a few bureaucrats, it would be inevitable that—sooner or later—they would misuse it to establish 'quotas' for the baby crop in the same way that the Agriculture Department theorists set 'quotas' for farm production."

In a special note to members the National Physicians Committee said that the mailing of this "Dan Gilbert Washington Letter" had come out of "conferences and contacts extending over a period of two years." The doctors were advised to take it up with "your minister and the editor of your local newspaper."

AMA representatives say the association was not consulted at all about this letter. They seem to realize that this kind of propaganda can do far more harm than good.

The AMA is seeking to raise a fund to fight the Administration proposal by levying a $25 assessment on each of 140,000 members. There are growing signs of resistance to this assessment. Many doctors are acutely aware of the trouble their patients have in meeting medical costs.

Like the average middle-class American, they would go for a sensible proposal having as its base a voluntary and independent association of doctor and citizen. The Republicans are coming up with their own health and medical plan. They have a magnificent opportunity to show that the choice is not between do-nothingism, clinging to things as they are, and on the other hand, a Federal blanket covering all of medicine.

Rep. Taber Says Government Is Killing Private Utilities

By the United Press

Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.) said yesterday that private utilities gradually are being driven out of business by Government power projects.

Opposing an appropriation of $2,500,000 to start construction of a Government steam power plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn., Taber said public power is the opening wedge for socialization of all industry.

The power plant money is included in a $466,882,177 deficiency appropriation bill on which House debate began yesterday. The bill is $14,002,400 below budget requests to meet Government expenses until June 30.

A $2,274,500 item to modernize the House chamber, and repair its sagging roof was approved, 122 to 78, after heated debate.

Representative Karl Stefan (R., Nebr.) objected that plans call for putting in "neon lights," and would make the chamber "look like a night club."

Speaker Sam Rayburn said he didn't feel safe under the maze of steel beams and girders that were put in as temporary supports for the roof 10 years ago.

Taber said Federally operated power projects could undersell private companies, because they did not have to pay taxes and interest and charge off depreciation.

The Republican-controlled Congress last year refused to appropriate money for the Johnsonville plant.

The pending bill also would wipe out an act of the last Congress to strike Reclamation Director Michael Strauss and California Regional Director Richard Boke from the payroll.

Welfare Dept. Bill Advances

said, should be required to study and disseminate information about health, education, welfare and social security.

These activities, he said, were of such paramount importance that those charged with keeping the people informed on these matters should be given all the prestige and importance of Cabinet rank.

Earlier in the day representatives of the American Medical Association, the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons and other of the American Dental Association testified.

Favors Health Department

Dr. John W. Green, a member of the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association, told the committee the association favored the creation of a department of health under a Secretary with Cabinet status rather than a department covering education and welfare as well.

Dr. Robert E. S. Young, president of the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, also advocated a department of health headed by a physician.

"The health of the Nation," he said, "is far too important to be eclipsed or to become embroiled in matters of welfare, education social security—cash benefits, etc.

Dr. William J. Quigley, speaking for the New Jersey Medical Association, also opposed an overall department but favored creation of a separate Department of Health.

A Washington dentist, Dr. Henry A. Swanson, 1726 Eye st. nw., appeared for the American Dental Association.

Swanson said the dental association favored the administration of health programs in the Federal Government under the direction of a member of one of the health professions.

He called for establishment of a Department of Health, administered by a cabinet chief required by law to be a physician.

The dentists also favor, he said, creation of a Bureau of Dentistry under the Health Department.

Doctor Group Fights AMA $25 Assessment

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—America's largest local group of doctors voted tonight against the American Medical Association's $25 assessment to fight national health insurance.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

The Vulnerable Flanks

LONDON.—From the vantage point of this old, indomitable city, it is clear that the world crisis is entering a new phase. In Europe, the chief scene of Soviet aggression since the end of the war, an uneasy stalemate is being reached. But the attack is meanwhile shifting to the vast colonial area which is the vulnerable flank of the Western world.

As the disastrous developments in China and Indonesia suggest only too clearly, the first center of this new attack is the Far East. But China and Indonesia are by no means the whole story. What is going forward in the Far East is nothing less than a Soviet land drive toward Australia in many ways comparable to the Japanese drive by sea.

China being lost, the decisive area in this struggle will be to the southward. The outlook is nowhere good. In Indo-China, the French have thus far failed miserably to deal with the Communist regime of Ho Chi Minh. Being unwilling either to make convincing concessions to Indo-Chinese nationalism, or to convince by sufficient force, they have merely wasted men and treasure. London has now urgently warned Paris to get on with the job, grimly pointing out that the jig will be up if and when Chinese Communists control the other side of the border from Ho Chi Minh's forces.

In Malaya, the British are having serious trouble with small but elusive groups of Communist guerillas. And in Burma, the situation is worst of all. The primitive Karens from the hills are giving a drubbing to the forces of the incompetent, frivolous and corrupt Rangoon government. Only one Rangoon leader of any consequence, Thakin Nu, remains unmurdered. Two factions of Communists are in the field. And if present anarchy continues, the Communists, being the only organized element, must win in the end.

ADD THESE situations to the situations in China and Indonesia, and the danger in the Far East, becomes apparent. The strategic consequences are past computing. Burma and Indo-China are necessary rice bowls of the Orient. Malayan rubber and tin are among the foundation stones of the British economy. If Japan is denied commerce with Asia she can only survive precariously, if at all, on huge American subsidies. And if the rest of Asia falls into the Soviet grip, the subcontinent of India will also be in immediate peril.

As yet, no comparable Soviet drive has begun in the Middle East. But in this area the attempt at assassination of the Shah of Iran is only the last of a series of disquieting signs.

In recent months there have been many incidents on the Iranian border, and an "Azerbaijanian government-in-exile" has been set up in Russia. A sustained effort is being made to infiltrate Israel with Communist "refugees" from eastern Europe. And Communist agents everywhere are redoubling their efforts to capitalize on the dreadful disparity in circumstances between the Arab pashas and the Arab poor.

A full-scale Soviet effort in the Middle East must certainly be expected, if the Soviets score further successes in the Far East. Nor are these dangers which can be safely ignored on the grounds that we must not disperse our efforts. Any such upset in the world balance of power as now threatens will almost surely lead in the end to war.

MORE knowledgeable about the menaced areas than the State Department, the British have long been seeking desperately to erect defenses. Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin was on the eve of forming India and southeast Asia into another regional grouping like Western Union when the Dutch attack on Indonesia wrecked his plans. Despite their distracting indignation against Western imperialism, the Indian leaders at Delhi are deeply disturbed by the Burmese situation. A commonwealth "consultation" on the Burmese problem with India participating may soon be held in Ceylon.

The truth is, however, that despite their fine recovery, the British now lack the resources to overcome such dangers as have been described. That is why men on lower levels here are beginning to talk of the organization of "fire brigades," led by America and Britain, for both the Middle and Far East.

It is thought that the famous "Fourth Point" in President Truman's inaugural address provides the basis for American action, and joint Anglo-American efforts are proposed because of the vital British interests in the areas concerned.

Certainly it is hard to see how these new dangers can be averted except by this kind of manifestation of the Anglo-American partnership. The task of restoring stability in the Far East must be undertaken on a major scale by both, on all three levels, strategic, political and economic.

In sum, if there is a lesson in London, where one sees beyond the borders of Europe, it is that our job is far from done when Europe has become temporarily stabilized. Indeed, we shall be worse than ostriches if we mistake great local successes, such as Britain's recovery, for decisive turning points in the world struggle. The world struggle is actually broadening and intensifying.

Federal Grand Jury to Open Tucker Corp. Probe Monday

Chicago, Feb. 15 (AP).—United States Attorney Otto Kerner, jr., today announced a Federal grand jury would begin an investigation of the Tucker Corp., beginning Monday.

The Tucker Corp. was organized to manufacture a rear-engine automobile embracing advanced styling and numerous engineering and safety innovations. So far, only 38 cars have been produced, lacking many of the features announced in advance.

The company is shut down, except for a skeleton maintenance staff, while a mass of legal actions against its president, Preston Tucker, other officers and the company are pending in the Federal Courts here. Tucker, meanwhile, has been hunting new capital.

Kerner said three subpenas for witnesses had been issued so far for the grand jury investigation and more would be issued later this week.

The Tucker plant is housed in a surplus war factory where B-29 engines were built during hostilities.

Tucker issued a statement saying "I firmly believe this hearing will clear the Tucker Corp. and give it the breath of life it needs." He said that he feels "we are going to have an opportunity to explain our side of the story after two and one-half years and will be able to vindicate ourselves and proceed with our program unhampered."

when the "Raceabout" was in style...

...a lot of other things weren't. Such as income taxes...estate and inheritance taxes. Not to mention inflation, housing shortages, and many of the other complexities of "modern" life.

Then it was easier to plan for the future—for a husband to protect his family and estate. But today, even with an average estate, managing it requires specialized knowledge of administration procedure, investments, real estate, taxes, and insurance matters.

History and change have given increased importance to the settlement of estates. It is an exacting business...requiring continuous, careful and constant work and study. That is the business of our Trust Department. Knowing the responsibilities that face the people who must handle estates today, we suggest that you place the management of yours in our experienced hands.

has never been ascertained by reporters.

Rowell went into the drug store, where he bought headache medicine, he said. When he returned to the street, Rowell said, the two men who had been slapping the third man, turned on him.

They accused Rowell of having called Second Precinct police, he said. Then they viciously pummelled, kicked, and kneed him. They forced him into their car, which he said was parked only a few feet from his taxi, drove around the block, then let him out.

Thompson said he sold Rowell a 10-cent packet of headache powder in the drug store shortly before the beating.

"I remember waiting on him because we had so few customers that time of morning—and because of what happened a little later," said Thompson.

"He bought a 10-cent pack of B. C. powders and asked me if he could take it here and I said sure. I told him to go to the fountain."

Thompson said he watched Rowell walk to the far end, the 14th st. side of the counter. He poured the packet into a glass of water or soda at the counter, then walked out the 14th st. entrance to the store, said Thompson.

Made No Phone Call

"I know he never made any phone call in the store because I watched him and he just didn't."

Shortly after Rowell left the drugstore, Thompson said he heard "ungodly" screaming outside.

Thompson said he walked out of the drugstore to investigate. He said he saw two men, one large and one smaller, in civilian clothes beating the man who had just bought the headache powders, on the other side of 14th st. in front of Public Liquor Store.

"The big guy had him by the shoulders," Thompson said. "From what I could see he was holding him (Rowell), gripping him from behind by the shoulders, and the other guy was hitting him all the time."

"He was yelling bloody murder. I can't remember what exactly he was yelling."

Ran Across Circle

"Then two policemen in uniform came running across the circle from the north side. They ran up to these three men.

"I don't know what was said. I couldn't hear it across the street.

"But there were some words between them. It was only a few words, too. Then the two uniformed cops walked away slowly back the way they came from.

"I remember that part because I thought at the time: What the hell! Why aren't they doing something?

Must Have Recognized Them

"There's no doubt in my mind those two cops must have recognized the two men doing all the beating.

"Then the two men took the cab driver across to the drugstore side of the street.

"They walked him to a car, apparently theirs, parked about in front of the White Coffee Pot restaurant, a few stores down from the drugstore. A cab was parked just behind that car. All three got in the car. The car moved off and I went back in the drug store.

"About 10 minutes later I came back out of the store and I saw the cab was gone, too.

"I figured the plainclothesman had taken it away or something. I got the impression they were plainclothesmen because they just looked like it. They usuaally have a look about them.

"Then, too, when the policemen in uniform came along, they looked and acted like they recognized the two men who were doing all the beating.

Pretty Sure It Was McClanahan

"And I'm pretty darned sure that one of the cops in uniform was McClanahan.

"He comes into the store often and I always kid with him. He's a nice guy.

"Well, about two weeks after it all happened, McClanahan came in the store and I said to him: 'Remember that time the cab-driver was being beaten up and you came along?

"McClanahan interrupted me and said 'No, I don't. That wasn't me,' and he walked off.

"Then Mr. Saum (Ford Saum, night manager of the Thomas Circle drug store) came up to me and said he heard me talk to McClanahan.

"Mr. Saum said he heard what McClanahan said and he was positive McClanahan was one of the cops who came along during the beating. He said to me: 'That was the guy all right.'

"You see, sometime Saum saw some of it while I was watching the beating Mr. Saum came out of the drug store and he saw some of it. He was out there when the two cops in uniform came by.

"He was questioned by police, too." (Saum admitted he had talked to police about what he had seen but refused to discuss the beating with reporters.)

As for details of the assailants' car, Thompson said he never notice much about it. He said he didn't know the two plainclothesmen named by Barrett and doubted if he could recognize the assailants, whoever they were, if he saw them again.

Thompson said he felt sure there were other witnesses to the beating "who could clean this thing up and won't."

Rankling in His Mind

"This beating's been rankling in my mind a long time. They didn't have a right for one guy to just hold him while the other beat him so much, not even if he'd committed murder.

"Hell, even if he resisted arrest, there were two of them there and they didn't have to hold him and beat him like that."

Thompson said there had been "an awful lot of talk in the drug store about it for some time."

"Thomas Circle is a hell of a place. There are whores, drunks, shootings, fights. It happens practically every night.

"But I didn't see how they could keep this beating quiet so long—it smelled too bad."

Barnes Charges 'Frame-Up'

Rowell beating. Barrett has added that he must prove his charge before he can take action.

The case of the District of Columbia vs. Barnes appeared yesterday to be the case that no one was anxious to try. The offense is alleged to have occurred on January 14. At a jury trial February 4, the corporation counsel asked for and received a continuance until February 15. Yesterday, Robert Chalfonte, an assistant corporation counsel, asked for and received a continuance until March 25.

No reason was advanced for the first continuance. Yesterday Chalfonte said the government had been unable to prosecute because one of the witnesses, Bonaccorsy, was on leave. When advised that Bonaccorsy would be back from leave Monday, Chalfonte said only that he had picked an arbitrary date.

On Monday, Chalfonte said the case would definitely be prosecuted Tuesday (yesterday).

"Why not?" he asked. "It's a simple run-of-the-mill case. We have the booze; we have the marked money; we have the witnesses. What's so complicated?"

"And besides, the guy's got a record," Chalfonte added.

Four Arrests Since 1934

Barnes has been arrested four times since 1934. A charge of unauthorized use of an automobile was nolle prossed. On two disorderly charges he forfeited $5 and $10, and in 1948 he elected to forfeit a $10 fine for discharging fireworks in July.

Williams said yesterday he would ask for a continuance on March 25, on the grounds that he is not ready for trial, "if the Government doesn't ask for a continuance first."

He implied he thought the Government would ask for a third extension.

Roche and Bonaccorsy gave their version of the case in a "statement of facts" on file in the Corporation Counsel's office.

Barnes gave his version to reporters earlier this week.

Conflict on Whisky

The first point of conflict in the two stories concerns the purchase of whisky. The officers say they bought "a pint of colored whisky (sealed)" and paid for it with three marked one dollar bills.

Barnes claims he has never sold whisky, and that the officers took three of the four one-dollar bills he had from his pocket at the precinct station.

The officers make no mention of having shot at Barnes.

Barnes said he was fired at three times by officers, twice as he was fleeing west on V st. and once as he reversed his direction and fled east on the opposite of the street.

Roche declined to comment on Barnes' assertions. Bonaccorsy could not be reached for comment.

Three persons stated yesterday that they had heard shots fired at that time on that morning, all of them occupants of 1011 V st. nw., four houses from the corner.

Say They Heard 2 Shots

They are Mrs. Winnie Mae Young, her mother, Mrs. Annie Salter, and her mother's friend, Miss Mundel. They placed the time of the shooting at shortly before 5:30 a.m. and said they heard two shots.

Roche and Bonaccorsy made no mention of entering the premises at 1003 V st. in their report.

Mrs. Louise Johnson and her 14-year-old daughter, Jean, who live at 1005 V st., adjoining 1003, said yesterday they were aroused shortly after 5 a.m., by a loud banging at the door of 1003. They heard no shots.

Mrs. Johnson and her daughter said they went to the window and saw two white men kicking in the door and recognized Barnes who is a Negro. The three men then entered the premises at 1003 V st., and stayed there for 10 minutes she said.

Mrs. Carrie Ward of 1007 V st., also said she heard the door being kicked in.

Panel Missing for Two Days

Mrs. Young, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Ward, all said the bottom panel of the door was missing for at least two days until a different door was installed.

Roche's and Bonaccorsy's report included the sentence "In order to make an arrest, it was necessary for Officer Roche to strike the defendant, causing laceration on middle finger of right hand."

Barnes agreed that he had been struck, "all the time, by both of them." Mrs. Johnson and her daughter said they saw one of the officers kick Barnes just before he was taken to the precinct station.

Barnes says he made no attempt to resist arrest once he heard the shots fired.

Battleship Maine Memorial Services Attended by 200

More than 200 persons last night attended the "Maine Memorial Services," sponsored by the United Spanish War Veterans, to commemorate the fifty-first anniversary of the sinking of the United States battleship Maine, which led to the Spanish-American War.

In the absence of Cuban Ambassador Dr. Guillermo Belt, the Embassy's Minister Counselor, Joaquin E. Meyer, delivered a message of "undying gratitude of the Cuban people, in the name of freedom, to those Americans who lost their lives when the battleship was sunk in Havana Harbor."

Representative Alvin E. O'Konski (R., Wis.) spoke on the modern world of democracy and communism. Fred R. Huseman, senior vice commander of the District USWV, was chairman. Lieut. J. P. Fay, U.S.N., Chaplains Corps, gave the invocation and benediction. The Marine Band Orchestra, with Henry Weber, second leader, conducting, provided music.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 15 (AP).—Grains finished lower at today's Board of Trade session as fairly heavy selling replaced yesterday's buying spree.

Traders had an ear cocked toward Washington and heard that there may be a lack of storage space if next season's crop is as large as anticipated. There also was an indication by Government farm production officials that there is fear surpluses next fall beyond the Government's means to carry out grower support price commitments.

The result was that shorts who were heavy buyers yesterday joined others in selling that ran fairly heavy at times.

At the close wheat was 1¾ to 4¾ lower, corn was ¾ to 2 cents lower, oats were ¾ to 2 cents lower, rye was 3½ to 4½ lower, soybeans were ¾ to 5¾ lower and lard was 15 to 30 cents a hundredweight lower.

Corn was influenced by the action of soybeans, which jumped around in a lively manner. At the start there was an accumulation of buying orders left over from yesterday's session. After they had been filled prices slumped and beans were off more than 10 cents before a mild rally carried them slightly higher. Support was noted from processing interests.

Other futures advanced with soybeans, but later this rally was all but wiped out by a selling wave which, when checked, gave way to a closing rally.

$855,289 Net Of Geico Sets New Record

By S. Oliver Goodman

Net earnings of Government Employes Insurance Co. (Geico) totaled $855,289 in 1948, equal to $6.84 a share on capital stock.

Goodwin

President Leo Goodwin reported yesterday.

Last year's net set a new high and more than doubled the $405,085 or $3.24 a share of 1947.

The auto casualty firm, founded in 1934, showed record growth in the past 12 months. Number of policyholders increased to 96,684 at year-end, a gain of 21,958 for the year. Total premiums written jumped 32 per cent to $5,904,636. Assets now exceed seven million dollars, Goodwin stated in his annual report to stockholders.

Goodwin also revealed that Geico is planning to enter the life insurance field. An application for a charter has been filed with the Corporation Counsel's office. When approval is granted, Geico plans to set up an affiliate to be known as the Government Employes Life Insurance Co. Like Geico, the affiliate will employ no agents, have no branch offices and will sell policies by mail to Government employes exclusively.

Reflecting the company's rapid expansion, capitalization during the year was increased to $500,000. This was accomplished by a 25-for-1 stock split-up on June 2, which resulted in 75,000 shares of $4 par value stock. This was subsequently increased to 125,000 shares by a 66 2/3 per cent stock dividend. Public ownership of the stock increased measurably during the year.

RECORD SALES: Gross sales of The Hecht Co.'s 11 stores in 1948 reached a record $82,799,909, a gain of 13.3 percent over the previous year. Fourth quarter sales of $25,392,623 exceeded the same period of 1947 by 2.4 percent, Board Chairman H. S. Hecht reported yesterday. The company operates stores in Washington, Maryland and New York City.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Albert H. Hall, executive director of the National Institute of Government Purchasing, addressed members of the Washington Chapter, National Office Management Association, last night at the Dodge Hotel . . . David J. Burke and A. A. Tarrant, United Air Lines' traffic representatives, will give some inside views on airline administration in a lecture today before students of the University of Maryland's transportation courses . . . A. C. Sayland has been appointed chief engineer of the Motorola Consulting Service, with headquarters in Washington . . . James H. Stebbins of Washington has been elected a director of the National Foreign Trade Council.

ISSUE PLANNED: Directors of Virginia Electric & Power Co. on Friday will consider plans for sale of 20 million dollars of new bonds. It is expected that the issue will be ready for sale at competitive bidding about June 1.

INVENTORIES: Stocks of goods on hand December 31 in Washington department stores were 3 per cent greater than on the same date last year, Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. On the other hand, outstanding orders for new supplies were 52 per cent less. Collections on charge accounts during the month were reported 44 per cent of those due on December 1. As reported previously, local store sales in 1948 were 5 per cent higher than in the previous year, thus recording another all-time high. December sales here also were 5 per cent improved.

HEAT VICTIM: Washington Gas Light Co. is suffering from the heat. Last month's abnormal temperatures forced sales down to 19,624,084 therms, off 4 per cent as compared with the same 1948 month. The drop was experienced in spite of 2500 more meters in service this year. The average January temperature this year was 43.4 degrees, compared with 29.2 in the same 1948 month and the normal 20-year average of 36.2.

ODD LOTS: Formation of the Ford Division of the Ford Motor Co. as a separate operating unit was announced. Vice president and general manager of the new division will be Lewis D. Cruose, who has been serving as vice president in charge of finance of the parent firm... Iron and steel imports from Germany reached 150,270 tons in January, up 42 per cent from December... The Highlands Branch of National Capital Bank now boasts a parking lot... Two movies on life insurance and a talk by Guilford Dudley, jr., will highlight Thursday's meeting of the D. C. Life Insurance Association, starting at 9:30 a.m. in the Commerce Department auditorium.

EARNINGS: National Distillers Products Corp. reported net income of $26,867,248 for 1948, equal to $3.37 a common share, compared with $36,443,638 or $4.57 a share in 1947. Other earnings statements:

One on the Aisle—

Wildes Are Fine In Faulty Story

By Richard L. Coe

"SHOCKPROOF," at the Warner, is a lot better than its title. Despite some basic flaws, its story of a girl on parole after five years in jail is interesting and Mr. and Mrs. Cornel Wilde play it with able sincerity.

The new Warner bill benefits greatly from a splendid "March of Time" on the living theater. This is called "On Stage," much of it devoted to the Playwrights' Company presentation of "Anne of the Thousand Days." Its scenes of theatrical life are immensely real and lovers of the nonshadow theater will get a lump in their throats at the mosaic of travail that goes into their favorite magic. It's a grand job, and if you're the kind that misses the Unnatural National, "On Stage" is for you.

Getting back to the Cornel Wilde-Patricia Knight feature, this treats with sympathy and some skill the problem of a girl on parole for a murder, a rap she accepted for the gambler she loved. Paroled under the care of Wilde, she benefits from his understanding. Inevitably they fall in love, which leads to the fundamental flaw in the screen play by Helen Deutsch and Samuel Fuller.

For their hero has been so effectively shown to be a fine and highly moral man that it is impossible to accept his flight from the law when it appears his charge has committed another murder. The righteous, ambitious man they have shown us could not have done such a thing, and don't give me any guff about Lady Macbeth destroying her husband. "Shockproof" is not "Macbeth."

"SHOCKPROOF." Columbia release produced by Earl McEvoy. Screen play by Helen Deutsch and Samuel Fuller. Music by George Duning. Directed by Douglas Sirk. At the Warner.

Welch on Ending

The ending, too, is an admission of defeat by the authors. Having taken their plunge for a chase sequence, they're forced to watch on it at the last minute to avoid that unhappy ending with which no movie can be dubbed "commercial."

But the pacing is good and one at least cares what happens to this hero and heroine, which is a darn sight more than you can say for most. Wilde makes his paragon of manly virtue a likable, believable fellow and plays with commendable ease. Patricia Knight (Mrs. W. in private life) switches the color of her hair to fit the plot and is a peachy dish indeed. The subordinate roles are stock in character and played as such, with John Baragrey, as the unlikely gambler, and Esther Miniciotti, as the hero's blind mother, outstanding.

"On Stage" makes a good deal of its 20-minute report on the American theater, touching on its narrowing limitations in the New York area and the heartening regional movements such as Miss Jones' Dallas "theater in the round." It personalizes the maze by tracking down the efforts of Margaret Garland to find an acting job. After scores of "No Casting Today" signs, Maggie finally comes up with a one-line role in Maxwell Anderson's current hit (this department; you may recall, did not care much for the sugary, hoked-up "Anne of the Thousand Days," objecting to its unhistorical history, but admiring Rex Harrison's splendid performance as Henry VIII). You get a glimpse of Equity's problems, the stage unions' viewpoints and the backstage excitement of opening night. Brooks Atkinson's readers will take pleasure as they watch him write his review in longhand—though why he has to write his own byline baffled me. All told, "March of Time" deserves a cheer for its 20-minute outline of a complex subject.

ROBERT BREEN, executive secretary of ANTA and the Barter Theater's current "Hamlet," is at the Willard briefly, dashing back to Atlanta tonight to resume his role with the Porterfield travelers . . . He'll be succeeded as the tortured Dane by Hume Cronyn, of the flicks, and here's hoping the Barter's "Hamlet" will get up this way.

ALBERT BERKOWITZ and Virginia Csonka, who did the music for GW's "Dark of the Moon" last year, have been honored by a call from London asking for their score to be used in the West End production of that charming play . . . The Londoners got the nudge from Howard Richardson, coauthor of the play, who'd attended the Lisner Auditorium production and recalled its effective and original music . . . Congratulations, then, to Albert and Virginia.

"COMMAND DECISION" will attract a brilliant invitational audience tonight to the Palace, where Vice President Barkley and Secretary of State Acheson will head a large group from governmental, diplomatic and military circles . . . This corking picture, which will be reviewed in this space tomorrow, will move down the street to the Capitol, opening what should be a fine engagement Thursday morning . . . The downtown openings continue to fluctuate . . . "The Sun Comes Up," with Jeanette MacDonald and Lassie, holds over for a second week at the National . . . The Pix will be having a new Italian film, "Four Steps in the Clouds," once "Symphony of Life" runs its course . . . the Hippodrome plans two new films for Saturday, "Take My Life" and "Caravan," both from the ateliers of J. Arthur Rank . . . And Thursday brings a promising one into the Palace, "Down to the Sea in Ships."

MR. AND MRS. JOIN FORCES—Cornel Wilde and Patricia Knight, his private life wife, as the married couple who try to escape the law in "Shockproof," the melodrama on Warner screen

Georgetown Residents Fight Rezoning for Apartments

Georgetown residents, leading their second attack in as many weeks, yesterday strongly opposed rezoning of a block to permit erection of an apartment house.

A group including Robert Woods Bliss, Charles H. Tompkins and Mrs. Harold B. Hinton, told the District Zoning Commission that building of an apartment house would add to an already concentrated residential area and lower the value of expensive homes in the section.

On White Haven Parkway

The tract under discussion is located on White Haven pkwy. in the rear of Wisconsin ave. between S st. nw. and Observatory Circle. Petitions signed by 126 property owners in the area were submitted in protest against the proposed rezoning.

Last week, numerous Georgetown residents appeared to oppose rezoning the home and land of the late Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean on Wisconsin ave. near R st. Proponents planned to erect stores and a small apartment building on the tract.

Other Objections Heard

The Commission yesterday also heard numerous objections to the rezoning of the area bounded on the north by Massachusetts ave. from Carpenter st. to Anacostia rd. se.; on the west by Anacostia rd. from Massachusetts ave. to M st se. and on the south by park grounds from Anacostia rd. to Carpenter st se. The proposal was to change this area from top residential to semi-restricted area.

Resolutions from the Fort Davis Citizens Association, Federation of Citizens Associations and the Southeast Council of Citizens Associations were submitted opposing the rezoning.

Parisians Will Eat Anatole, Zoo Buffalo

Paris, Feb. 15 (U.P.).—French palates grown tired of such delicacies as frogs' legs and snails will now have an opportunity to enjoy a more robust entree—buffalo meat.

Anatole, a buffalo of the Paris Zoo, was killed today at a slaughter house. His meat will be sold in Paris butcher shops. Zoo officials said buffalo meat is "exquisite."

Stags Ruin Phone Poles

London, Feb. 15 (AP).—The British Postoffice complained today that stags in the Scottish Highlands are wearing out its telephone poles. The Postoffice said the big deer use the poles as scratching posts "and the effect of constant rubbing is astonishing."

Club Liquor Sale Bill Is Rejected

By Phillip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 15.—Decision not to introduce a bill permitting sale of liquor in veterans' clubhouses in Montgomery County was announced today by the county delegation.

In making the announcement, Anders R. Lofstrand, chairman of the delegation, said the proposal had been studied extensively by the entire delegation and by State Senator Roy Tasco Davis.

He declined to elaborate on reasons for refusal to introduce the bill, which was backed by four veterans' organizations in the county.

Criticized by Buscher

After the delegation announcement, Assistant Attorney General Joseph D. Buscher, who is commander of the Silver Spring Memorial Post, VFW, and spokesman for the veterans groups, declared:

"The veterans' organizations of Montgomery County are deeply disappointed by the action of the Republican members of the legislature from Montgomery County. The delegation must have had an open mind on the question or they would not have scheduled the public hearing on the bill February 4, which, incidentally, they held on the border of Takoma Park, which is a "dry" town.

"The delegation must have been persuaded by the great number of persons persent from one religious faith with headquarters in Takoma Park, many of whom were too young to vote and all of whom are against alcholic beverages in any form and said so at the hearing. This action by a group of elected officials whose duty it is to represent all of the citizens of the county is regrettable and will be long remembered by the many veterans and their friends."

The Prince Georges County delegation announced today that it will not introduce the bill submitted by the county Civic Federation providing for an elected school board.

Perry O. Wilkinson, chairman of the delegation, said that the remarks of State Superintendent of Schools Tomas G. Pullen, jr., at a hearing on a similar bill for Montgomery County last week had a bearing on their decision. Dr. Pullen had said that educators generally believe an appointed school board is better. The delegation also believes it unwise to remove the governor's appointive powers over boards of education throughout the State, Wilkinson said.

1950 Referendum Sought

The bill had been drawn by Daniel M. Greene, chairman of the laws and legislation committee of the Civic Federation. It provided for a referendum in 1950.

Prince Georges delegates today introduced a bill making the killing of a policeman who is making a lawful arrest first-degree murder. The bill was sponsored by Delegates George G. McLeish and William H. McGrath. It is an outgrowth of the killing of Prince Georges County Policeman Charles F. Caldwell last June 12.

Thomas Hall, 54-year-old laborer convicted of shooting Caldwell, could not be charged with first-degree murder under present laws and was sentenced to serve 18 years for second-degree murder.

Members of the legislative committee of the Silver Spring Board of Trade will appear before the ways and means committee of the house Wednesday at 1 p. m. to oppose a 2½-per-cent increase in the unearned income-tax rate. Members to attend are: James Gill, former member of the House of Delegates, who will be spokesman; Lee H. Robinson, Hugh Arbaugh and Admiral Adolphus Staton (U. S. N., retired).

The Prince Georges County delegation today introduced a bill providing for appointment of the town clerk and treasurer of Bladensburg by the mayor and council, instead of election, as at present.

Chambers, Wife Sued for $75,000 In Auto Fatality

Baltimore, Feb. 15 (AP).—Whittaker Chambers and his wife were named defendants here today in a $75,000 suit arising from the death of a pedestrian.

Filed in Superior Court on behalf of William H. and James A. Thomas, the suit says Mrs. Chambers was driver of an automobile which fatally injured 70-year-old Mrs. Maggie Thomas last December 17.

The Thomases are executors of the victim's estate.

After the mishap, Mrs. Chambers told police she had been on her way to a Baltimore train depot to pick up her husband, who had been testifying before a New York Federal grand jury investigating alleged Communist espionage.

She subsequently was acquitted of manslaughter and reckless driving in connection with the accident.

$2500 Bail Furnished In Baby-Tossing Case

A 20-year-old girl who, Arlington police said, threw her new-born baby out a second-story window January 8 after an unassisted birth, was held for the Arlington grand jury yesterday charged with felonious assault.

The girl, listed as Miss Janet Clemons, who gave her address as the 600 block of Park ave., Falls Church, pleaded innocent to the charge yesterday in Arlington County Court. The defense put on no testimony, and Miss Clemons was released under $2500 to await action of the grand jury Monday.

The baby survived the 25-foot fall from the bathroom window of a rooming house at 3336 Wilson blvd. into the snow.

$4211 Found on 'Reliefer'

Newark, N. J., Feb. 15 (U.P.).—An 83-year-old man who has been on relief for years was taken to the hospital today following a slight stroke. Orderlies discovered $4211 in an old cotton bag in his coat.

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

Last night was the night of the big basketball game. Just as one of the boys said, the home team was "on the beam" and won the game easily.

I believe the thing that impressed me most was the way the team worked together. I began to think how important teamwork is in almost everything—in games, schools, clubs and among neighbors, too.

Take the teamwork on our telephone party line, for example. The neighbors who share our line never tie it up with a long unbroken series of calls. When one party is using the line, none of the others interrupts, unless it's to make an emergency call. In that case, the party talking quickly gives up the line.

Just as teamwork helped win last night's game, it can help us all to better party-line telephone service.

Inside the automobile were found a .38-caliber revolver, one slug missing. An Italian automatic was in the belt of one of the men.

Private Marquis has been on the force 25 years. On April 15, 1940, he frustrated an armed bandit in the act of holding up a grocery store at 311 K st. nw. The holdup man, brandishing a .45 caliber automatic, was wounded.

Ryan, the man wounded in last night's gunplay, is a Navy veteran and once boxed in the amateur ring here. He, too, once was the hero of a crime-nipped-in-the-bud. On November 30, 1947, he and a cab driver happened by as two men smashed the display window of Kay's jewelry store, 801 H st. ne., and started looting it. They summoned police.

Tavern Hearing Draws Crowd

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 15.—Committee hearings were the main activity of the General Assembly today as large crowds appeared to favor and oppose Sunday closing of beer taverns and to defend the rights of dogs.

The liquor hearing was held by the House Alcoholic Beverages Committee. The hearing on dogs was held by the House Judiciary Committee.

Approximately 400 persons, more than half of them women, crowded into the Senate chamber to debate the advisability of extending the closing of beer saloons on Sunday to conform with 13 counties which already have Sabbath closing laws. Leading churchmen and dry leaders of the State appeared to urge enactment of the law, while representatives of labor organizations, hotel, restaurant and resort groups urged that the bill be killed.

In the dog hearing, James C. Christopher, Montgomery County attorney and president of the Maryland Foxhunters and Foxhounds Protective Association, urged the Assembly to modify the law which permits a man to shoot unlicensed dogs on his property to make the law apply only to dogs in pursuit of livestock. He further urged that the Legislature spell out that dogs are personal property and owners should have the right to sue for damages where their dog had been killed.

W. C. Neacey of the Maryland Animal Welfare Association, urged that the penalty for stealing dogs be increased from three months to a year in jail and favored a proposal that female dogs in heat should be kept locked up. He opposed a provision in the present law permitting property owners to kill any female running at large while in heat.

Both favored bills returning to the motor vehicle code the requirement that persons striking an animal halt and give assistance and report the accident.

Both houses held brief sessions so that members could go on a tour of Baltimore's waterfront.

Bills passed by the House included one to repeal a law providing erection of duck blinds on any creek which is a tributary of the Patuxent River south of Truman's point; another to increase the peddler's license fee in Calvert County from $25 to $75 for wholesalers and $150 for retailers.

In the Senate a bill was introduced by Senator Edward Storm (D., Frederick) permitting clerks of the Circuit Courts in Frederick and Baltimore Counties to receive salaries of $7500.

To compare Eric Thorson, the handsome, wedge-shaped young Viking whose voice and personality are a hit at the Mayflower Lounge, to other male singers is a task indeed. Mostly because he isn't too much like other male singers.

Thorson

In pondering this problem, there springs to mind, for some reason, the unusual talent of that poetically-gifted walrus—the one who spoke with great charm and in remarkable variety of "shoes and ships and ceiling wax and cabbages and kings."

Now, Thorson may cringe at this admittedly outre comparison, but it has a certain amount of merit. The blond Norwegian, you see, like the walrus, is diverse in his vocal repertoire and pleasing in its presentation.

And there, happily, the resemblance ends. What remains is as excellent a show as the lounge has had in some time.

Thus, when the personable Thorson takes over, it's but the space of a few seconds and you'll have heard the last bars of "A Little Bird" and the start of "Largo al Factotum." While this is going on, were it not for his singing, there are times when you could have heard a pin drop, so quiet is the audience.

Like the dog that failed to howl, part of this noticeable lack of noise is the absence of chattering from the distaff side. They love the guy. The rest, of course, is an equally attentive masculine audience. He goes over there, too—no mean accomplishment, that.

Thorson at work is an effective and unusual blending of small boy appeal with a debonair worldliness. He springs into the center of the floor, lets you know he's glad to be there as he hopes you are to have him, and begins singing. It's nearly half an hour before he stops—a fast half hour.

As indicated, he dishes up one song after another in a pleasing voice that carries operatic authority, as needs be, with it. He totes the mike with him as he sings, and for each table he has a smile and a spot of attention. Pretty soon you find everybody in the room is singing with him.

This from a 29-year-old World War II veteran—five years with the Combat Engineers; a Minneapolis-born, one-time singer with the neighboring St. Paul Civic Opera; and a hard-working, boyish-and-suave-at-once entertainer you would never think has stage fright until he admits it after a performance.

The Casino Royal's new show got under way last night, with tap dancers, a roller skating act, and a specialty number on view.

Polio Patient Loses Costly Care in Home

JANET GENTLE
She'd "rather die"

New York, Feb. 15 (U.P.).—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis said today it is cutting off $600-a-month payments to a young Alabama girl polio patient because her family will not take her to a hospital where she could get better care.

The foundation said Janet Gentle, 17, who is paralyzed from the neck down, was a patient at the respirator center, Baltimore Childrens Hospital, until November, 1947, when her parents insisted that she be taken home.

Since that time, officials said, they have provided her with an iron lung and the services of two nurses in her home, at a total cost of about $9000.

In Russellville, Ala., Janet said: "I would rather die than go back to a hospital and leave my family. All I get out of life is being with my parents and friends."

The foundation said it had suggested to Janet's father, J. G. Gentile, who is unemployed, that he take his daughter to the respirator center in Milton, W. Va., where care would cost only $400 a month.

The girl has been in an iron lung since 1946, when she was stricken with polio, only a week after being named the healthiest girl in Franklin County.

Smallpox in Indonesia

Batavia, Java, Feb. 15 (AP).—Health authorities said today a smallpox epidemic is sweeping Batavia and other parts of Indonesia. They said 150 new cases have been reported in the past week.

Diphtheria Action Taken

Assurance that the District Health Department takes "every needed step" to prevent the spread of diphtheria was given yesterday by Dr. James G. Cumming, chief of the preventable disease division.

The assurance followed warning Monday by Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, that the disease incidence has mounted in the past four months. Thirteen reported cases, with four fatalities, were recorded, he said.

Precautions taken, Dr. Cumming said, include quarantine of the home. Patient contacts are also isolated.

Of the four deaths recorded since November 3, all were children under 5 years old, the Health Department records showed. The fatalities showed a wide geographical spread, from homes in the 300 block of O st. sw.; the 1300 block of C st. se.; the 2200 block of 12th pl. nw., and the last recorded diphtheria fatality, on February 8, from a home in the 1500 block of Bass pl. se.

Dr. Jensen Undecided About Gallinger Post

Gallinger Hospital authorities were given an A for effort to improve the municipal institution, but a considerably lower rating for their accomplishments yesterday by Dr. Frode Jensen, clinician and teacher at the University of Colorado Medical School.

Dr. Jensen is leading candidate for medical chief of staff at Gallinger. He said he would leave Washington Thursday, still undecided on "future affiliations."

Much will depend on a financial agreement, he said, adding that salary was not discussed yesterday in his meeting with District Commissioners.

Dr. Jensen came here February 7 to look into the possibility of taking the post being vacated by Dr. Percival S. Rossiter. He has studied the hospital's operations, and conferred with heads of teaching schools functioning there.

Within the next 10 days, he said, he will submit suggestions on ways to improve the hospital. The same communication may outline terms under which he would consider accepting the position, he said.

Government Planes Bomb Karen Tribesmen

Rangoon, Burma, Feb. 15 (AP).—Government warplanes bombed Karen tribesmen fighting at Insein, northern suburb of Rangoon, again today in support of attacking ground forces.

Government and rebel forces exchanged heavy machine-gun fire inside the town and about it.

The government announced last night the Karens had fled from Insein. Another official statement said today the bulletin was "premature."

Fugitive Making Break Sends Posse After Pal

Atlanta, Feb. 15 (U.P.).—A Post-office posse responded to the cry of "Catch that man, grab him!" today and captured a fugitive from the United States marshal's custody after a three-block chase.

The posse made one slight mistake. The man who yelled "Catch that man" also was making a break for freedom. And while the posse concentrated on his companion, he made good his escape.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

IN THE SPIC-SPAN barns of the Calumet Farm, the redoubtable Citation is the favorite son of Bull Lea but today he is not entitled to peer down his equine nose in too uppity a manner at his stablemate, Coaltown.

That was a smashing performance by Coaltown the other day at Hialeah when he bettered world records for the seven furlongs and the mile on his way to equaling the mark of 1:47 3-5 for the mile and eighth. That kind of speed for a mile was never before witnessed on any track.

POVICH

A year ago, even Ben and Jimmy Jones, the father-son team who train the Calumet horses, were wondering which was their best colt—Coaltown or Citation. But by Derby time, Coaltown was tabbed definitely as a sprinter, and Citation went on to win the Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont for the triple crown and mention in the same inhalation with Man O'War.

There still is no temptation to rate Coaltown with Citation as champions go, but they can't take away from him the feat at Hialeah, which is the more remarkable when more closely scrutinized.

WHEN EQUIPOISE set the mile record of 1:34 2-5 at Arlington under Sonny Workman in 1936, he raced out of a chute that eliminated one turn, but Coaltown clipped a fifth second off that time while making the four turns of an oval track. And his 1:08 4-5 for the six furlongs was faster than any three quarters was run outside of a spring California track.

At the seven-furlong pole, Coaltown was timed in 1:21 1-5, a speed that was three fifths of a second better than the standing record for the distance. But at the finish he could claim credit actually for only one record performance—the equaling of the 1⅛ mark of 1:47 3-5. Only once in 13 years had that time been equaled.

Because the seven furlongs and mile marks that he posted were for intermediate distances in a race that was scheduled for a mile and an eighth, Coaltown will not be credited with record performances at those two distances. But that fact hardly detracts from his amazing feat.

AT NO TIME was Coaltown under pressure. He broke in front in the backstretch by two lengths, and in the stretch there were 12 lengths of daylight between him and his nearest rival. Jockey Eldon Nelson never laid a whip on him, was looking back throughout the stretch, and to what amount Coaltown might have shaved the record for the mile and an eighth, if he had been urged, will never be known, unfortunately.

It was some kind of a triumph, too, for the Joneses, who wondered whether Coaltown would ever get to the races after a setback as a yearling. In that year, he was rated ahead of Citation as the big hope of Calumet, but he came down with a cold that resulted in an abscess in his head and while training at Chicago, he collapsed on the track, bleeding from the nostrils.

Coaltown is now Calumet's big horse, at least temporarily, what with Citation recovering from a "firing," and no certain starter in the Widener Handicap at Hialeah. If Coaltown goes alone in the Calumet colors he appears to have the Widener at his mercy. And on Saturday he will probably win the $25,000 McLennan Handicap (he's 1 to 5 in the line) and bring Calumet its third and retiring leg on that trophy.

MEANWHILE, the Citation-Man o' War debate continues to rage, with horse folks split down the middle on the question of which qualifies as the greatest horse of the century. Their achievements are so strikingly similar that it is a question that may never be resolved.

Against Man o' War's lone defeat in two years of racing—the fluke upset by the aptly named Upset—Citation shows only two losing races. As a 2-year-old, Citation lost out to Bewitched, a stablemate, and later in his juvenile career he trailed Saggy in the mud at Havre de Grace. In his next meeting with Saggy, Citation won in a canter. Saggy finished last.

Trainer Jimmy Jones, however, stands aloof from the Citation-Man o' War debates, with the comment: "I never saw Man o' War in action, but he must have been a great race horse. So is Citation. I personally believe there is glory enough for both of them to share."

Justice Dept. Investigating Baseball As Trust

By James F. Donovan
United Press Staff Writer

The Government will intervene in Danny Gardella's $300,000 suit against organized baseball if a current investigation by the Justice Department shows the sport to be subject to anti-trust laws, it was revealed yesterday.

Officials of the Justice Department's antitrust division said the investigation thus far was merely an informal one and that no final decision had been reached on what course of action might be taken.

However, the Government would have no alternative but to file briefs and arguments at the Gardella trial, stating the Justice Department's position in the case, if its investigation shows baseball to be an interstate commerce.

The clubs, both in the major and minor leagues, then would be subject to the antitrust laws, regardless of the outcome of Gardella's trial.

FBI Would Help

The Justice Department is not concerned with the legality of baseball's reserve clause which is the basis for Gardella's suit. The former New York Giant outfielder charges he has been deprived of his livelihood because organized baseball barred him for five years under its reserve clause for jumping to the Mexican League in 1946.

Justice Department officials said their sole concern would be the commercial aspect of the suit, in other words to determine whether television and radio broadcasts of games put the sport in interstate commerce and therefore subject to the same monopoly restrictions as railroads, steel companies, packing houses, and other big business.

The study of commercial aspects would be undertaken by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which would have power to subpena witnesses and records.

Will Act Independently

It is possible even though Gardella loses his suit in Federal District Court, in which case the legality of the reserve clause would be upheld, that the Justice Department might independently determine that baseball is violating antitrust statutes. Similarly, Gardella could win his case against baseball, and the Justice Department find that the sport was not violating antitrust statutes.

American U. Hands Loyola 1st League Loss

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

By the margin of one point Jim Lacy, scoring ace of Loyola of Baltimore, became the third high pointmaker in collegiate basketball history last night, but that was about all the Mason-Dixon Conference leaders had to crow about.

Unbeaten Loyola lost its first league game in nine starts this season, 63-47, to American University on the local court.

It was American's ninth triumph in 11 conference games and it adequately avenged a 21-point beating by Loyola earlier in the season. There was little doubt about the outcome after the first quarter when the Eagles had more than doubled the score on their rivals with a 15-7 lead.

Lacy had one of the "coldest" nights of his career as he brought his collegiate total to 1943 points. He made good on only one out of 17 shots from the floor, but added six foul shots for eight points.

With his sixth single-pointer, coming midway of the final quarter and bringing the game to a halt while players of both teams congratulated him, Lacy nosed Kenny Griffith of Alderson-Broaddus out of the third slot.

Lions Lose Again, 5-2

Pittsburgh's Hornets moved in a tie with St. Louis for third place in the Western Division race last night when they defeated the Washington Lions, 5-2, in an American Hockey League match at Uline Arena before 765.

The Hornets now are 1 point behind the runner-up Cleveland Barons

Fleming Mackell gave Pittsburgh a 1-0 lead at 1:05 of the first period. But Washington was leading at the end of the period, 2-1, as the result of goals credited Norm McAtee and Win Mousseau while the Hornets were skating two men short.

However, Mackell's second conversion at 16:22 of the second period and "Rudy" Migay's shot just 32 seconds later clinched it for the invaders.

Entries Doubled

Bowlers Continue Early Rush In Post's 3d Annual Tourney

The third annual Washington Post Bowling Tournament, for the benefit of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club, swings into its third session tonight with 1400 opening night entries and some top-notch scores already recorded.

At the Clarendon alleys, John Stump, who rolls for the Fleming Elevator team in the Men's Major League, fired a 410-36—446, one of the top scorers of the first night.

Don Bock, a member of the Veterans Cab squad, had a hot time at Kalorama, opening with a 165 game and winding up with 389-54—443.

Petworth's leader was Jim Shafer of the Thompson's Dairy League with 315-114—426. Bob Becker of the Columbia Merchant's League scored 357-78—435 to lead the field at the 14th st. alleys.

The women got into the act too. At Greenway, Mrs. L. K. Maddox led 80 first-night bowlers with 332-93—425.

The tourney is in full swing from the Hyattsville Recreation Center in nearby Maryland to the Arlington Bowling Center on Columbia pike in Virginia.

It's not too late to enter. The tournament continues through March 1.

To enter, men or women, all you have to do is sign one of The Washington Post entry blanks at your favorite alley, and you're in. All it costs to enter is 50 cents. Twenty-five of the pennies go to the Police Boys Club, and 25 cents to the prize fund, the latter will amount to between $1000 and $2000.

Chevy Chase Ice Palace enjoyed a big opening night with more than 200 bowlers entered. Hi-Skor, Lucky Strike, Bethesda Bowling Center, King Pin, Greenway, Kalorama and Penn all reported almost double their 1948 number of entries.

Cooper, Cardenas Renew Rivalry

One of last year's outstanding rivalries will be renewed at Turner's Arena next Monday when Jimmy Cooper, featherweight favorite of Washington, takes on Mexico's Jose Cardenas in the 10-round feature.

Cooper and Cardenas battled to an exciting split decision in the little Mexican's favor last season.

Monday's scrap will be two rounds longer than the last between the pair, a fact that pleases Cooper's handlers. He closed fast in losing to Cardenas and figures to improve with a little more distance.

Army Medical Center Wins MDW Crown

Touchdowners May Sponsor Capital Open

Backing for the third annual National Capital Open, to be staged at Prince Georges Country Club July 1-4, may be provided by the Touchdown Club of Washington, it was learned yesterday.

Previously financed by the Landover, Md., Club itself, this year's local showing of golfdom's finest professionals may be handled by the Touchdowners if their committee gives the matter a favorable vote later this week.

A boosted prize list, this year totaling $16,500, has caused Prince Georges to look for outside financial help.

President Carroll Bird of the Touchdown Club, said yesterday he was personally in favor of backing the tournament.

"I'd say the chances of our furnishing funds to run the tournament are very good," he said.

Poker a la Femme

Haight Gives Lowdown On Evil Eye

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

NEXT TO THE WEATHER the hottest subject of conversation yesterday didn't concern my family poker games. However, I have had a scattering of inquiries lately as to when I'm going to start another series on Haight card doings or poker a la Femme. Tell the truth, I didn't believe such was necessary after the go-over I gave it last winter.

Haight

However, I'm just waiting on the store and the customer is always right so here goes:

Well, we're still having our weekly battle of the pasteboards, with the men ever mindful, and rueing the day we allowed the women to get a high-heel hold at our poker table, although we continue to admit it's easier to steal wifie's chips than to sneak cash out of her pocketbook.

Straight poker remains an unknown pasttime around our pickle, olive and cheese circuit.

The women have become experts at concoctions like Columbus, 1492 (all aces, fours, nines and deuces wild); Baseball, Follow-The-Queen, Dr. Pepper-No-Peep, Low-Hole-Wild, etc.

Aunt Agatha still shows up with her one-way, poker-money purse, with the roll of paper on which she keeps track of her debits and credits. No longer does she believe three tens beat two pairs of kings, but she still doesn't know how many chips to put in on two raises around the table.

Dealing continues to be done on an obstacle course. Cards still must be passed over, under and around a sea of salted peanuts, potato chips, pretzels, etc. We pass this and we pass that and at stopping time your arm is more tired than Sammy Baugh's after a Redskin game.

UNCLE LES still has trouble keeping his chips on the table and just as often as not spends more time on the floor retrieving than playing, although he has new glasses and no longer mistakes round crackers, smeared with cream cheese, for white chips.

Our women continue to talk about everything but cards during the deal and, as usual, keep asking "What's wild" after the nature of the game has been announced five times. Our men still tell their stories when it is their deal and they can hold the cards in their hand to insure a listening audience.

Once in a while a new game is introduced like Albany-Night-Boat or Get-Your-Feet-Wet, but generally speaking we stick to the old hokus pokus with so many wild cards I'm expecting the game warden to step in any night.

I thought I had seen the game of poker mutilated by wierd games. However, it was not until Cousin Mitchell came to town that I saw it ground into hamburger.

He introduced us to Evil Eye

Bill Meek Named Terps' Back Coach

Football Coach Jim Tatum of Maryland named Bill Meek to be his varsity backfield coach yesterday.

Meek moved up from freshman coach to replace Jim Meade who went to Furman recently. Meek, a former University of Tennessee player, coached the junior varsity in 1947.

Tatum still needs a varsity line coach. George Barclay quit to become head coach at Washington and Lee.

Defeat 8th In Last 11 Starts for Washington

Special to The Washington Post

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Rochester encountered little opposition from the tired Washington Caps, and defeated the visitors, 91-79, in a Basketball Association of America game before 4300 here tonight.

It was Rochester's first win in four tries against the Caps this season. Only last Wednesday, the Royals carried the Caps into two overtimes before losing, 99-94 in Washington.

The loss was the eighth in the last eleven starts for the Caps.

The Royals, Western Division leaders, were in rare shooting form, sinking 31 out of 66 field goal attempts for a remarkable .470 average.

They took a 21-18 lead at the end of the first quarter, and hiked it to 38-26 midway in the second. They were never in danger afterward holding a lead of from 8 to 13 points.

The only quarter during which the Eastern Division leading Caps outscored the Royals was the third. Then, Bones McKinney, Leo Katkaveck and Jack Nichols combined to score 24 points to 22 for the Rochester club.

Nichols, the rookie from the University of Washington, paced the Cap scorers with 17 points, same as Rochester's Arnie Risen.

Hoyas Routed By Holy Cross

Boston, Feb. 15 (AP).—Holy Cross romped to a nine point first half lead tonight in Boston Arena, survived a counterattack in the second half and eventually submerged the Georgetown Hoyas, 74-56.

There was no doubt of Holy Cross' victory after 10 minutes of the second half. The winning Crusaders received much more assistance from their reserves, who were used more strategically than in last week's loss to Colgate.

Three of the Crusaders scored in double figures to spearhead the winners' attack. Hook-shooting Andy Laska was top man with 17 points, 2 more than Bob McMullan and 4 more than the classy Bob Cousy.

The Hoyas were kept in the game by John Mazziotta, who tallied 11 points; Ray Corley, who also acounted for 11, and Tom O'Keefe, who was their best pointgetter with 13.

Holy Cross led 37-27 at the half. In the first four minutes of the second half Georgetown rallied to within two points, 40-38, but then the Crusaders regained their shooting accuracy and after 10 minutes led, 52-42.

Football Is in Air Out at GW; Eight New Prospects Check In

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Despite the summery breezes which swept the campus yesterday, football was in the air at George Washington University.

Seven spanking new freshman football prospects and a junior college graduate were introduced to Athletic Director Max Farrington, and had their class scheduling problems straightened out.

Only Doyle Miller, a 185-pound guard from San Angelo (Tex.) Junior College, wil lbe available to the varsity this season. The others will have to play a season of freshman football first.

Head Coach Bo Rowland said that his newest charges would open spring practice about March 7, 10 days ahead of the varsity, on Frog Island, the strip of green on the Virginia bank of the Potomac.

The newcomers will work with last year's freshman club, and a few other "visiting" players, surveying the possibilities of making their grid careers at G. W.

Emphasis in the building program is on acquiring big tough linemen. Six of the seven freshman incumbents are either tackles or guards. Three of them are from D. C. There's 210-pound tackle Fotis Karousatos from the championship Central High team, and Tackles Bob Allwine of Anacostia and Tom Bosmans of Eastern.

Biggest of the lot is 215-pound tackle, John Sestokas, a 22-year-old former coal miner from Scranton, Pa. Five pounds lighter, but just as promising, is Frank Continetti, an 18-year-old tackle, brother of Reno Continetti, GW athlete of five years ago.

The remaining lineman is 17-year-old Ken Samuelson, whose brother, Fred, showed promise on the Colonial front wall last season. The back is 6-foot 1-inch Paul Malone, a tailback from Albany, N. Y., who reportedly kicks the ball 70 yards, and is also a shifty runner.

GW Frosh Win

Baskets by Taylor and Edlebaum in an overtime period gave George Washington University freshmen their second triumph of the season over Montgomery Junior College yesterday, 64-60.

Evil Eye Has Haight

and anybody caught playing it is eligible for a fast ride to a mental institution, if you know what I mean.

IN EVIL EYE, the first card is dealt down. Then each player moistens the back of the card, and without looking at it, places the card, face outward, on his or her forehead.

Thus, each player knows the others' wild cards, but not his own. From that point on, it's the usual seven-card stuff.

Uncle Les, decided to try out the game and exclaimed, "I'm dealing Evil Eye."

As we reached for our first cards, Les cautioned, "Don't touch them."

However, he picked up his card and placed it, face outward, above his glasses.

We argued that he was playing the game wrong, but he insisted, "dealer's choice, you know."

We all stayed in the hand to the bitter end, each believing the Evil Eye card on Les' forehead was wild in his hands.

After he was called, Les spread his cards, looked at them solemnly, and said, "I have five Jacks," raking in the chips as he spoke.

We protested heatedly.

"Oh, forget to tell you," he remarked, "but the Evil Eye card was wild only in MY hand."

"Okay," replied his wife, Jen, "If the dealer has the only wild card, then we're all going to deal Evil Eye and take advantage of the percentage."

But Uncle Les came right back with, "Sorry, but you can't. It's dealer's choice and I'm making a rule that only one game of my kind of Evil Eye can be played each night."

Maryland Lists 60 Trotting Dates For Three Tracks

Baltimore, Feb. 15.—The Maryland Racing Commission today released trotting dates for the State's three harness tracks.

Each has been allotted 20 nights racing with five extra nights for rain dates, if necessary.

Oxon Hill's new Rosecroft Raceway will operate from May 26 to June 23. Laurel Raceway, which had a highly successful inaugural meeting last year, will pick up June 24 to July 23. Ocean Downs at Ocean City will hold its first meeting from July 25 to August 22.

Feminine Teams On Turner's Mat

The ladies move into the spotlight tonight at Turner's Arena for the weekly wrestling program, featured by a feminine team match.

It will be Theresa Thais and Juanita Coffman against Dot Dotson and June Beyers, and the hair should fly.

Chief Little Wolf returns to battle Dutch Schweigert, and Mike Collins tangles with Kimon Kudo. The final supporting bout pits John Vansky and Marvin Mercer.

Federal Golf Group Meets

The Federal Golf Association will hold its annual meeting at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the twelfth floor hearing room of the Hurley-Wright Building, 1800 Pennsylvania ave.

Four members will be elected to the board of directors. Discussion of rules, tournaments and suggestions for the 1949 year will be invited from the membership.

Howard Rally Beats Hampton, 48 to 41

Bobby Unmarked

D. C. Boy in Ring for 5 Years Without Glove Laid on Him

BOBBY HOLDEN has climbed into a boxing ring 6479 times during his career.

The startling thing is that Bobby is only 18 years old.

Yet in five years he hasn't had a glove laid on him. As a matter of fact he hasn't had a boxing glove on.

The reason for Bobby's unmarked features, after all those trips into the ring, is that he stayed a mere six seconds each time.

Then, too, he picked his times for entering the ring. These invariably came when nobody was mad, or doing anything about it, in the ring.

Bobby is the "round boy" at Turner's Arena. His very unique sideline for the past five years has been to show up at the arena every fight night and after each round of each fight to make a quick trip around the ring carrying a huge card bearing the number of the round on one side, an ad for something like "Garber's Better Gondolas" on the other.

Bobby is paid $1.50 a night for this job. He also watches the fights for free.

The D. C. Boxing Commission will never advise Bobby to take a rest from Boxing.—BILL BURNETT.

New Orleans Gives Up on Army-Navy

New Orleans, Feb. 15 (U.P.). New Orleans has rejected a chance to play host to the 1949 Army-Navy football game because it would lose $100,000 by sponsoring the classic even if 70,000 seats were sold for $20 each.

Sugar Bowl Head Fred Digby and Maj. Ray Scheuering of Mayor Delesseps Morrison's staff opened the negotiation after the mayor had issued an invitation to the two teams to play here and it had "practically been accepted."

However, Digby said, during discussions he learned that the city would have to spend $1,500,000 on the promotion, and couldn't possibly bring in more than $1,400,000. For this reason, the city rejected the idea.

Eastern-Central, Tech-Anacostia Play Today

An Interhigh basketball doubleheader, with an important bearing on the race for playoff positions, is slated for 3:30 p. m. at the Armory.

In the first game, the second place Eastern Ramblers face the third place Central Vikings. And in the nightcap, fifth place McKinley Tech meets the eighth-place Anacostia Indians.

Wilson (8-0) is the only team which has clinched a playoff spot. Three other berths are still open with Eastern (6-1), Central (5-2), Coolidge (5-3) and Tech (4-3) in the running. Eastern can clinch its berth if it can win. Central must win or drop down into fifth place. Tech must win or drop out of contention.

Hyattsville Beats Wilson 2d Time

Woodrow Wilson, the scourge of the Interhigh League, failed to terrify little Hyattsville High for the second time this season, and the Hornets earned a 47-46 victory yesterday at Wilson.

Wayne Adams' set shot in the last minute decided the contest in Hyattsville's favor. Wilson, unbeaten in eight interhigh games, dropped an earlier game to the Prince Georges County school, 42-39.

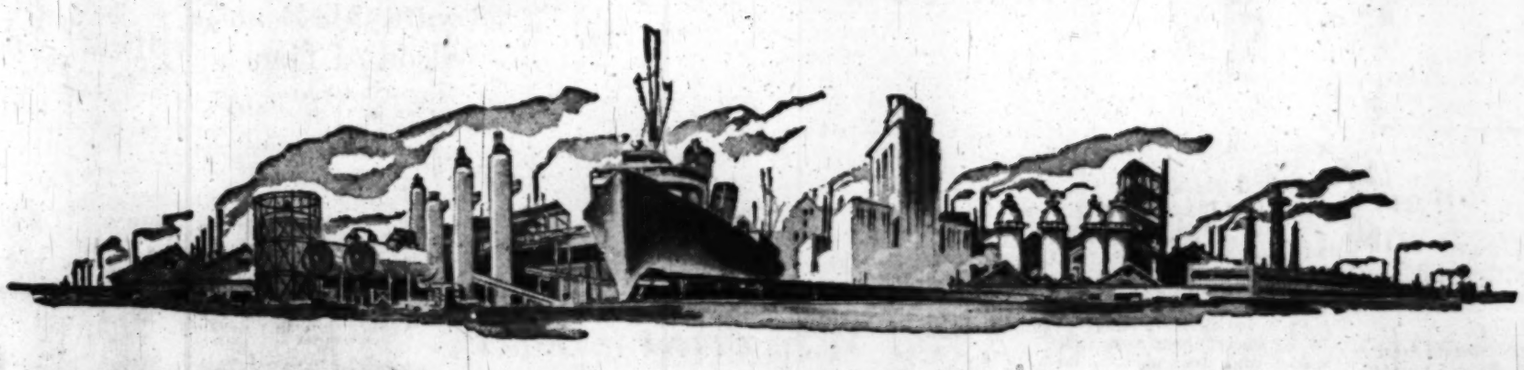
What's all this talk about Big Profits?



THERE'S A LOT of loose talk in this country today about "big profits." The talk is dangerous. It originates among men who have little knowledge of business or the real function of profits. It can undermine and strangle the strongest guarantee of individual progress and individual safety this nation has to offer its people—the American Business System.

Any businessman worth his salt knows that profits are the central and legitimate purpose of every business undertaking. That fact holds—whether it's the corner drug store or the automobile plant. But there are two sides to the picture—one of which the critics conveniently avoid.

In 1948—American business reported net profits after taxes of some 20 billion dollars. That means all incorporated business which handles the vast majority of all business, large, medium and small—other than farms.

These net profits amount to about 9% of the estimated total national income of 220 billion dollars. A lower percentage than in the boom year of 1929. A lower percentage than in the high production year of 1941.

Now compare! The total current annual expenditure on armaments and foreign aid including the Marshall Plan is over 22 billion—2 billion more than all the 1948 net profit of American business.

Why—in the name of plain common sense can this nation be applauded for spending over 10% of our national income for global charity and armament purposes—and condemned and maligned for corporate net earnings of only 9% of the national income, to safeguard the principle of incentive, and provide capital for growth and expansion for our own people?

Selfish you say? If that is the word for it, then we had better be selfish.

What Happens to These Profits of Business?

For the common good of the great majority—let's answer these cries of "high profits" and "profiteering" with a few straight facts. And lay away the shop-worn, defenseless notion that even in big business, profits go to a privileged few.

Our prosperity stands squarely upon the existence of millions of business firms in this country. And let's take a look at where these corporate net earnings of 20 billions come from.

The small and medium businesses accounted for some 50%—or 10 billions.

The big businesses accounted for the other 10 billions.

And if big business closed up shop—the mortality rate of small and medium business could wreck this country. General Motors, for example, buys from 12,400 small and medium firms. Ford—from 6,000. International Harvester from over 25,000. Through the automobile industry alone, 8 million people have jobs in other industries.

But—where do the profits go—and just who is the final boss of business?

40% of the 10 billion profit of big business—about 4 billion—was paid out in dividends to an estimated 5 million shareholders. 5 million people, the majority of modest means, who risked their savings to finance the economic progress of this country.

The 6 billion remaining is not at the free disposal of a small group of individuals, to spend as each sees fit. It must serve, as it does, to modernize, to build and equip new factories, to keep pace with the advances of technology, to buy new freight cars, new locomotives, to provide a backlog to keep men working in off-seasons and periods of recession. And in the end, to risk the millions needed to bring out new and better products the people clamor for—products that succeed or fail on the decision of the people. For the consumer is the final judge. And when the consumer says no—millions have been lost.

Then our misnamed Profit System becomes exactly what it is—a Profit and Loss System. And no business can be run at a profit without ample provision for loss.

Big profits they say? The next time you hear it, or any other criticism of the Free American System, get your back up—and give them this forthright answer:

If my job and my progress are to be assured, if the future and safety of my family and my home are to be guaranteed, if my government has any hope of raising 42 billion in 1949 taxes, then we'd better put a stop to this loose talk and face one serious, cold fact.

Every move we make to limit profits in this country carries every last one of us dangerously closer to the tyranny of systems in which we want no part. For profit is the life blood upon which both individuals and business live and thrive in this nation.

Administration Drafts New Travel Bill With Boosts in Allowances

A new travel bill is being drafted by the Administration. The staffs of the Senate and House Expenditures Committees are working with the Budget Bureau on it. When completed, the bill will be sponsored by the chairmen of the two committees, McClellan in the Senate, and Dawson in the House.

An increase in the travel allowance from $6 to $10 will be one provision. Another would increase from 5 to 7 cents a mile the allowance for the use of private autos on official business. Employes also would be reimbursed for toll bridge and road charges, etc. Under it, they could also draw advances to pay their travel bills without signing their life away as they are now required to do.

RFC was given a plug in the Hoover Commission report on traffic management. It was brought out that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had saved about 17 million dollars on its wartime transportation costs with an average annual cost of $200,000 to pay the salaries of a few traffic experts. The report brought out that most of Uncle Sam's traffic employes merely audit transportation bills. It suggests far greater emphasis on improving traffic management and costs.

PAY SNAG: The Murray subcommittee of the House Civil Service Committee yesterday failed to agree on a bill to raise the salaries of executives, foreign service and the District's classified employes. Everyone agreed the latter two groups should be promptly cared for.

The controversy was over the proposed pay raises for about 223 executives. Several GOP members of the subcommittee are reported to be drawing up a counterproposal that would give the officials a cost-of-living increase.

GAO: The Hoover Commission is having a tough time with its accounting report. The best guess, however, is that it will urge the creation of an accountant general in the Treasury Department to fix accounting policies and standards for all agencies, a job General Accounting now has. But a redraft of the report would require GAO's approval of major actions of the proposed accountant general.

The accounting report will be full of dissents. Several members will insist that GAO remain untouched. Another member or two would just about abolish GAO. Lindsay Warren is opposed to any change in his GAO, but he's all for reorganizing all other Federal agencies.

PERSONNEL: Chairman Murray of the House Civil Service Committee yesterday agreed with many points made in the personnel report of the Hoover Commission, but he had grave doubts as to others. He approved the plans:

That change the efficiency rating system, which he believes has hampered sound employe relations; to make the president of the Civil Service Commission its administrative director; whereby the Government would provide incentives and rewards for supervisors who do a good and efficient job, and whereby the Government would have a uniform pay structure.

The plain-talking chairman expressed serious doubts as to the Hoover plan to lay off Federal workers. He said it might conflict with the veterans' preference laws. The plan to allow agencies to recruit and examine their own employes, Murray said, could lead to a "personal patronage" system whereby favorites were hired and promoted. He said he was of the opinion that it would neither be practicable nor feasible to pay most Federal workers the prevailing rates in their communities.

But Murray did promise an open and full hearing to all points in the Hoover report.

MON WALLGREN has lined up jobs for three of his assistants in the National Security Resources Board. The three are JOHN D. DAVIES, who is expected to be NSRB secretary; JACK BALLEN, a special assistant, and JACK GORRIE, an executive secretary. They all worked with Wallgren when he was Governor of Washington State. Wallgren is awaiting Senate confirmation to be NSRB chairman. He can be expected to insist on the appointment of other friends to his staff.

Meantime, two new NSRB appointees—Col. Merle J. Reynolds to be director of its plans division, and Dr. Richard H. Rush to be a consultant on air transportation.

Trial Board Asks Firing Of Policeman

Conduct Unbecoming Officer Is Laid to Pvt. Charles Harvey After Home Fracas

Dismissal of Police Pvt. Charles V. Harvey, 35, was recommended to Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett yesterday by the Police Trial Board.

Harvey

Charges against Harvey, who lives at 1004 65th pl., Cedar Heights, Md., and is attached to the Ninth Precinct here, grew out of a fracas January 16 involving his wife and William E. Scott, a roomer at 6600 K st., Cedar Heights.

On January 27, Harvey was fined $125 in Hyattsville Police Court on accusations of assault on Scott and malicious destruction of property.

The trial board found Harvey guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer, making an untruthful statement to a superior officer, and being convicted in a criminal court.

He was found not guilty on one of three of the specifications involved in conduct unbecoming an officer—using his blackjack in the altercation. Other counts included beating his wife and firing a shot from his service revolver.

Inspector Milton D. Smith, trial board chairman, delivered the board's verdict and recommendation for Harvey's dismissal. Major Barrett will forward this report to the District Commissioners, with or without a recommendation.

D. C. Officer Faces Charge Of Assault

A hearing will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday in Hyattsville Police Court for Pvt. Gregory A. O'Connor, 29, of the Thirteenth Precinct, on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

The charge was contained in a warrant sworn to by Robert S. Simms of 7-S Research rd., Greenbelt, before Magistrate Harry Fiddesop in Hyattsville at 4:45 a. m. yesterday. The warrant does not state where the alleged attack took place.

Free in $500 bail, O'Connor is under automatic police suspension, such action being routine when charges are filed in another jurisdiction against a District officer. O'Connor lives at 9506 2d ave., Berwyn.

Beating Charged

Prince Georges County Police Officer William Wiseman said he received a call at 4:07 a. m. yesterday from Simms, telephoning from a Berwyn garage. Wiseman said Simms told him he had been beaten by O'Connor. Wiseman and another police officer, Horace King, went to the garage, picked up Simms and took him to the Hyattsville police station.

There, Simms swore out the warrant and county police telephoned O'Connor at his home. O'Connor arrived at the police station shortly afterwards, Wiseman said, was booked, and then released on bail.

Washington police were notified and Inspector Lloyd E. Kelly, night supervisor of District police, and a night inspector, Lieut. John O. Hite, went to the Hyattsville Police Station and suspended O'Connor at 7 a. m.

Denies Seeing Man

Hite said O'Connor told him that he had never seen Simms before in his life. A preliminary report on the case was submitted to Maj. Robert J. Barrett, Superintendent of Police. Hite said the matter would be investigated further today.

O'Connor has been a member of the Police Department since August 1, 1947, joining the department after serving six years with the U. S. Coast Guard. Most of his police duty has been in the Thirteenth Precinct.

One Gets 10 Years

Seven Youths Sentenced on Guilty Pleas

Seven youths stood before Judge Charles C. Marbury yesterday in Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro awaiting sentence for crimes to which they had pleaded guilty. What they got wasn't "any bedtime story," said the jurist.

One—Boyd L. Coffman, 18, of Staunton and Charlottesville, Va.—was sentenced to 10 years in the Maryland Penitentiary for holding up a cab driver. The others were handed indeterminate terms, not to exceed four years, at the Maryland State Reformatory for Males.

Along with the sentences, the seven youths received powerful lectures from Judge Marbury.

To four of them who pleaded guilty together, he said: "You have been in the toils of the law before . . . You started out, like everybody else, with a clean record . . . You have had smirches on it . . . You had better be pretty careful to tread a straight, narrow path from now on."

The four were Leonard Tobbolo, 21, 711 G st. se.; Roderick Staples, 20, 313 F st. ne.; Lewis E. Ottey, 20, 1496½ H st. ne, and Dewey E. Morris, 21, 410 B st. ne. All pleaded guilty to stealing liquor from a Brentwood night club December 15, stealing a car and riding in it to a business establishment, where they stole typewriters and adding machines.

Judge Marbury told them "there isn't but one way in life to go, and that is to obey the rules. If you don't do it, just as certain as you stand here this afternoon, you must pay the penalty.

"This isn't any bedtime story being told you and don't for a moment think the court doesn't believe what it says," he concluded.

The other two youths sentenced were Maurice E. Anglin, jr., 18, 4717 Baltimore ave., Hyattsville, and Michael Principe, jr., 18, 234 Randolph pl. ne. They pleaded guilty to looting a doctor's office in College Heights Estates of jewelry valued at $1282 on February 10.

Barrett Acts to Stop Police From Violating Parking Rules

Police yesterday launched a new kind of drive against illegal parking—this one aimed at police.

Prompting the action were "numerous violations" resulting when members of the force park their cars to report to police headquarters in the Municipal Center.

The problem has always been an annoying one in the vicinity of 3d st. and Indiana ave. nw., for civilians frequently see the violations and attempt to follow suit in double parking, parking in no-parking zones, etc.

In the order Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett stated, in part:

"Parking violations by officers around Police Headquarters or Municipal Court will not be tolerated at any time, day or night, unless it is a real emergency.

"Those who receive tickets and do not have a proper excuse will be required to deposit collateral, and perhaps will be subject to further disciplinary action, depending upon the circumstances and previous record.

"It is always embarrasing to an officer to place a traffic violation on another officer's car; also, for the commanding officer of a precinct or unit to be approached by an officer from another precinct for the purpose of adjusting a ticket."

Short-Term Loans Voted In Alexandria

Final Action Due Friday to Raise Funds Until Tax Receipts Come In

Authorization for Alexandria to borrow as much as $700,000 with which to operate until real estate tax revenue starts coming in this spring was tentatively granted last night by the Alexandria City Council.

The council acted at a special meeting called by City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto, who said he faced the problem of meeting payment on $200,000 in bank notes due today with only $102,000 in the city's general fund.

Colasanto said the $200,000 represented final payment on $345,000 in debts contracted by the city before January 1, 1938. The remainder of these debts was paid off last year.

The city manager also said that, because of the city's fiscal set-up, under which the bulk of taxes is not due until the middle of the year, he would need to borrow funds to pay city expenses for the next few months.

A resolution authorizing the city to borrow money was adopted unanimously on the first of two readings. The council meets Friday afternoon to take final action.

Colasanto told the council that $206,000 in 1948 taxes has been collected thus far this year. In addition, he said, $351,000 has been collected in 1949 business and professional license taxes.

The city expects to receivee $90,000 from automobile taxes in the next few months, Colasanto reported. He pointed out, however, that no large sums will be available until May, when real estate taxes, which comprise nearly half the city's revenue, become due.

The city was forced to borrow from the banks last year when it was a month late in setting its tax rate. Colasanto said the city has often had to resort to such loans in the past, while waiting for revenues to catch up with expenditures.

5 Fined $200 Each for Dance Liquor Sales

Five men were sentenced yesterday to pay $200 fines each for selling liquor at a dance given last October by Henry Wallace supporters here.

Sentence was imposed by Judge Aubrey B. Fennell in Municipal Court. The defendants immediately announced they would appeal.

The dance was given at Laborers Hall, 523-525 New Jersey ave. nw. The defendants contended they did not sell the whisky but merely asked contributions.

The arrests were made after a raid by more than 30 policemen.

Sentenced were Sidney Goldreich, 25, of 3812 Florence dr., Alexandria, Va.; Winston C. Edwards, 30, 2914 Sherman ave. nw.; Walter E. White, 23, 1313 49th st. ne.; Winfield Shirley, 23, 2327 Virginia ave. nw., and Bernard C. Campbell, 29, of 1007 15th st. se.

Judge Fennell refused to grant a new trial after the defense produced a juror, Mrs. Anne P. K. Mallory, 26, of 1245 Irving st. nw., who testified she misunderstood the judge's instructions as to whether individual defendants could be found guilty or whether all or none must be convicted.

However, Assistant Corporation Counsel Richard Barton argued that a juror cannot impeach his own verdict and that in order to warrant a new trial, the jury in such a case as this must have been influenced by "extraneous matters."

Man's Condition Critical After Fall in Cell

A 45-year-old man, identified by his mother and sister after he had been unconscious for more than 16 hours following a fall in a Fourth Precinct Station cell, was in critical condition last night at Gallinger Hospital.

He was identified as Bernard Jordan, of 1335 C st. se. He had been arrested on a charge of intoxication.

Police said he was picked up about 7:30 p. m. Monday at 7th and O sts. sw., where he was found lying in a tree box. He gave only his name "Jordan" at the time.

Found unconscious on the floor of his cell at about 9 p. m., he was admitted to Gallinger an hour later. A cellmate said he had been awakened by a thud as the man apparently fell, police said.

Mrs. Hitt's Will Lists $3,944,335

Mrs. Sally R. Hitt, who died here January 31 at the age of 105, left an estate of $3,944,335, it was learned yesterday.

The will of Mrs. Hitt, widow of Representative Robert R. Hitt of Illinois, and one of Washington's social leaders at the turn of the century, was filed for probate in District Court.

With the exception of specific bequests, the bulk of the estate is divided, half going to her son, William F. Hitt of Middleburg, Va., and the rest to two grandchildren, Mrs. Edith E. Hertelendy and Robert Reynolds Hitt, both of 1900 Q st. nw.

Real estate listed includes Mrs. Hitt's $150,000 mansion at 1501 New Hampshire ave. nw. and 1025 acres of land valued at $171,000 in Illinois.

A $25,000 trust fund is set up for Mrs. Hitt's former maid, Hannah Morrissey. Seven other servants received between $10,000 and $250.

Woman Loses $1000 Action Over Rewards

Mrs. Mary Glover, 1536 Marion st. nw., yesterday lost her suit for $1000 in rewards offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the holdup killers of Maurice L. Bernstein, a druggist here in 1946.

Her suit was thrown out of Municipal Court by Judge Aubrey B. Fennell.

According to evidence, shortly after the murder, police questioned Mrs. Glover whose daughter was a friend of Reginald J. Wheeler, 28, the man who, along with Jesse James Patton, 23, was electrocuted subsequently for Mr. Bernstein's slaying.

Mrs. Glover said she told police a list of relatives with whom Wheeler might be staying, including those in Ridge Springs, S. C., where he was apprehended. However, she admitted not knowing of the reward offers at the time. Police said they obtained the same information elsewhere.

The defendants winning the suit were the D. C. Pharmaceutical Association and Washington Post No. 58 of the Jewish War Veterans. They were represented by Attorneys David Blanken and William A. Gallagher.

Spring Takes A Bow Here As Mercury Soars to 77

Record High for Date; Forecast Today Is Mostly Cloudy and Mild

Winter coats were discarded yesterday, and spring fever was in evidence, as the mercury soared to 77 degrees here, an all-time high for February 15.

From a low of [illegible] degrees at 1:05 a. m., the thermometer rose at 10:10 a. m. to 69 degrees, the previous record for the day established in 1909. Peak temperature came at 1:04 p. m., when the mercury hit 77. By 6:15 p. m. it was down to 59 degrees.

Yesterday also was the hottest day so far in 1949, the weatherman pointed out. He said that 43 degrees is "normal" for February 15.

Forecast For Today

Forecast for today is "mostly cloudy and mild with the highest temperatures in the middle fifties, and some chance of rain at night," the Weather Bureau said.

The prematurely warm weather brought out buds and blooms on the Cornelian cherry trees in President's Park, at 17th near D st., nw., and Japanese quince trees, honeysuckle, and winter jasmine were partially in bloom on Hains Point, a National Capital Parks spokesman reported.

A sprinkling of pansies also was blooming in West Potomac Park, south of the Jefferson Memorial, he said.

Cold Front Expected

The cherry tree buds have shown no signs of swelling, the spokesman said, and Park Service horticulturists weren't worried about an early blooming season for them. They estimate it would take at least four days to a week of temperatures in the 70s to bring the blossoms out.

Yesterday's hot weather originated over the Gulf of Mexico, the Weather Bureau said.

11 Arrested In Falls Church Numbers Raid

Fairfax County police arrested nine men and two women yesterday in what was described as one of the biggest numbers raids ever made in the county.

Arrested at a dwelling house at 303 Douglas st., Falls Church, all were charged with violating Section 4693 of the Code of Virginia, which covers both operating a lottery and possessing numbers slips.

In addition, Mrs. Emma May, 45-year-old housewife at whose home the arrests were made, was charged with two counts of illegal sale of whisky and illegal possession of firearms. Preliminary hearing in all cases will be held March 4 at Fairfax Trial Justice Court.

A three-man raiding party went to the house at 11:30 a. m., according to Detective Sergt. Cecil E. Brown, and arrested the group one by one as they came in with numbers slips and money during the next 2½ hours. With Brown were Detective William L. Durrer and M. K. Bryant, an investigator for the State Alcoholic Control Board.

Brown said the raiding party confiscated about $500, a large quantity of numbers slips, three pistols and two shotguns.

Those arrested besides Mrs. May were: Mrs. Mary H. Moreland, 50, 416 Liberty ave., Falls Church; Will Brown, 40, 302 Douglas st., Falls Church; William H. Green, 37, 1829 N. Cameron st., Falls Church; Clem E. Ross, 53, Gainesville, Va.; Ira F. Marshall, 39, 412 Shreve st., Falls Church; James Jackson, 24, Philip Isom, 50, James Ashton, 59, Robert P. Lee, 29, Garfield N. Grim, 26, all of rural addresses near Falls Church.

Mrs. May was released under $2000 bond. The others were released under $500 bond.

Ihlder Says D. C. Slums Cost Far More Than Public Housing

"Slums cost the District taxpayer much more than public housing," John Ihlder, executive officer of the National Capital Housing Authority, stated yesterday.

Ihlder, speaking for the authority, replied to a published attack on public housing by the Washington Home Builders Association's Public Housing Committee. The committee's report stated that public housing cost the District $204,468.12, during the fiscal year ending June, 1948.

"Accepting those figures for the sake of argument," Ihlder rebutted, "$204,468.12 should be compared with the more than half a million dollars annually which a single one of the District's privately owned slum areas cost the taxpayers during the same year."

Ihlder then belittled the mathematics by which the Home Builders "produce a staggering total of $11,041,278.48 as the cost of public housing during 54 years; simply multiplying $204,468.12 by 54."

"This method of getting 'staggering' results would really amaze us if applied to the District's present budget of $110,188,648. If we multiply that by 54, the indicated cost to the taxpayers would be $5,950,186,992. But why stop at 54 years?"

"The same persons who today are looking forward 54 years with alarm, only five years ago looked forward more optimistically to today. Then they told the Burton Committee of the Senate that when controls were taken off building materials and military priorities were ended, they would produce four-room, row houses to rent for $35 a month."

Soup Kitchen Opens After 7-Year Lapse

The emergency dining room of the Volunteers of America, a 924 New York ave. nw. casualty of the war and prosperity, was reopened for free meal applicants last night.

A sudden surge in the number of "unlovely, unemployable" people asking for meals, noticeable since last fall, necessitated reopening the soup kitchen, said Lieut. Col. Frank Ulrey, division commander of the Volunteers.

Since 1941, when the organization shut down its kitchen facilities because of "war and full employment," the few persons who came around were given meal tickets exchangeable for food at nearby restaurants.

Requests began rising sharply in October 1948, Ulrey said, until there were about 125 applying daily in January. This figure, however, is still well below the average of 300 free meals a day served by the Volunteers in 1939 and 1940.

The dining room will operate around the clock and will take care of all comers regardless of race or creed, Ulrey stated.

Inquiries at the Salvation Army revealed that that organization has also experienced a recent rise in the demand for relief facilities. Increases were also reported at the Men's Social Service Center, 1st and F sts., nw., and the Gospel Mission, 810 5th st., nw.

A registered collie and her 10 pure-bred puppies were burned to death early yesterday in a fire that caused an estimated $3000 damage at the home of F. Newell Griffin, 4703 De-Russey pkwy., Chevy Chase, Md.

Griffin said the fire started in the basement about 4:30 a. m., apparently from an electric heater he was using to keep the puppies warm. Extensive damage was done to floor joists and flooring. Members of the household were awakened by the smoke and fled to safety.

A 79-year-old Mount Rainier man yesterday was held by Prince Georges County police under $300 bond on a charge of exposing himself before a 15-year-old schoolgirl.

He is Albert Stevens, of 2902 Upshur st., Mount Rainier. A hearing was set for 10 a. m. Thursday in Hyattsville Police Court. Police said Stevens exposed himself yesterday before a student at Mount Rainier High School after she left the school to go home. The girl, upon arriving at her home, told her mother, who notified police. Stevens was arrested near the high school by Privates J. P. Kearns and Joseph Hill.

Knife-Wielder Jailed

Jealousy yesterday sent Gladys Smith, 30, 632 Delaware ave. sw. to jail for six months.

According to Municipal Court testimony, Miss Smith saw Geneva Wells, 24, 446 M st. nw., with a mutual male friend, and brandished a knife. Before it was over, Miss Wells had wounds on her neck, forehead and legs requiring 30 stitches.

"I'm getting tired of this ceaseless knife-wielding whether the cause be love or otherwise," Judge George D. Neilson said in imposing sentence.

The House Public Works Committee yesterday approved a bill to increase the cost limit for the new General Accounting Office Building here from $22,850,000 to $25,400,000. The Senate has passed a similar bill. The measure now goes to the House for action.

More Funds Urged to Fight Tuberculosis

Commissioner Guy Mason yesterday urged District residents to "get behind" proposed revenue-producing legislation so the city can expand tuberculosis control facilities.

Mason, acting president of the Board of Commissioners during the illness of John Russell Young, made the statement at a meeting in his office to mark formal presentation of the Washington Chest X-Ray Survey report to the District Government.

The commissioner, who supervises welfare and health departments of the District government, asked support for the pending sales tax bill and other revenue legislation "so we can build" the facilities necessary to "eradicate tuberculosis in the District."

Mason said the tuberculosis problem was important to him, particularly since the disease had been uncovered and cured in a person "close to me."

He said that if sufficient funds were made available he favored additional equipment and space at the Glenn Dale Sanitorium, the Upshur st. Hospital, Gallinger Hospital tuberculosis department and the Tuberculosis Bureau of the Health Department.

The official report of the survey in which 2000 persons gave free chest X-rays to more than a half-million District residents was presented by William E. Leahy, chairman of the survey.

Leahy said the survey committee, consisting of representatives of the Health Department, the District Tuberculosis Association and the United States Public Health Service, will continue functioning "to see to it that those lessons learned in the survey" are not forgotten.

The group recently requested Congress to appropriate additional funds for care of tuberculosis cases uncovered by the mass survey.

Tuberculosis Fund Appropriation Favored

Petworth Citizens Association last night went on record in favor of appropriating money in this year's budget to enable the Tuberculosis Association to carry out its program of TB detection and follow-up.

The meeting was attended by 70 persons, 35 of whom were observers from a history and government class at Macfarland Junior High School.

Embezzling Trial of O'Day At Final Stage

The District Court trial of Gerald (Jerry) O'Day, a bail bondsman here accused of embezzling $1000 from a client, is expected to be concluded today.

The charge was brought in behalf of Bronislaus Matuszak, alias Robert Melton, of Baltimore. He testified he gave the money as security toward a $2000 bond last April while under indictment for a holdup here. Subsequently the charge against Matuszak was dismissed.

Matuszak contended that he demanded the return of the security but that O'Day failed to comply. Matuszak said that O'Day made no expenditures in connection with the case.

M. Edward Buckley, jr., Matuszak's former attorney, took the witness stand to say that $250 of the $1000 was coming to him as part of his legal fee for getting the indictment dismissed.

The trial is being held before a packed audience in the courtroom of Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut. O'Day has yet to testify.

Patent Protection Lack Held Curbing Inventions Abroad

Totalitarian government and the lack of a protective patent system stifle invention and cut down the standard of living, Crosby Field, president of the Flakice Corp., Brooklyn, N. Y., said last night at the annual dinner of the American Patent Law Society in the Statler Hotel.

Technical progress which will reach the common man requires "not only individual freedom but also the means of inducing a perpetual flow of invention. The American Patent System is the only true inducer of the invention flow so far discovered," told the gathering of approximately 350.

Guests included Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer, President Lowry N. Coe of the District Bar Association, members of the House Judiciary Committee, officials of the Patent Office, and numerous Federal Court judges.

Dental Equipment Firms Accused Of 'Conspiracy'

The Federal Trade Commission yesterday charged 144 manufacturers and distributors of dental instruments, drugs and equipment, including one Washington firm, the W. A. Lockwood Dental Co., Inc., with "conspiracy to eliminate competition."

Included in the charge were officers of the American Dental Trade Association, to which all the firms belong, and which has its headquarters at 1010 Vermont ave. nw. here.

The American Dental Trade Association denied all the charges, through its secretary, Wilmoth C. Mack, and characterized the complaint as "reckless and unfair."

The District Commissioners will meet today to determine whether to excuse "low bidder" from constructing the new laboratory at Gallinger Hospital.

Yesterday the Commissioners heard from J. A. Roystone and Albert Matthews of the firm. They referred the problem to Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, Auditor A. R. Pilkerton and Assistant Engineer Commissioner L. E. Cox for an opinion.

The next lowest bidder was the Zerzel Construction Co., of 1011 20th st. nw., which bid $352,775.

Rites Set Here For GI Denied Texas Burial

The body of Texas-born Felix Longoria, which couldn't find a resting place in his home town, will be buried near Gen. John J. Pershing in Arlington Cemetery today, with a United States Senator looking on.

Longoria, a 26-year-old Mexican-American, died fighting with the Army in the Philippines. But when his body came home to Three Rivers, Tex., his parents had trouble getting an undertaker to handle it.

A Latin-American veterans group protested that undertakers were shying away because of Longoria's ancestry.

When Senator Lyndon B. Johnson, Texas, heard about it, he arranged for a hero's burial in Arlington. At 2 p. m. today, Longoria's window and parents, their way here paid by the protesting veterans group, will accompany Senator Johnson to the burial ground on wooded Pershing Hill.

Writing About Woman Who Lives in Terror Of Hot Weather, Correspondent Thinks Her Basic Problem Is Lack of Love-Security

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Recently you wrote of a woman who greatly fears hot weather or heat exhaustion, and she doesn't know what causes this fear. I believe her anxiety refers to fear of death, for note how often she mentions fear of dying.

She writes: "I asked my doctor if he thought I could die of fright." Also, "Would the fear itself cause me to die of fright?" And, "I would try to venture out in summer if I could be sure I wouldn't die of panic." Her imaginary fear may be only a cover-up for the unrealized greater fear. Which leads to the question, why does she fear death?

Speaking from personal experience with neurotic fear, I suggest that she is deeply unhappy, maybe unconsciously inclined to give up the struggle, yet afraid that death means either total extinction or "hell's fire" punishment for fancied sins. Heat prostration symbolizes death, or the throes of dying, to her; and childish dread of "fiery" vengeance also figures in her panic.

Thus it follows that she ought to investigate her guilt-feelings, also her concepts of "the hereafter," and try to better understand and normalize them in the light of adult reasoning. It might ease her fear of death. Then, with some reassurance about summer heat being harmless in average doses, and with a bit of help in facing hot weather, she might cure her fear of heat-prostration. But she must have human help.

Happy People Don't Fear Death

MANY STRANGE neurotic symptoms have their origin in fear of death. Some years ago a mental doctor told me, "Happy people do not fear death." Neither do they have nervous breakdowns. Yet these fortunate folk aren't "just naturally" light-hearted. They are the product of solid security, which builds happiness for them, not because of anything they do or don't do.

Some of us never have a sense of security and sooner or later our latent anxiety asserts itself in illogical fears. One psychologist says, "When a child has been too much dominated, or ridiculed, or over-pampered—in short, if his life has been taken over by older and stronger persons, he becomes afraid to act on his own and retreats into himself."

The human spirit cannot long endure too many "No's"; so the frustrated child gives way to despair and becomes neurotic, which is simply a defensive attempt to live in a world of his own, inside himself. There's a lot to the subject, a new field of knowledge opening up, but still I don't think mere understanding changes things much.

People who are afraid, so afraid that they become ill from fear, are people who never received much goodness from life, particularly love. The more faith others have in you, the more faith will you have in yourself. It's never the other way around. E. F.

Dynamic Impulse to Be Significant

DEAR E. F.: If happy persons do not fear death, an aphorism that rings true, and if their happiness stems from being securely loved and vested with faith in their special ability to cope admirably with life, then perhaps all fear goes back to dread sensations of loneliness and defeat, shadowed by threat of anonymous extinction.

Which sparks the thought that every individual is born, it may be, with a dynamic impulse to live vividly and significantly—"true to himself," yet in close fraternity with his fellows; and that any emotional experience in earliest years that balks this mainspring tendency, or labels him outcast in his feelings, engenders instinctive anxiety in his whole constitution.

Thus perhaps it isn't fear of death, specifically, but rather an ingrained notion that she is insignificantly outside the warm circle of intense personal love and neighborly affection, plus a conviction that she isn't worthy or hasn't the skill to win her way to the secure center of such acceptance, which haunts our correspondent.

Indeed she may dread summer weather, with its invitation to be out and around, because it most painfully points up her isolationist status in the community; but of course she should check all such surmises with a competent specialist who knows the whole story from her angle. M. H.

RED carnation for the Boss: Frank R. Jelleff, who opened the doors of his new Silver Spring shop yesterday, receives a boutonniere from a pretty employe whose duty it was to see that each visitor had a flower

New Specialty Shop Opens in Silver Spring

THE FEMININE population of Silver Spring had a field day yesterday. A shining new specialty shop opened in that thriving little city, luring the ladies inside with a tempting supply of new fashions.

When the doors of the Frank R. Jelleff store opened at 10:30 a. m., and for hours thereafter, it looked as though Silver Spring husbands would go supperless. Their wives were having too good a time looking at clothes to be bothered about food.

For more than an hour before the opening, they formed a line stretching far down the block. When Mr. Jelleff swung wide the glass door at the appointed time, hundreds of women and children swarmed in, eager for a look at the long-awaited addition to their shopping center.

Attractive Shop

Everyone agreed it was an attractive shop. "Nicer," said one critic, proudly, "than any in downtown Washington." Friends and neighbors gathered in groups and discussed furnishings and decor with enthusiasm. They liked the pastel color scheme, carried out in shades of gray, beige, pink and blue throughout the three floors. Some practical souls pondered the practicality of delicately tinted carpets in the lounges, and others delighted in brightly striped curtains and colorful sofas and chairs.

Shoppers of every age found a special niche for themselves. On the first floor there is a little "7 to 14" shop, and across the aisle the layette division and costumes for the toddler set. Just above is the Teen Balcony, complete with pictures of the Hollywood stars that are causing the most heart throbs in that age group this season.

The Junior Miss finds her fashions on the second floor, along with other more sophisticated and expensive merchandise.

MAIN attraction with adult shoppers was the hat bar on the first floor, which was crowded all day. Their special delight was a collection of hand-made hats carrying the pleasing price tags of $8.50. One woman carted off six of them, and the small stock was almost depleted before the day ended.

What the hat fanciers did not know was that the designer of these fetching headpieces was lurking nearby, nervously wondering if his hats would be successful.

Designs for Wife

He is William Ferguson, a talented young artist in the store's display department, who is a Johnny-Come-Lately in the hat designing business. It all began when he took a special dislike to one of his wife's hats. Taking it apart, he sewed it back together again in a manner to his—and her—liking. From that time on Mrs. Ferguson wore only the hats made by Mr. Ferguson, and the young man found himself launched in a new part-time career.

For the opening yesterday Mr. Ferguson whipped up 75 hats, all of them hand-sewn, and each one different. When he catches his breath he is going to start an Easter collection. "It's fun, but it takes a lot of time," he sighs.

The Shirt, So Near and Dear To the Men, Is Drab No More

By Peggy Preston

And here in this corner we have—something for the boys!

It concerns shirts, mundane garments in our feminine eyes, but items that are near and dear to the laddies. Besides, these are extra special shirts, according to our informant, a gentleman who claims to have the latest low-down on male fashions.

Color is the clew to these fashion items. Not the loud, brilliant colors of sport shirts or the common variety of pale blue and pink. Instead, these are peach, salmon, helio (lavender to you, my male reader), lemon yellow, aqua blue and lime green.

Well, it's about time, in our opinion. Anything for a change from the eternal white and stripes. And our expert thinks so, too. He points out:

"These pastel shirts offer a man a good chance to use his imagination in blending or contrasting colors. The American male is color-starved and at last he has the opportunity to satisfy his taste for colorful clothing. It has always been possible to have shirts such as these custom made, but now they are available in the ready-to-wear department at reasonable prices." You'll find them at the Young Men's Shop.

There are other color surprises as well. Solid color, stripe or neat pattern ties that harmonize with these pastel colors on display to tempt you. Then, to complete the picture, there are handkerchiefs and socks in these same shades.

Departing Witts Escape Menace of Farewell Fetes By a Charitable Device

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

WASHINGTON'S No. 2 social menace is the farewell party. It's part of the cocktail racket, of course, but somewhat more strenuous, since the departing couple must endure luncheons and dinners in addition to afternoon imbibery. Popularity, prominence of position, boost the total astronomically until, in some instances, the recipient has actually succumbed to gregariousness. Yet, only the exceeding brave dare call halt to well-meant hospitality; those of ordinary fiber take it on the chin. But at last a sensible solution's been evolved by Grechen (Mrs. Frederick) Witt, who's leaving with her husband for South Africa March 5, has vetoed all squabs on toast, martinis, multicourse evening feeds. Instead she's asking those who want to entertain her to give a CARE package in her name. Thus she's saving her friends money, doing good to those who need it and keeping her husband's digestion on even keel. The Witts will remain in South Africa a possible four to five years. They're taking all chattels along, will set up probably in Johannesburg, where the amiable Mr. W. has a fancy, important job with the Treasury Department's Bureau of Supply.

One Vote for Cuban President

SPEAKING of farewells, the Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Belt will leave Washington this coming Sunday afternoon. Representatives of the Diplomatic Corps, their friends will be at the station to see them off. Though this department's a comparative newcomer to Washington, we're sure there's never been so popular a diplomatic couple. The Belts are young, intelligent and have a marvelous quality of warm friendliness which is too often lost in professional diplomats, whose politeness is formal, whose friendship or its pastel equivalent is unhappily based on expediency. Personally, we can't wait until "Gui" Belt is made President of Cuba, and, even if we have to swim, we'll be there to cover his inauguration!

Mrs. Struble Heads Fund Unit

THOUGH this department is sometimes (!!) blamable, we were told, and in due course dutifully set down, that Mrs. Struve Hensel headed the naval unit of the National Symphony Orchestra drive. It seems, however, that the job is being done by Mrs. Arthur Struble, wife of Vice Admiral Struble, who's Deputy Commander of Naval Operations. Mrs. Struble has dozens of workers under her direction, and reports everything's proceeding in shipshape manner. It would be handy, however, if each lady chairmanning a committee would keep within easy reach an accurate list of other ladies heading other committees!

Premier's Visit Causes Little Stir

THOUGH Canada's our most important neighbor, last weekend's state visit of the Dominion's new Premier, Louis St. Laurent, passed without much fanfare. The Premier flew down for discussions of the Atlantic pact and of our mutual political, commercial and military interests.

Mr. St. Laurent is the second Premier of French-Canadian extraction in Dominion history and he has a difficult job in succeeding W. L. Mackenzie King, who held office 21 years.

Mr. St. Laurent who is short, gray-haired, distinguished, was one of Canada's most successful lawyers and mixed his profession with politics by being for many years leader of the Liberals. Unlike bachelor Mackenzie King, the new Premier is very much the family man, has five children and a most competent wife.

Accompanying St. Laurent was our new Ambassador to Canada, Laurance Steinhardt, whom John Gunther described in a recent article as our "ablest Ambassador in Europe." Like St. Laurent, Steinhardt has launched a new deal in Ottawa. He's entertaining politicos, industrialists, businessmen rather than the small clique of Ottawa socialites. Since we do a staggering amount of cross-border business—our two-way trade amounts to three billion dollars annually, more than a million daily—the Steinhardt method seems sensible.

Sending him to Ottawa is significant of our new realization of Canada's importance, since Laurance Steinhardt is not only in the inner Democratic circle, but in 16 years of noncareer service, has rung up some sort of diplomatic record, heading missions in Sweden, Peru, USSR, Turkey and Czechoslovakia.

New School in Iran

IRAN HAS been very much to the fore recently around Washington. Our Ambassador and Mrs. John Wiley are here on leave, which may be prolonged if the Shah of Iran recovers sufficiently from wounds inflicted by an assassin to make a Washington visit. All sorts of things seem to be cooking in Iran. Nicest was gift of 7000 square meters of land by the Teheran Municipality, as site for a school, plus clinic and dispensary, to be built in honor of Grace Dreyfus.

Grace Dreyfus is the wife of our former envoy to Iran, Louis Dreyfus. Shortly after her arrival in Teheran, Mrs. Dreyfus started, with her own money, classes for orphans. The orphans were gathered from poor families personally by Mrs. Dreyfus and eventually she had together some 200. She taught them herself at first, but when the numbers increased, had to hire teachers. She worked so inconspicuously that the government was unaware of her activities for a whole year.

The school was closed 2½ years ago, when the Dreyfuses left Teheran and was later opened under the auspices of the American-Iranian Relief Society, with Mrs. George Allen, wife of the present Assistant Secretary of State for things cultural, active in the proceedings. Now plans have been made for a large building to carry on the work, and Mrs. Wiley laid the cornerstone last November.

Though the Wileys have been gracefully undergoing the usual Washington party runaround, Irena has found time to skip to San Francisco where an exhibition of her paintings was staged at Gump's.

This New Coffee Flavor Makes Early Morning Angels

It turns Bears into Dears... it's a wonderful, wonderful spirit-lifting success

It brings out the "angel" in the grouchiest early morning grouch! "What's in it?" people ask! The answer is Selecciones! (Pronounced seleck-see-o-nays.) That's Spanish for selected . . . some coffees selected mainly for perfecting body . . . others mainly for perfecting flavor.

Yes, the flavor coffees in this mouthwatering new blend are hand-selected 1,—2,—three times!

1. Hand-selected from shade-grown, pedigreed trees.
2. Hand-selected at the peak of ripeness.
3. Hand-selected before and after curing.

No wonder it's so delicious. Try it! If you don't think it's the best coffee you ever tasted, just send us the unused portion and we'll give you double your money back. Get your pound today! (It's vacuum-packed, of course.) And long live your houseful of early morning angels!

The NEW Chase & Sanborn
A New Secret Blend —"Selecciones"

Cooking Cues . . .

Cheese for use in cooking should be added to other ingredients in small bits instead of large pieces. Grating or shaving thin is best.

In cake making, have eggs—like other ingredients—at room temperatures so that they will combine well.

Cook sweet potatoes in their jackets whenever possible. Without the protective brown skin, some of the potato's sweatness is dissolved in the cooking water.

If bread crumbs for stuffing are prepared before they are needed, keep them in a covered container in a cold place.

Leftover cake may be spread with jam, topped with soft custard and chilled in the refrigerator for several hours before serving. Top with a dab of cocoanut or a cherry for each portion.

Always serve coffee as soon as possible after brewing; if it must be kept hot, place it over carefully controlled low heat.

To arrange an extra-special salad fill a large wooden salad bowl with a variety of greens: lettuce, romaine, curly endive, escarole, watercress. Circle the outside edge with thin slices of cucumber and sprinkle finely crumbled Roquefort cheese over the center. Toss with a well-seasoned French dressing just before serving.

Easy to Make—Easy to Serve

WHEN you're entertaining, do you spend so much time coddling the canapes that you haven't a chance to enjoy your guests? Try making up a tasty meat and cheese mixture, pressing it into a lightly oiled mold the night before your party, and chilling it in the refrigerator. At the last minute, you'll need only to put out crisp crackers and present the mold on a platter, garnished with lemon and sliced cucumber.

Here is the recipe for the handsome mold above, made in double-quick time with cream cheese and canned chopped meat, the kind designed for youngsters but well-suited to adult cookery, too.

"HELP YOURSELF" MEAT MOLD
2 packages (3 oz.) cream cheese
4 cans (3½ oz.) "junior beef"
2 strips crisp bacon, crumbled
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons curry powder
⅛ teaspoon dry mustard

Soften cream cheese with fork. Add meat and seasonings and blend well. Turn into mold lightly brushed with vegetable oil. Chill at least two hours in refrigerator before unmolding. This makes about 3 cups of spread.

If desired, equal parts of meat and sieved cottage cheese can be used instead of cream cheese and meat. Another variation is to use liver instead of beef, substituting ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce for the curry powder.

Ask Anne About Shelling Pecans

I've heard of some way of soaking pecans so that they are easier to shell. Could you give me any information as to just how? F. S. M.

Place the nuts in water which has been brought to the boil, remove from the fire and let the nuts remain in the water for 10 minutes. Drain the hot water off and allow the nuts to cool. This makes it possible to remove the meats from the shell easily without crumbling.

I would like to know if there is any book on the market that gives the whys and wherefores of baking? For example, what determines the number of eggs called for in a recipe, how much leavening agent and which kind etc. and how these may be safely varied. M. M. P.

I do not know of any popularly written work on this subject, but there are two textbooks which are used in college home economics food classes which discuss the subject at length. "Experimental Cookery" by Belle Lowe (published by John Wiley & Sons, Inc., N. Y.), has an excellent chapter on batters and doughs which discusses the effect of all ingredients and mixing methods on the finished product. "Hows and Whys of Cooking" by Halliday and Noble (University of Chicago Press) would also answer your questions. Either of these books can be ordered for you at stores which sell college textbooks. Or, you will probably find reference copies at large libraries.

Is there any possible way to keep indelible ink for use in marking cloth from drying up? Is there some way to moisten it again so it can be used if it has dried? H. S.

You can keep the liquid from evaporating by sealing the top with fingernail polish after each use. As to diluting the dried ink, this can be done with a mixture of seven drops strong ammonia to one ounce of distilled water. Both are obtainable at pharmacies. However, you would have to purchase them in larger quantities than you would need for the purpose and it might be more economical to buy a new bottle of marking ink. Remember, too, that strong ammonia requires extremely cautious handling as it is over 10 times as potent as "household ammonia." The latter would not do in this case as it is not made with distilled water, and the water must be chemically pure to prevent unwanted coloring of the ink.

I am planning to sand my oak and pine floors and then refiinsh them. I do not want to use varnish or shellac, but prefer a nonglossy finish. I've seen floors done with turpentine and linseed oil with a little umber added for color. Am I correct in that this combination is used and do you know what proportions? E. H. K.

Yes, this gives a good floor finish, especially for pine floors. The proportions are three parts of good boiled linseed oil and one part of turpentine. This mixture is liberally wiped onto the clean, dry floor, given 15 minutes or so to soak in and the excess is wiped off. After drying overnight, another coat is applied this same way. Pine usually takes three applications and when spots of wear begin to show new applications of the oil should be made. Add enough umber to give the color you wish.

I have just purchased a small, old-fashioned "pot-bellied" iron stove which I intend to put up in my kitchen during the winter months for additional heat. To make the stove more attractive, I would like to paint and decorate it in Pennsylvania Dutch style. Can this be done and what kind of special paint should I buy? I will probably have to use stencils for the designs since I am not an artist. Some say this painting cannot be done because the heat will melt the paint. Is there no heat resistant paint except black stove paint? E. H. K.

It is possible to get paint which is resistant to heat in only black and aluminum. These will withstand temperatures up to 500 degrees, but since the surface of this type of stove could get up to 1000 degrees ,even they would burn away in time. And there is no paint which could be used for decoration which would withstand these temperatures. So, it seems there is no way to decorate the stove so that it can be used.

Scalloped Oysters

Escalloped oysters, as they were served in Colonial Williamsburg—and are served there today—are a wonderful dish. The old Virginia recipe used for them follows:

ESCALLOPED OYSTERS

½ cup butter
½ cup flour
1½ teaspoons paprika
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon black
Dash cayenne
½ cup bread crumbs
1 onion
½ green pepper
½ bud garlic
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 quart oysters

Melt butter, add flour, and cook for 5 minutes or until light brown. Stir constantly. Add paprika, salt, black pepper and cayenne. Add onion and green pepper which have been chopped fine. Add garlic that has been finely minced. Cook slowly for 5 minutes. Take from fire and add lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, and oysters (which have been picked over and heated in their own liquor). Pour into baking dish, sprinkle bread crumbs on top. Bake in 400-degree F. oven 30 minutes. This recipe serves 10 persons.

Homemaking Hints

If you have too many things to be cooked for the number of burners on your gas stove, see if one of these things cannot be cooked in the oven. For instance, you can turn a creamed vegetable into a casserole and forget about it while it browns nicely in the oven. Or perhaps the meat could be broiled in the regular broiler instead of pan broiled. There is usually a solution and it usually means a nicer meal.

Keep a good magazine or book on the first floor of your home. Then if hubby is late for dinner, the wait will not be so irksome and the few minutes of rest and relaxation make the dinner preparation and clearing away less of a task.

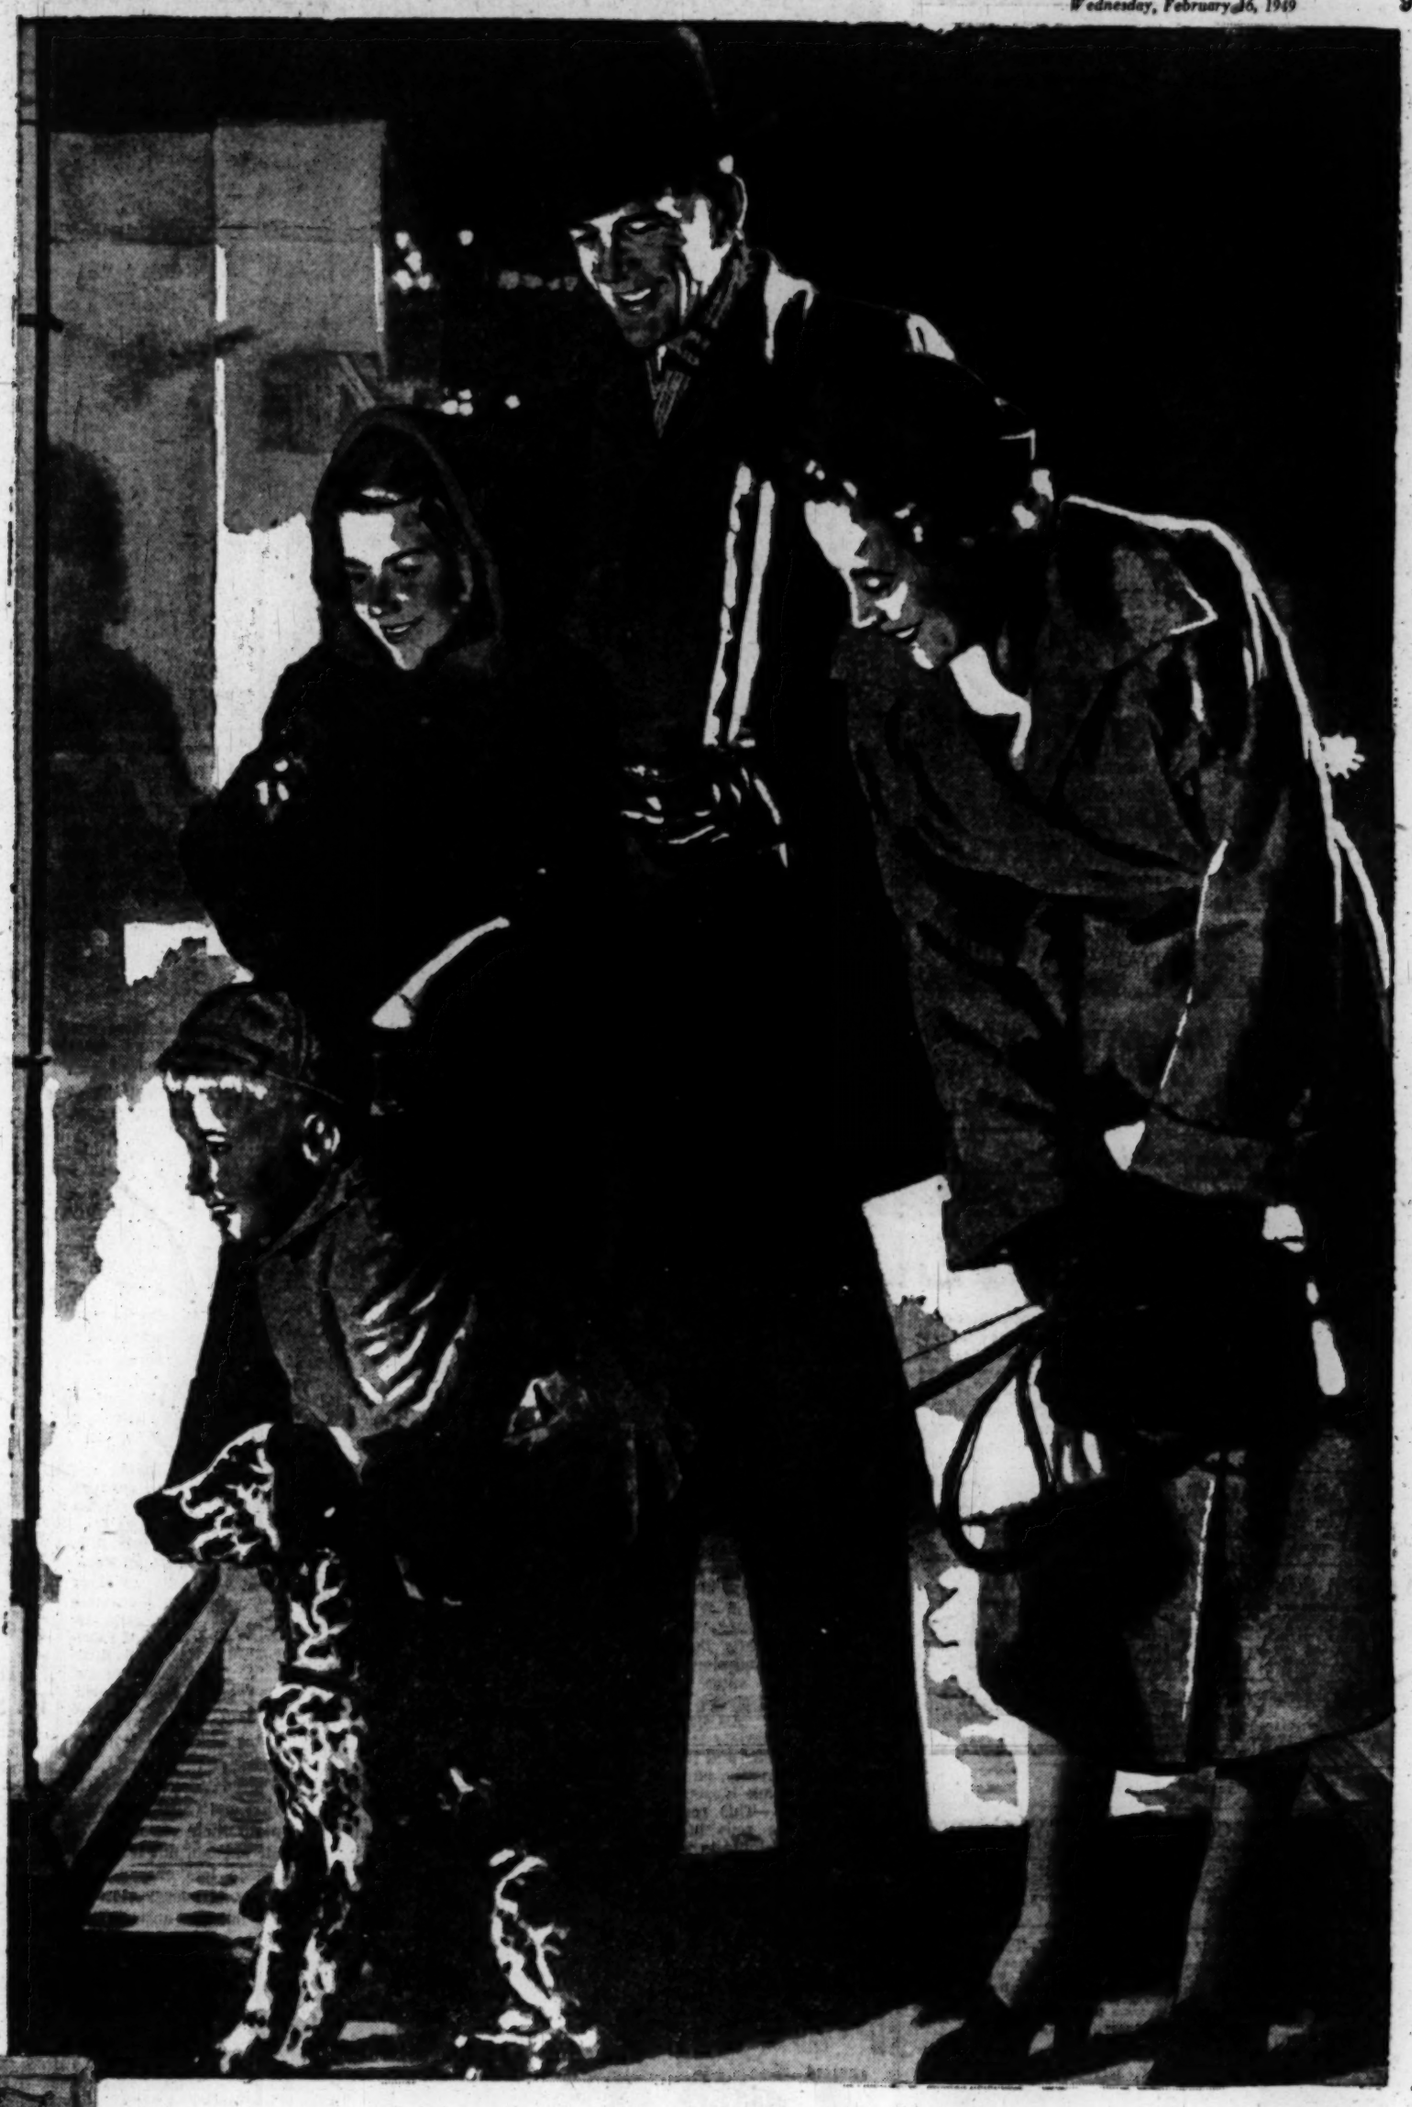
"Let us count our blessings"



As we take stock of this mighty nation, still young and still growing, one of our greatest blessings is so taken for granted that it is often overlooked. That blessing is your freedom to pick and choose. Not only in such vital matters as where you will worship or how you will vote—but in such ordinary ways as to what dessert you will eat for dinner, what outfit you will wear to the dance, or which movie you will see on Saturday night. And it is that blessing—your simple freedom to pick and choose—which produces so many of America's other blessings. For example, nowhere is America's bounty better displayed than in the shopping centers of Washington. Every store, every business in Washington is a living symbol of plenty—and of democracy. It is your freedom to pick and choose which brings all those wonderful material blessings into these stores and shops—and keeps them there. For your local merchant doesn't just sell things to you . . . he buys things for you. It is his job to venture out into the great markets and production centers of America and bring back the goods you are going to want—in the particular size and shape or color or model you are going to like. He must be ready to fill your needs and fancies at the exact moment you want them filled—or he fails. And in the long run, even the giant manufacturer half a continent away must please you—or he fails. In America, you are the boss. That's the way our democracy works—every store across this land retails democracy. For without a free exchange of goods, you cannot have a free people. So let us count the blessings we have today . . . and work with a will toward the even greater blessings of tomorrow. As they arrive, you'll see them displayed for your pleasure in the stores of Washington. And you can pick and choose, my friend.

That's America!

The Roses That Men Like Best

American men want roses that produce bountiful crops and look well all summer long, according to a survey of Men's Garden Clubs of America by Better Homes & Gardens magazine. Vigor, color, fragrance, freedom of bloom, strong stems, disease resistance, quality of buds and open flowers were the qualities stressed.

Here are the 12 favorite roses of men, according to the survey. All of them are hybrid teas.

PEACE—This great rose has everything. On stout stems clothed with glossy, leathery foliage, the buds swell into 5 and 6-inch flowers. The colors are pale gold to a full yellow, delicately washed with rose-pink.

CRIMSON GLORY—The rich, fruity perfume and velvety petals of this deep and glowing crimson rose put it in first place among dark red roses everywhere except in Texas and California. The many petaled blooms develop from handsome urn-shaped buds. The excellent color stays until the last petal falls.

ETOILE DE HOLLANDE—This fine red is slightly lighter than Crimson Glory and almost as popular. It wins votes with fine blooms on good stems.

CHARLOTTE ARMSTRONG—This dramatic variety is spectacular for size, color and height. It has rose personality, plus. It has vivid, cerise-pink blooms.

NOCTURNE—This rose is the newest of the reds in the top dozen. It is gaining in popularity almost hourly.

RED RADIANCE—This is a dependable red rose for Southern gardens and the sixth red rose on the list. The blooms of Red Radiance are not large or high-centered. But they come by the dozen and get votes for mass effect.

ECLIPSE—This yellow rose is liked the country over for its sleek, long buds, its pure, clear color and the nonfading, high-quality flowers. A fine rose to show off in a bud vase and a good one for buttonholes.

PRESIDENT HERBERT HOOVER—This long-time favorite is the only multicolored variety to make the top dozen. It supplies large-size blooms on stems plenty long for cutting. You can find cerise, gold, flame and buff tints in each bloom.

PICTURE — With beautifully-rounded petals of rich pink, this rose is applauded from coast to coast. A gold heart creates a sparkling color effect.

MIRANDY—This blackish crimson rose does its magnificent best when the huge blooms can unfold in constant heat and sunshine. If cold or foggy, the flowers sometimes blue disappointingly.

MRS. PIERRE S. DUPONT—Still a favorite after 20 years, this variety keeps up a steady production of nicely turned out, clean yellow blooms. It is good for small beds or a front-row place.

CHRISTOPHER STONE — Another fragrant red rose with a brilliant long-lasting color that does not blue. This variety is unusual because the open flowers are more uniformly fine than the buds.

In Bridal Procession

A wedding of interest to Washingtonians took place February 7 in Glendale, Calif., when Miss Rosalind Kyle Hicks of Long Beach, Calif., became the bride of Edward Allen Pierce of Washington.

For the ceremony in the Wee Kirk o' the Heather, Forest Lawn Memorial Park, the bride wore a white charmaine gabardine suit with copper accessories. Her sister, Mrs. Raymond W. Akers, was matron of honor and Mr. Akers was best man.

The bride was given in marriage by Christopher D. Barnes. The officiating clergyman was Dr. Carl Tambert of the Lutheran Church of Glendale.

The bride attended the University of Virginia. Mr. Pierce attended New York University. The couple is "at home" now in Washington.

Secretary Finds:

Best Bosses Are Inactive Executives

What type of businessman makes the most considerate boss?

Martha Kull, a New Brunswick, N. J., girl who attended the Katherine Gibbs Secretarial School in New York after graduating from Rutgers, wanted to know before she went job-hunting. She made the rounds of Manhattan offices talking to seasoned secretaries. What she found is disclosed in "How to Educate a Secretary," the story of the Katherine Gibbs Schools in New York, Boston, Chicago and Providence, R. I., in this week's (February 12th) Saturday Evening Post. Here it is:

Toughest employers are executives in the so-called "glamour professions"—radio, advertising, public relations and publishing. They are temperamental, and they work their secretaries long hours.

Top executives who have been relieved of routine duties to concentrate on high-policy matters are apt to be eager beavers who will squeeze the last ounce of work out of their secretaries.

Writers often waste a secretary's talents.

Bureaucrats are too poor to make good marital timber; Government pay is low and promotions slow.

Young men are apt to be over-eager and economy-minded; they show little consideration for their secretaries.

Celebrities make unpredictable employers and have exacting requirements.

"Older executives, who have reached their peak of advancement and are free from the high-pressure responsibility of the top jobs, generally make the most satisfactory employers for girls seeking security, good pay and a 40-hour week," according to the Post article.

Proper Place to Cross

When children are old enough to go to school alone, it should be impressed upon them to cross only at intersections. The law offers no protection to persons crossing in the middle of the block besides the danger of such a practice.

Keep in Trim

How to Lose Weight, But Gain Energy

By Ida Jean Kain

The bulk of overweights would be eager to reduce if they could be sure dieting would not sap their strength. They have to earn a living and feel they must eat to keep up their energy.

Fair enough, but less food need not mean less energy, for there is plenty of energy stored in the excess fat. To answer the question the puzzled little boy put to his mother who was on a diet, "where do all the pounds you lose go to?" They go back into energy!

I'm ready for the next argument: "Then why do I get so tired when I try to lose weight?"

If you get tired while dieting, it's because you are not getting the repair materials needed daily . . . not because you are drawing on stored fat. While excess pounds represent stored energy and can be used for energy, the body cannot run on energy material alone.

Look at it this way . . . in reducing you go right on with the process of living—internal work goes right on. Materials to take care of wear and tear are needed every day. And bear in mind, these materials required for the continuous upkeep of vital internal activities are not stored in the surplus fat. When they are not included in the daily menus, ou draw on the body for this essential material . . . and that is dangerous.

There is nothing haphazard about a scientifically-planned reducing diet. The protective nutrients are all there and in the essential quanties. On a perfect diet, even though the calories are limited, an overweight can maintain normal strength as long as there is surplus fat to draw on.

It is possible to take off any amount of excess without loss of strength. In clinics, overweights have reduced 200 and even 300 pounds, and greatly increased their energy and vastly improved their health. Of course reducing on a grand scale must always be under the supervision of a doctor. It is wise for anyone to be checked over before starting to reduce.

When science makes it possible to reduce on a protective diet . . . one that protects health as weight is lost, why does anyone want to follow a lopsided diet? Every successful reducer who loses weight on the protective diet marvels at the increase in energy.

Mme. Tarchiani Tells of Holy Year Celebration in Italy

Italy is preparing to observe Holy Year at Christmas of 1949. It will be the first time since 1925 that the celebration has been held. So revealed Mme. Tarchiani, wife of the Italian Ambassador, in a talk yesterday before members of the Washington Club.

She recalled that among the 200,000 pilgrims that journeyed to Rome to participate in the first Holy Year religious ceremony were Giotto, the famous painter, and Dante.

In the beginning, Holy Year was supposed to occur every century. Later Popes changed it first to every 50 and then to every 25 years. The 1950 Holy Year, which starts around Christmas of '49, is expected to draw millions of pilgrims from all sections of the world. To aid Americans who might like to visit Rome during that period special agencies will be set up in New York City, according to Mme. Tarchiani.

Reminding her audience that she had addressed the club about two years ago when Conditions were sad and gloomy in her native homeland, the envoy's wife said that she was happy to report the Italian people are working hard and cheerfully to rebuild their nation.

Co-Eds Lose Job Equality Round to Men

College-trained women who crossed new job boundaries in the war years and immediately after have lost ground since 1947 in their age-old competition with men for superior positions.

That was indicated by the annual report of Robert F. Moore, Columbia University director of placement, issued last night.

The report stated that, while placement of men graduates of Columbia University reached an all-time high in 1948, women graduates found 20 per cent fewer positions than in 1947. The academic year of '47-48, however, was the "busiest and most successful year of operation" in the 53-year history of the University's Placement Bureau, according to Mr. Moore.

In his report, Mr. Moore confirmed an earlier statement that 90 per cent of the 1948 graduates found jobs through the bureau. This figure did not include students who went on to graduate or professional schools last September.

A total of 1051 full-time positions were filled by the bureau, including 452 for men, 201 for women and 362 for both men and women in the teaching field.

The "most sought-after graduates" were in the technical fields of engineering, physics, geology, and chemistry, Mr. Moore reported, while accounting and selling positions led the list of business opportunities. Personnel, foreign trade, publishing and radio "among other fields most popular with students" offered the fewest opportunities.

Salaries paid to 1948 graduates were "easily 100 per cent" above those of 10 years ago, Mr. Moore said. Average salaries, according to degrees held by graduates, were as follows: A. B. and B. S., $250 per month; B. S. Technical, $260; M. S. Technical, $300; Ph. D., $425; M. S. and M. B. A. Business, $275.

Law school graduates, who were only 50 per cent placed last June, attained a record of "close to full employment" through efforts of the bureau, assisted by Prof. James P. Gifford, associate dean of the law school. Discussing the specific problem of lawyer placements, Mr. Moore said that "the New York market for lawyers continues exceedingly tight" with the result that "there has been a growing interest in out-of-town openings."

The bureau last year gave especial attention to the recruiting problems of Federal and State civil service agencies, and a number of graduates accepted such Government appointments.

"Graduate women are encountering fewer job opportunities," Mr. Moore reported, "but the quality and variety of positions remained excellent. We are favored through location in New York City, wherein are some of the finest positions available to university women." He said that women "must seek out their jobs on an individual basis because they do not have very many of the opportunities that come to men through the process of college recruiting."

Teaching positions on the college level slacked off last year "with a trend toward higher paying and higher ranking positions." There was a decrease of 37 per cent in teaching positions offered in 1948, according to Mr. Moore. This, however, does not apply in the elementary and secondary teaching fields, according to the bureau director. In those fields, he reported, there is a critical shortage of teachers, particularly in the elementary field.

Registration for part-time employment at Columbia increased by 19 per cent, reflecting "the increasing cost of living and education." There was a corresponding decrease of 15 per cent in the number of part-time positions offered, Mr. Moore said, but the bureau increased its efforts in this phase of its activities and provided "for all who seriously needed help, with the exception of the foreign students who continue to be a major concern."

Taft Loses Two Votes; Autry Gains One

Howard Piquet of 2209 Yorktown rd. nw. is smiling again, but for a while last week, things looked very dark, indeed.

Howard is 8, going on 9. For weeks on end he looked forward to the day when Gene Autry would appear in Washington, because any normal boy who's 8 (going on 9) can tell you that Gene is just about the greatest cowboy of all time.

Then came last Sunday morning—the dawning of the big day. Gene Autry was appearing at Uline's, and Howard was practically all set to go.

Practically—but not quite. That's the morning (Oh, the irony of it!) that he came down with the mumps.

The doctor came and nodded sagely as he went through all the required thumping and probing. And Howard took to his bed with a face as long as a delinquent creditor's story.

But, wonder of wonders, the mailman arrived in a few days with an autographed picture of Gene Autry (whose eagle-eyed Indian scouts have a way of learning about these things), and now Howard thinks life is pretty nice after all.

As soon as he gets over those mumps, he'll be able to don his chaps and six-shooters, and ride the range again—until Mommy calls and says it's time for supper.

Incidentally, there's another good Autry sidelight. It concerns Senator Robert A. Taft, who is currently engaged in a scrap to retain his post as mahout of the Republican congressional elephant.

Senator Taft was at WTOP over the weekend, appearing on the CBS program, "People's Platform." At about the same time Gene Autry was recording his network program in another studio.

In the reception room out near the elevators sat cowgirls Margaret Lane, 10, of 5407 1st st. nw. and Sandra Rosen, 11, of 5411 1st st. nw. They were waiting for their hero.

Out toward the elevators strode Senator Taft, deep in thought. In unison, the two little girls gurgled excitedly:

"Are you the one who just finished broadcasting in there?"

The Senator seemed a bit surprised at the enthusiasm he had engendered in such youthful constituents, and beamed his acknowledgment that he had indeed just finished a stint on the air.

"Are you the one that sings and rides horses?" the girls persisted.

"No," said Sabu Taft as he took his leave; "no horses."

PHONE PHILOSOPHY

The telephone company's sprightly magazine, "The Transmitter," this month contains a sobering thought:

"A man with six children is better satisfied than a man with 6 million dollars. The man with the 6 million wants more."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Swell dog, mixed breed, but too big for our little home. Please find him a farm to live on." (Shepherd 6461).

"Black and white male kitten." (Falls Church 7442).

E'S RIGHT, TOO

Capt. J. S. Holtwick, Jr., USN, of 3801 Nebraska ave. nw., writes:

"Please call the attention of your sports writers to the fact that the charming and capable Jerry's last name is Welker and not Walker.

"Her name is spelled the same way she shoots baskets —with the greatest of e's."

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air. Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

NEW YORK.—Former Attorney General Francis Biddle has written a play which may be produced in London soon . . . The rooster who appears with Jose Ferrer in "The Silver Whistle" has cackled so frequently during important moments in the play that a veterinarian now injects it with female hormones.

Charles Boyer's Actors Equity card lists him as a "Junior Member"; he must wait two years before becoming a senior member.

Robert Morley, who leaves for Australia soon to open in "Edward, My Son," has a clause in his contract which provides that there shall be no matinees on big racing days. Morley is an ardent horse player.

Gerald Kersh, the British author, now visiting in N. Y., has become steeled to the odd inquiries about his dark beard. At the Stork Club one day someone asked him: "What's with that beard?" Kersh replied: "Sir, would you have said that to Abraham Lincoln?" . . . Kersh has become a libel expert, as a result of his first successful novel. It brought him seven libel suits, including five from his uncles and two from his cousins. One uncle accepted a £500 settlement, and spent this money on a new car. A few weeks later, while Kersh was crossing a street, he was hit and knocked down by a car. When he got up he saw the driver, his uncle, and recognized the car—the car purchased with the proceeds of the libel suit.

Robert Sinclair, who directed the Phil Barry-Jean Pierre Aumont play, "My Name Is Aquilon," returns to Hollywood this week. A friend consoled him: "But the critics gave good notices to your directing." Sinclair sighed: "Yes but I have yet to hear of a show where people stepped up to the boxoffice and said: 'I want to buy two seats because I hear it's wonderfully directed.'"

The mayoralty boom for a local office-holder collapsed with a photostat of a 1935 news-clipping showing him smiling with Mussolini.

Lady Senator Stages War About Paint

By Drew Pearson

Being a lady Senator isn't the easiest job in the world—as gracious Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine has found out. It has its embarrassing moments.

Sen. Smith

Mrs. Smith, however, is equal to almost any occasion, and recently wrote to Arizona's shy Senator Carl Hayden, requesting women's lavatory accommodations somewhere within easy range of the Senate. While there are facilities for 95 other Senators, Mrs. Smith pointed out, there are none for the ninety-sixth—a lady.

Mrs. Smith also put in a plea for a green paint job in her suite of offices, rather than the standard, unfeminine cream color.

Upon receipt of the letter, Senator Hayden called the lady from Maine on the phone, hemmed and hawed nervously.

"I took the matter up with Mrs. Caraway (the only other long-term lady Senator and now retired)," he stammered. "You know, she didn't get her private facilities until she became chairman of a committee."

The only accommodations available, Hayden explained, adjoined offices now held by Senators with higher priority. Mrs. Smith didn't press this delicate issue, although some lady reporters are now goading her to do so.

Actually, Senator Smith is much more interested in getting her offices painted green. Three other Senators — Theodore Green of Rhode Island, Warren Magnuson of Washington and Milton Young of North Dakota—han green offices, she told Senator Hayden.

He pointed out, however, that only their private offices were painted green, not their complete suites. Mrs. Smith was entitled to a ration of green paint, he agreed, but only for her private office. She objected that this would be discriminating against her staff.

"Anyhow," she added, "Senator Green's offices are, too, painted green throughout."

At first Hayden denied this, but later discovered it was true.

"Well," he explained, "Senator Green is an exception because his name is Green."

Compromise Victory

Mrs. Smith dug deeper into the case, and reported back that the color of Senator Green's offices had nothing to do with his name. He had inherited the offices, already painted green, from ex-Senator David Reed of Pennsylvania.

"But it would cost too much money to repaint your offices," Hayden protested gently. "We would have to put on two coats."

"I'll pay for the paint," offered Mrs. Smith.

Worried over turning down a lady, Senator Hayden called back three times to explain his reasons for refusing her. Finally she compromised by having her private office painted green—upon the insistence of her staff, who agreed to leave their rooms a dull cream.

Note: Mrs. Smith has kept out of it, but there is also backstage debate over whether she is entitled to free beauty-parlor service—since male Senators get free haircuts.

Helping Real Estate Lobby

Readers Digest, which gets into more homes and schools than any other magazine, has now teamed up with the real estate lobby to fight rent controls.

It seems hard to believe, but the February issue of the Digest contains a condensed version of an out-and-out propaganda pamphlet favoring the real estate lobby viewpoint. Furthermore, publication in the Reader's Digest was significantly timed to coincide with rent-control hearing on Capitol Hill—although the real estate lobbyists have been passing out the pamphlet for several months.

Called "No Vacancies" this amazing pamphlet doesn't even deal with rent control in the United States but in France, where conditions are altogether different.

Brass Hats' Gripe

The Army tried to gag Gagman Jack Carter recently for pulling some rough stuff on the brass hats. Substituting for Milton Berle on a television show, Carter had suggested that the Army boil down all its brass into cuspidors.

The brass hats didn't think this was at all funny. So, when they heard Carter would substitute for Berle again at the radio correspondents' dinner attended by President Truman, an Army public relations officer pleaded with the correspondents to keep Carter off the program.

In the end, the show went on with Carter but without his Army jokes. He got a whisper to the wise in advance.

Our intensive trichological treatments scientifically combine ultraviolet therapy, professional stimulation and exclusive laboratory-created formulae; they penetrate clogged hair passages, attack subscalp bacteria, eliminate itchiness and irritation, normalize the blood circulation which "feeds" the hair roots, and revitalizes the entire cycle of hair-growing activity. Delay is deadly and may lead to fatal follicle shrinkage. Come in today or tonight for a free comprehensive examination and consultation. Hopeless cases are never accepted. Yes, enjoy your hair's new virile look within 30 days—or we'll pay your fee!
